ENRAGED, HE KILLS 5 WOMEN AND MAN; TRAPPED, ENDS LIFE

Californian Slays Wife, Her Sister and Her Lawyer's Wife.

CHILDREN SEE TWO OF THE VICTIMS DIE

Three of Another Family Are Shot; Pursuit Leads Up Mountain Trail.

Placerville, Calif., March 18 (By A. P.).—John M. Goins, Stockton business man, who killed a man and five women in a series of shootings at Stockton and Galt today, himself met death tonight in a motor chase on the highway near El Dorado, south of here, when his car ran off a mountain grade while pursuing officers were firing at it.

The pursuers, Capt. Carel E. Slatterback, State traffic officer, and Supervisor W. H. Biggs, of El Dorado county, said they heard a shot fired in or from Goins' car just before it left the road.

Biggs and Slatterback encountered Goins a mile west of El Dorado. Then followed a desperate chase over dangerous roads.

When Coroner J. B. Blair arrived and examined the body, it was found that Goins had killed himself by sending a bullet through his mouth into his brain.

Orgy of Killing.

Stockton, Calif., March 18 (By A. P.).—Angered and possibly demented as a result of a long series of family and legal difficulties, John M. Goins, Stockton real estate man and former railroad employe, ran amuck late today and shot and killed six persons, five of them women.

The dead: Mrs. Florence Podesta Goins, his wife; Mrs. Minnie Podesta Clark, his wife's sister; Mrs. George McNoble, wife of a former president of the State Bar association; Alex Marengo, Mrs. Marengo and their married daughter, Mrs. Henry Dutro.

Goins started his killing orgy by going to the Podesta ranchhouse near here, where he killed his wife and her sister. Arriving at the Podesta home, he met his wife and shouted, "I'll get you," and then fired three times, with deadly effect.

Then the enraged man turned the weapon on Mrs. Clark and fired three times.

Sought Wife's Lawyer.

Goins rushed back to Stockton, where he went to the law office of George McNoble, whom Mrs. Goins had consulted about divorce proceedings. Finding that the attorney was in San Francisco, the slayer went to McNoble's home. When Mrs. McNoble appeared at

GEN. PERSHING CENSORS FILM DEDICATED TO HIM

Objects to West Pointer's Conduct and Remark About Grant in Picture.

PRESENTED AT HOSPITAL

Gen. John J. Pershing has been cast in a new role—that of movie censor. The general, who is convalescing at Walter Reed hospital, has found it necessary to recommend at least two changes in a motion picture which a large producing firm has dedicated to him.

The objectionable features, it was learned last night, have to do with the conduct of a West Pointer and a remark made about Gen. Ulysses S. Grant.

A West Pointer, in the picture, tells his commanding officers a lie to save himself from dismissal. Gen. Pershing, it is said, felt that this was a reflection on West Point. A young man trained there, he felt, would be above such conduct.

The other feature to which Gen. Pershing is said to have found objectionable is a subtitle which quotes one of the characters as saying that Gen. Grant "was easily influenced by his friends."

"The Flaming Frontier," as the picture is called, was exhibited in the Red Cross hut at Walter Reed hospital Thursday night. The audience included Gen. Pershing, disabled veterans and other officers and men at the hospital.

His wishes, it is understood, will be followed out, and it is probable that the picture will be placed in

Wilbur Given Report On Butler's Charges

A report on the Butler-Williams incident has been received by Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur, he announced yesterday, but will be withheld pending a statement from Col. Alexander Williams, accused of intoxication by Brig. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, marine corps officer and commandant at San Diego, Calif.

Col. Williams, who at first declined to make a statement, has since requested to do so and Secretary Wilbur expects to receive it today. Until this is forthcoming, the matter will not be taken under consideration by the Secretary.

NATIONS IN COURT CALLED TO DISCUSS U. S. RESERVATIONS

American Delegate Will Attend Conference on September 1 Next.

RIGHTS OF MEMBERS THOUGHT INFRINGED

Russia Informed That New Arms Parley Will Be Held at Geneva.

Geneva, March 18 (By A. P.).—The council of the League of Nations before adjourning its March session this evening, took definite action with regard to America's relations to the permanent court of international justice and disarmament.

On the initiative of Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary, the council boldly attacking the difficulties raised by the Senate's reservations to the adherence of the United States to the world court, decided to convoke delegates of all the governments now members of the court as well as representatives of the Washington government for a conference to be held September 1, at Geneva. This conference will attempt to frame a special agreement on the American reservations which is expected to amount to amendment of the court statutes.

As for the disarmament studies to be undertaken by the league the council quickly cleared the decks of all misunderstandings created by Russia's threat not to participate unless the meetings are held outside Switzerland.

Will Meet May 17.

This was done by definitely deciding that the first meeting of the preparatory committee on the disarmament conference in which the United States will be represented will be held at Geneva, May 17. At the same time the council addressed a courteous but explicit communication to Moscow declaring that Russia's delegations would be treated on a footing of perfect equality with the delegates of other lands and informing the soviet that the initial session of the commission would be held at Geneva.

In other words, even if the negotiations between Russia and Switz-

Secretary Hoover Now a Grandfather

Palo Alto, Calif., March 18 (By A. P.).—Herbert C. Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, is a grandfather.

A daughter was born to Mrs. Herbert C. Hoover, jr., at Cambridge, Mass., last night, Allan Hoover, uncle of the newcomer, was advised today by telegraph.

Mrs. Hoover was Miss Margaret Watson, of San Francisco. She and her husband are graduates of Stanford university, the alma mater of Secretary Hoover.

Malvy, Assailed by Deputy, Faints; Briand Wins Vote

"If You Go, I Go," Shouts Premier, Defending Minister—Hooted First Time in Career—Collapse Turns Tide of Opposition.

Paris, March 18 (By A. P.).—The chamber of deputies expressed confidence in the new ministry of Aristide Briand tonight by a majority of nearly 200 votes, but under such dramatic circumstances as to make it doubtful whether the house really meant to approve the ministerial declaration. The vote was 361 to 164.

Louis Malvy, minister of interior, was attacked by the conservatives, who recalled the accusations of treason made against him before the high court in 1918. He fell in a dead faint at the ministerial bench. He was carried from the chamber, while socialists and communists rose in rage, shaking their fists at the deputies of the right and menacing them with reprisals.

The ministerial declaration with which M. Briand introduced his cabinet admitted that a settlement of the perplexed financial difficulties of France was not in sight. It was received with great indifference and when the premier descended from the rostrum, parliamentary experts began to question whether he was to get a majority. The first interpellator, M. Barnegary, from the upper Pyrenees, however, made an inconsiderate rush at the minister of interior, Malvy, and changed the whole situation.

In a moment the debate became a political squabble in which the groups on the left again united in defense of one of their militant leaders in opposition to the right, solidified by antagonism toward M. Malvy. M. Briand insisted on taking the floor to defend M. Malvy.

The premier made an impassioned and dramatic plea, in the course of which he said that many senators who voted to convict M. Malvy before the high court had declared they would have voted differently had they known some of the facts in the case at the time. For the first time in his parliamentary career he was hooted from moderate and conservative benches when he descended from the tribune.

In the opinion of followers of parliamentary procedure the cabi-

FENNING ASSAILED AS TO ELIGIBILITY AS COMMISSIONER

Guardianship of Veterans Carrying Fees Raises Question in House.

FOUR MOVEMENTS DEMAND INQUIRIES

Cannot Hold Both Positions, Chairman Madden Declares in Comment on Charges.

Four separate movements to determine the eligibility of Frederick A. Fenning as District commissioner, were started in Congress yesterday following charges that he is acting as guardian for patients of St. Elizabeth's hospital.

Chairman Madden of the House appropriations committee, declared that he would have "to give up one of the two offices." He made known that he plans to have an investigation.

Representative Gibson, of Vermont, declared that he planned to demand an inquiry by the House veterans committee; Representative Rogers, of Massachusetts, said she was going to have all the facts developed by the proper course, and Representative Hammer, of North Carolina, with a view to bringing the matter before the House District committee, requested Superintendent White of St. Elizabeth's to inform him how many patients were under the guardianship of Mr. Fenning. When he gets this information, he declared, he is going to learn the amount of fees he derives.

Blanton Wants Inquiry.

Investigation by Mr. Madden's appropriation committee was asked by Representative Blanton, of Texas, on the floor of the House.

"There is more in this than the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Madden) imagines," declared Mr. Blanton.

The charges were precipitated by Mr. Blanton, but Representatives Green, of Florida; Madden and Gibson took them up.

Mr. Green declared he had been trying for 12 months to have the guardianship of a world war veteran transferred to his home State in Florida, but that Mr. Fenning, who is acting as his guardian, would not permit. The veteran's father recently died of a broken heart, Mr. Green declared.

"I wish to ask the gentleman whether he knows for how many

TEMBLOR IS FELT IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

Residents Rush to Streets; Mediterranean Island Has Heavy Damage.

Manchester, N. H., March 18 (By A. P.).—A temblor, which shook houses and caused residents to rush to the streets, occurred today during a fifteen-second period here and in the Soughen valley to the southward. Crockery rattled and the trembling was plainly felt in several towns.

In Milford, Wilton, Amherst, Pittsfield and Mount Vernon, people who thought at first that snow was sliding from their roofs became alarmed when the houses swayed.

No damage was reported.

Rhodes, March 18 (By A. P.).—The Island of Castelrosso, in the eastern Mediterranean, was severely shaken by an earthquake this afternoon. One person was killed, 3 were seriously wounded and 70 houses were destroyed. Other property damage was heavy.

The center of the shock is believed to have been in southern Asia Minor.

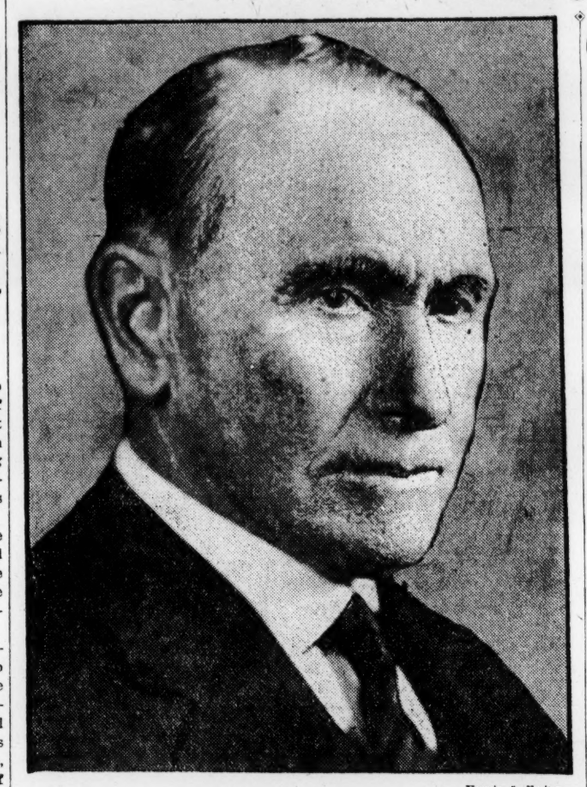

Rhodes was also shaken by easily percetible earth tremors, lasting 40 seconds, but there was no damage.

French Massacred In Druse Ambush

Beirut, Syria, March 18 (By A. P.).—A detachment of French and Senegalese troops, marching from Karabkale to Rachava, was ambushed today by Druse tribesmen and most of its members killed. Only a few escaped to rejoin their comrades at Rachava. They reported that the Druses had massacred the wounded on the field.

A French relief column later attacked the Druse band and dispersed it after inflicting heavy losses.

PRESIDENT'S FATHER DIES WHILE EXECUTIVE SPEEDS TOWARD VERMONT HOME

COL. JOHN C. COOLIDGE,
father of President Coolidge, who died last night at Plymouth, Vt.

Col. Coolidge Succumbs, After Rapid Decline, at 10:41 P. M.

END COMES QUIETLY WITHOUT SUFFERING

Bulletins From Bedside Told of Sinking Spell, Starting Late in Afternoon.

SPECIAL TRAIN IS DUE IN WOODSTOCK AT DAWN

White House Party Notified at New Haven; Comment Is Withheld.

Plymouth, Vt., March 18 (By A. P.).—Col. John C. Coolidge, father of the President, died at 10:41 o'clock tonight.

A brief bulletin brought from the White farm house by Angus MacAulay, bodyguard to the colonel, said "Col. Coolidge passed away very quietly at 10:41 o'clock."

The President, speeding northward on a special train to the bedside of his dying father, lost in a race with death. The Presidential train is due to reach Woodstock, 13 miles from here at 6 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Word Sent to His Train.

Word of the death of Col. Coolidge was flashed immediately to the executive offices in Washington to be relayed to the President's train en route to Vermont.

The President's father, who was within two weeks of his eighty-first birthday, had been sinking gradually since he suffered a severe heart attack a week ago. At that time his physician, Dr. Albert M. Cram, of Bridgewater, said his patient was at the point of death. His pulse rate reached 140.

A remarkable physique, coupled with an iron will, carried Col. Coolidge through to a new rally for life, but he lost strength day by day. Another severe heart attack early today heralded the approaching end.

End in Sight at 10 o'Clock.

Throughout the day Dr. Cram, hastily summoned from his home in Bridgewater early in the morning, remained in the sickroom. After the heart action had been restored to a more nearly normal rate, Col. Coolidge sank into a semicomatose condition.

From time to time Dr. Cram or Deputy Sheriff Macaulay brought reports across the way to the general store where anxious neighbors and newspaper correspondents waited. Each bulletin told the same story of slowly ebbing strength.

At 10 o'clock tonight the physician and Mrs. May Johnson, the nurse who had been with Col. Coolidge throughout his illness, saw that the end was at hand. The aged patient failed little by little, and at the last appeared to go to sleep. He suffered no pain

Started Failing in Afternoon.

Late this afternoon Col. Coolidge was weakening. He had failed perceptibly in the preceding two hours.

At 7:30 o'clock tonight Col. Coolidge had failed perceptibly since the previous report at 4:30 p. m. The bulletin issued tonight by Dr. Albert M. Cram, his physician, said:

"Condition, semi-comatose. Very comfortable. Respiration regular at 42. Pulse 60 but very weak and unable to count it at the wrist. The lungs are clear.

"Col. Coolidge has failed quite perceptibly since 4:30 when the last previous bulletin was issued."

The sick man was told late today that his son was on the way to see him. He nodded his head slightly and Dr. Cram said he believed he understood the message.

President is Notified.

President Coolidge's Train En Route to Woodstock, Vt., New Haven, Conn., March 19 (Friday) (By A. P.).—President Coolidge learned of his father's death just before his arrival here early today.

A telegram from Secretary Sanders at the White House was put aboard the train at Bridgeport.

A lone, unmasked robber staged a daring hold-up shortly after 9 o'clock last night in Schulte's cigar store, Fifteenth and G streets northwest. He ordered two clerks about at pistol point, looted the cash registers of $308, locked the clerks in and escaped. This was accomplished in fifteen minutes, while hundreds of persons, motorists, theatergoers and pedestrians passed the tobacco shop.

JEWISH CONGREGATION RECOVERS SEIZED WINE

Judge Rules Charge Against Rabbi Does Not Alter Ownership.

KAITLIN IS FACING TRIAL

The 700 quarts of sacramental wine seized from the Ohev Sholem congregation nearly a year ago, when it was charged that Rabbi Samuel Kaitlin had sold illegally a quantity to a prohibition agent, was returned yesterday in accordance with an order issued by Judge Gus A. Schuldt in police court.

Judge Schuldt held that the wine was actually the possession of the congregation and was intended for sacramental use and purposes and that, even though Kaitlin was found guilty of having made the illegal sale, it would not affect the right of the congregation to ownership of the wine.

Attorneys Bertrand Emerson, jr., Milton Strasburger and Milton King, acting as attorneys for the congregation, cited a decision of a New York Federal court that a congregation using wine for religious purposes has a right to the wine, despite proceedings under the Volstead act having been instituted against clergymen in custody of the wine.

The order issued by Judge Schuldt does not affect the status of the charge of illegal sale placed against Kaitlin. His case will have to be tried in accordance with the usual procedure, Judge Schuldt said last night.

Rabbi J. T. Loeb, pastor of the Ohev Sholem congregation, last night said the decision was a victory for the Jewish religion that was far-reaching. He said Rabbi Kaitlin was within his right when he made the sale of wine to Prohibition Agent E. M. Wolf nearly a year ago as Kaitlin believed at the time that Wolf was a member of the Jewish faith and entitled to the wine.

HOUSE, IN REVERSAL, ELIMINATES ITS BAN ON OUTSIDE PUPILS

Zihlman Leads Battle for Retraction of Action; Gets 172-153 Vote.

DISTRICT SUPPLY BILL IS PASSED AFTER FIGHT

$33,764,987 Carried in Measure; $2,000 Added to Purify Air at Zoo.

With an added sum of $2,000 over the committee report, the House yesterday passed the District appropriations bill carrying $33,764,987, after it had eliminated the ban on Maryland and Virginia school children.

As a result of the fight led by Representative Zihlman, of Maryland, and others, the House defeated the appropriations committee by a vote of 172 to 153 in its effort to prevent the attendance in District schools of all children who do not dwell here. It was a complete upset, the House just a few minutes before the roll-call vote, having voted with the committee, on a standing vote, 152 to 97.

As finally passed, the bill carries an additional appropriation of $2,000 for the Zoo for the purchase of ozone to be used in purifying the atmosphere of the animal houses. Otherwise, not a change was made in the figures of the bill as it was reported out of committee.

Gives Leeway in Purchases.

It carries, however, a provision that not more than 25 per cent above the assessed valuation may be paid for school sites. Site appropriations are made available for two years and the District commissioners are authorized to abandon the project, if they can not make the purchase within the limits of the bill, and devote the money to any other project named in the five-year school building program.

Representative Ketcham, of Michigan, started the movement to strike out the school ban immediately after the House, sitting in committee of the whole, took up consideration of the bill. He had learned, he declared, that the ban would completely dispossess the 3,000 Maryland and Virginia school children of educational facilities. Of this number, he declared, 1,218 are high school children.

Representative Funk, chairman of the subcommittee, agreed that the ban would dispossess the children of school facilities, but he pointed out that the committee at the outset had not intended to do this. It was the committee's intention to merely make them pay tuition. Friends of the nonresident school children had forced the drastic form of the ban, he explained.

He declared that it is "all very well" to discuss the subject in a sentimental vein, but the fact remained that there are 12,400 District children who are getting only part-time instruction because of the congestion in the schools.

"Surely these sons and daughters of District taxpayers are entitled to first consideration," he declared.

It developed, however, that the opponents of the committee had deftly maneuvered the House into a position of voting for the absolute ban if it voted for anything. This was the campaign of Mr. Zihlman, Representatives Moore, of Virginia; Black, of Texas; Connelly, of Texas, and Linthicum, of Maryland.

Luncheon to Follow Trophy Presentation

District of Columbia chapter, National Aeronautic association, will hold its monthly luncheon at the Army and Navy club at 1 o'clock this afternoon, following presentation at noon at Bolling field of the Collier trophy to Dr. S. A. Reed, New York, for his development of a duralumin propeller.

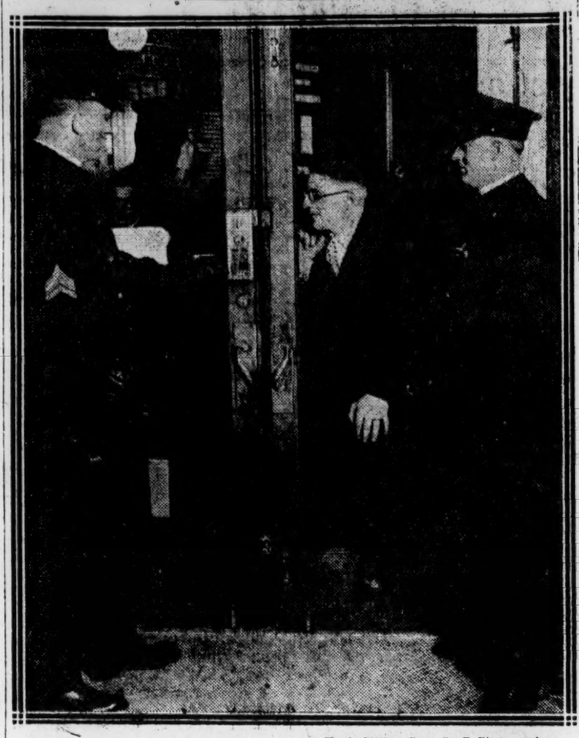

Orville Wright, chairman of the Collier trophy committee, will make the presentation and members of the chapter are invited to be present. Dr. Reed will be guest of honor at the luncheon.

Woman's Auxiliary Has Silent Observance

The "rule of silence" marked the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the establishment of the Woman's auxiliary of Christ Episcopal church, 620 G street southeast, which continued throughout the day at the church yesterday.

Grant Defends Row House to Realtors

Maj. U. S. Grant 3d, director of public buildings and parks, last night took exception to the policy of the District zoning commission and defended row houses and expatiated on their advantages. Pennsylvania avenue, Maj. Grant said, should be improved and the natural beauty of the territory should govern the park and public building developments in the National Capital.

Maj. Grant's address was delivered before the Washington real estate board, which met last night in the Wardman Park hotel. Representative Elliott, of Indiana, outlined the provisions of the pending public buildings bills. Dr. W. J. Showalter, of the National Geographic society, also spoke. Clarence F. Donoghue presided.

All Well-Fed Here, Electric League Told

Every one in Washington gets enough to eat, according to Representative Joseph J. Manlove, of Missouri. Speaking last night at the annual banquet of the Electric league, of Washington, at the Mayflower hotel, he declared that he had not seen an underfed man or woman here in the last three years.

Representative Manlove contrasted present-day prosperity with conditions that existed here 25 years ago, when he worked as a clerk in the census bureau. When going home to his hall bedroom after work, he said, he used to see dozens of poorly nourished men and women standing in the doorways of their houses.

rested while walking with his wife near his home by Headquarters Detectives Waldron, Scrivener and Kelly. He denied any knowledge of the hold-up. The clerks, police say, identified Smith as the robber. His wife was held for investigation.

Policeman R. P. Kelly, who patrols the district which includes the store, had passed the shop only a few minutes before the robber made his entrance. He learned of the hold-up when the clerks smashed the front plate glass door and ran to spread the alarm.

The robber was greeted by Harry Myers, a clerk, as he entered. He drew a pistol, Myers told police, and ordered him to "hand over the jack in the cash register." Myers hesitated, he said, but the robber cocked the trigger of the pistol, and ordered him to put the money in a bag which he held.

At that stage Austin Beitzell, another clerk, returned from lunch and was ordered about by the robber. They were commanded to go into the basement, where the large denomination bills of the day's receipts are kept, and these also were taken by the bandit. Ordering the two clerks to remain in the basement, the robber returned to the store. Taking two padlocks, he secured the rear door, which leads to the Albee building, then locked the front door and escaped. The clerks, five minutes later, kicked out the front door glass and ran to spread the alarm.

Policeman Kelly was notified, and a detail from the First precinct and Detectives Edward Kelly and Arthur Scrivener, from the central office, went to the scene.

Flight From Norfolk Here Made in 2 Hours

Commander John Rodgers, assistant chief of the navy's bureau of aeronautics and commander of the San Francisco-Hawaiian flight last September, arrived at the naval air station at Anacostia at 5:30 o'clock last night from Norfolk, Va.

Commander Rodgers was accompanied by Aviation Pilot A. P. June. The two left Norfolk at 3:55 yesterday afternoon. The time of the flight was considered exceptionally fast. Commander Rodgers recently flew from Washington to Cuba to observe fleet maneuvers and stopped in Norfolk only long enough to refuel his plane.

CITIZENS ORGANIZE TO TAKE OVER LAND FOR CAPITAL PARKS

Corporation to Buy Property and Hold It Against Commercial Development.

PRIVATE FUNDS USED TO PROMOTE PROJECT

Government Will Have Privilege of Purchasing at Cost Plus 5 Per Cent.

District officials are interested in plans of the National Capital Park association, a local $1,000,000 corporation formed to acquire land in the District, Maryland and Virginia, needed in the District's parking program and holding it against commercial development until public money to take it over is available. The organization is said to be probably the largest of its kind in the country.

It filed articles of incorporation in the recorder of deeds office yesterday through Arthur C. Moses. The incorporators are Mrs. Anne Archbold, C. B. Asher, Ira E. Bennett, Charles J. Bell, Frederick A. Delano, William P. Eno, Robert V. Fleming, Charles C. Glover, jr., Roger J. Whiteford, George W. White, Henry C. Sheridan, John Barton Payne, Arthur O'Brien, Theodore W. Noyes, Frank B. Noyes, Arthur C. Moses, Rudolph Kauffmann, O. H. P. Johnson, Christian Heurich, William D. Hoover, Joseph H. Hines and Julius Garfinckel.

Private Funds to Be Used.

District citizens subscribing to the plan will employ their private funds to assist the government in making Washington the world's most beautiful capital.

The purpose of the association, as officially set forth, is to aid the National Capital Park commission by finding out what land it needs but does not have sufficient funds to acquire, and whether this land is in danger of being destroyed for parking purposes by private enterprise. It will then acquire it and turn it over to the government at cost, plus 5 per cent interest including taxes and special assessments.

No real estate operator will be allowed to subscribe for stock in the association, which hopes to hold its meeting of organization within ten days. John Barton Payne is mentioned as its president. More than $100,000 has already been subscribed and $200,000 is expected by the time the organization is completed.

Called Benevolent Organization.

The Metropolitan and Riggs National banks will serve as trustees in the holdings and the association has been classified as a benevolent organization and exempt from corporation tax. Arthur C. Moses, George W. White, Robert V. Fleming, C. B. Asher, Frederick A. Delano and Julius Garfinckel form the committee on organization. The plan is the culmination of two years' investigation. Meetings will be held in the board room of the American Red Cross.

A provision of the pending District appropriation bill prohibiting the park commission from purchasing District land at a price not greater than 25 per cent more than its assessed value must be eliminated if the movement is to succeed, it was admitted.

Rockville Marriage Licenses.

Marriage licenses have been issued in Rockville to Samuel Eugene Moreland, 27 years old, and Miss Louise F. Meeks, 20, both of Washington; Raymond S. Myers and Miss Louise Thompson, both of Montgomery county; Ernest C. Wright, of Bowling Green, Va., and Miss Alice M. E. Wilson, of New York.

Pupils of Tech High Give "The Gondoliers"

The Gondoliers," the Gilbert and Sullivan opera, was given last night at Central High school by pupils of Technical High school. It was the first of three performances, the others being tonight and tomorrow night.

The leading comedy roles of the Grand Inquisitor and the Duke and Duchess of Plaza-Toro were enacted by Joseph Sorrell, Robert Yeabower and Hazel Boyce. Paul Casassa and John McDonald were excellent as the Gondoliers, and the chief feminine roles were well sung and well acted by Norvelle Newton, Dorothy Skinner and Catherine Birch. Virginia Hall did a solo dance in the last act which won much applause. The large orchestra was directed by Dore Walten.

COURT DENIES ERROR IN RENT ACT DECISION

Appellate Tribunal Holds U. S. Subject to Limitations in Landlord Suits.

The Court of Appeals yesterday refused to review a decision by Judge Robert E. Mattingly, of the municipal court, in which the latter held that the statute of limitations of one year applied to suits filed by the government against landlords to recover excess rentals, penalties and counsel fees under the Ball rent act. The application of Attorney General John G. Sargent, made through Maj. A. Coulter Wells, special counsel for the Department of Justice in these cases, for a writ of error, was denied.

The test case was brought against John Sheahin, 1300 H street northwest, who was sued for $310. Sheahin collected rent for the use of the second-floor apartment at 1736 T street northwest for 1921, 1922 and 1923. Attorneys Quinn and Lemm, counsel for Sheahin, demanded the dismissal of this suit on the ground that it was not filed within one year after it originated. The demand was granted by Judge Mattingly and the Department noted an appeal.

DAHLGREN CITIZENS WOULD BAR INDOLENT

Tell Zoning Body They Wish to Keep Pleasure-Seekers Out of Community.

Spokesmen for the Dahlgren Terrace Citizens association told the zoning commission yesterday, at a public hearing, that they wish to keep "indolent and pleasure-seeking" persons out of their community.

The statement was made in course of consideration of proposed changes in zoning of large areas in the northeast section to residential A restricted area, to prevent erection of any buildings but detached or semidetached residences. J. W. Barnes, chairman of the zoning committee of the association, made the principal argument.

Interest also centered around application to make a similar change respecting the east side of Wisconsin avenue northwest, between Porter and Calvert streets. Hugh W. Frampton, president of the Cathedral Heights Citizens association, John Boobar, president of the Yellow Cab Co., Albert G. Love, F. W. Buckler, W. A. Eisinger, of the Richmond Park Citizens association, and Maj. Gen. E. A. Helmick, representing the vestry of St. Alban's Episcopal church, advocated the change. August Eecard and Charles W. Arth opposed it.

Sues for $14,400.

Orick J. Biondi filed suit yesterday in circuit court against Carl L. Bess and Joseph T. Exnicios and Ralph E. Potter to recover $14,400 which is alleged to be due on the sale of the assets of the Stoneleigh garage, at 1707 L street northwest, together with the stock in Stoneleigh Garage, Inc., owned by the plaintiff.

JOHNSON, SHIELDS FREED OF PLOTTING DRY LAW VIOLATION

Jury Six Hours in Reaching Verdict in Johnstown Brewery Case.

ALLEGED BRIBE HELD SLIPPED INTO POCKET

Former Enforcement Unit Attorney Blushes as Wife Kisses Him.

Maj. James F. Johnson, former attorney in the litigation division of the prohibition enforcement unit of the bureau of internal revenue, and Daniel J. Shields, politician and hotel owner, of Johnstown, Pa., who were indicted on charges of conspiracy, were found not guilty last night by a jury in Criminal Court No. 1, after deliberation of six hours.

The indictment resulted from the alleged efforts of Maj. Johnson and Shields to obtain a permit for the operation of the brewery of the Conemaugh Products Co., of Johnstown. Maj. Johnson was alleged to have accepted a bribe of $250 for his part of the alleged conspiracy. This sum represents half of what Shields is alleged to have given Ellison C. Palmer, alias Eddie Parker, a prohibition inspector who posed as a "fixer" or go-between for persons who wanted permits. Maj. Johnson, it was testified at the trial, got $250 from Palmer, but, according to this defendant's testimony, the money was slipped into his pocket on the "sly" by Palmer in the Raleigh hotel.

Agent's Methods Assailed.

When the jury announced its verdict Maj. Johnson's wife arose and smothered him with kisses while he blushed. Col. James S. Easby-Smith, counsel for Maj. Johnson, and Percy A. Rose and M. M. Doyle, counsel for Shields, laid great stress on the methods used to obtain evidence against Maj. Johnson and Shields, and on the fact that government agents gave liquor to Johnson at various times during the carrying out of the alleged conspiracy to defraud the government.

It appears that the jury believed Maj. Johnson's statements that Palmer "framed" him by putting the $250 in his pocket while he was absorbed in the sports section of a morning newspaper in the Raleigh hotel on March 27, 1924, two days after the warrant for his arrest had been issued.

It testified that Shields gave Palmer $500, but the evidence showed that Palmer posed as a man "who could get things done" in the prohibition unit and that Shields thought the payment to Palmer legitimate. At first Shields, it was declared, wanted to make the payment of $500 by a certified check, of which there would be a record, but Palmer insisted on having cash—which was afterwards marked and used as evidence. It was said that Palmer deceived both Shields and Maj. Johnson as to his real identity.

COUNTESS SUFFOLK ON WITNESS STAND IN LEITER DISPUTE

Court Habitues, After Waiting Three Days, Hear Her for Two Minutes.

SHE IDENTIFIES LETTER IN ACTION OVER ESTATE

Court Adjournment Halts Examination; To Resume Testimony Today.

Chicago, Ill., March 18 (By A. P.).—Three days of vigilance by court habitues and others whose names appear in Chicago's blue-book was rewarded late today when they saw a real countess on the witness stand for two minutes. The Countess of Suffolk and Berks, formerly Marguerite Hyde Leiter, of Chicago and Washington, even better known socially as the vivacious Daisy Leiter, identified the copy of a letter she had written in 1921 to her sister, Mrs. Colin Campbell, widow of a British army officer. It was one of a number exchanged during the family negotiations which resulted in the present suit brought by Lady Suffolk to oust her brother, Joseph Leiter, as a trustee of the vast estate of their father, Levi Z. Leiter.

Every eye in the courtroom was trained upon the witness chair, which had stood for three days waiting for its first occupant, when attorneys reached what otherwise promised to be an impasse and the countess was called.

She Is Clad in Black.

Tall, slender, pale-faced, and clad entirely in black, excepting natural colored stockings, the countess regally stepped to the witness box.

She accepted the oath in a deep, throaty contralto, and, with a noticeably English accent, identified herself as Marguerite Hyde Sussex.

"Yes, I recognize this as a copy of a letter I sent to my sister, Mrs. Campbell," she testified, straining forward to bring the document under a stenographer's electric light in the rapidly darkening courtroom.

"Be seated, countess," advised her counsel, as she remained standing, after the fashion in British courts.

At that point, however, her brief testimony was interrupted by the second remark of the day from the bench.

Lady Suffolk was the cynosure of all eyes, and that included camera eyes, which are banned in Cook county courts.

Photographer Expelled.

Judge Denis E. Sullivan espied a newspaper photographer with his picture box leveled at the witness from the jury box.

"Just a moment, please," to the witness.

"Young man this is a court of justice," to the photographer. "Any attempt to intimidate witnesses by photographing them will be regarded as contempt and punished accordingly. You may take your machine and leave the room.

Even with the court's interruption Lady Suffolk was on the witness stand two minutes, when court adjourned.

The ice was broken, however, and her testimony as to her charges of gross mismanagement and dereliction of duty lodged against her brother is expected to require two or three full court days.

Counsel for Lady Suffolk earlier today read a score of telegrams and cablegrams with a few letters mixed in, exchanged between Leiter, Mrs. Campbell and Lady Sussex. Their general trend was an expressed determination upon the part of Leiter and Mrs. Campbell to resist the demand of Lady Suffolk, that an independent trustee, preferably a trust company, be named a trustee to act with them all after the death of the original working trustee Seymour Morris.

Joseph Leiter wrote to Lady Suffolk on October 14 1921, that he had spent most of his life conserving the estate, and was not going to see her or anybody else throw "monkey wrenches into the machinery." Leiter urged his sister to come here and do her duty, not to delegate it to an attorney he disliked and who disliked him.

POLITICAL ANGLES IN MATTEOTTI CASE CAUSE COURT FIGHT

Fascist Counsel Frequently Clashes With Court on Course of Trial.

WAR VETERAN WITNESS BECOMES HYSTERICAL

Defense Assertion in Killing of Deputy Subjected to Powerful Attack.

Chieti, Italy, March 18 (By A. P.).—The defense alibi was subjected to a powerful attack and the prosecution's web of circumstantial evidence was tightened today at the third day of the trial of the five men charged with slaying the socialist deputy, Matteotti, in June, 1924. Many fashionably dressed women occupied most of the benches reserved for the public.

One witness became hysterical. Roberto Farinacci, the secretary of the fascist party, who is counsel for the defense, frequently clashed with Judge Danza as the judge attempted to prevent the fiery fascist leader from turning the legal trial of Amrigo and the four others into a political trial of Matteotti.

Asked Right to Go Armed.

Dumini's defense that without premeditation, and single handed, he had kidnaped Matteotti, who died from a hemorrhage, was opposed today with the following testimony:

On June 8, 1924, when Matteotti made his famous antifascist speech in the chamber of deputies, Dumini applied for four permits to carry firearms. The same day, through Aldo Putato, another of the accused, he invited Albino Volpi to come to Rome. The accused frequently expressed a desire to punish a certain opponent.

Dumini, accompanied by the two men, arrived in an automobile at the ministry of interior at 11 o'clock on the night of the abduction (June 10). The automobile, containing several men was observed racing away from the scene of the kidnaping.

Filippo Filipelli, director of the fascist newspaper Corriere Italanio, declared that Dumini committed the crime. Ameloto Poveromo, one of the five, admitted participation.

Bloody Cloth in Valise.

Dumini's valise was forced open at the ministry of interior in the presence of several generals; it contained blood-stained pieces of cloth and automobile upholstery.

The political facts to which Judge Danza objected were testified to one questioning of Farinacci by Epifanio Pennetta, judicial police commissary, who declared that Matteoti's activities were "nefarious, deleterious and antinational."

Several times Judge Danza interrupted saying:

"This doesn't interest us."

Farinacci shouted: "It interests us quite a bit" and continued his interrogation.

When a war-wounded soldier, Valeriano Giunchedi, suddenly became hysterical, screaming and beating his breast, Farinacci was quick with a cynical comment. "He is unbalanced. He tried to extort money from fascism."

Great Pressure Charged.

Farinacci also clashed with the crown prosecutor, Signor Salucci, declaring that "great pressure was put on the accused during the preliminary investigation." He asserted that Dumini had protested in December, 1924, against the attitude of his interrogation.

"The crown prosecutor should know that this is not a common trial," he said.

To this Salucci retorted: "It is a trial of common criminality."

In the course of the exchanges Judge Danza rapped for order. He pointed out that an exceptional situation followed Matteoti's murder, especially during the time when the body had disappeared, as the public were demanding light on the mystery.

Spring Tonics in Citrus Fruits

Forty-three million boxes of oranges and grapefruit were shipped last year. This meant an average of 58 oranges and five grapefruit for every person in the United States. The fact that the consumption is steadily increasing means that we are learning to take our spring tonics from these delightful fruits instead of from a bottle.

Half a grapefruit, set in a mound of crushed American ice or a glass of orange juice a-tinkle with ice is an ideal start for a spring day, to ward off spring fever and that "tired feeling."

FORBES VISITS PRISON, WHILE AWAITING PAPERS

Admission to Leavenworth Is Refused Until Arrival of His Commitment.

Leavenworth, Feb. 18 (By A. P.).—Charles R. Forbes, former director of the United States veterans, bureau got his first peep of prison life this afternoon when he entered the Federal penitentiary here as a visitor. He is awaiting committment papers that will admit him to the institute for a term of two years, following conviction for conspiracy to defraud the government in the letting of contracts for veterans' hospitals.

For half an hour, Forbes, accompanied by a newspaper man, conversed with Warden W. I. Biddle and was shown about his future, temporary home.

"I shall do my best to obey every rule of the institution," he told the warden, "and I do not expect to be shown any favors over other prisoners. If I am assigned to shoveling coal, I shall not make the slightest complaint. I am willing to do anything you may require."

"I wish I could start my sentence right now," he said, "for the sooner I start the sooner I shall be free. Every day I am out now counts one more at the other end."

Col. Forbes inquired if he will be permitted to retain two pairs of eye glasses, explaining that he was nearsighted and requested two pairs. He was informed that privilege would be allowed.

Forbes appeared more cheerful when he learned his sentence of two years would be reduced 144 days through allowance for good behavior. He will be eligible for parole when he has completed a third of his sentence. At that time he will go before the parole board in the regular order of all prisoners.

Col. Forbes returned to Kansas City late today to await arrival of commitment papers.

(By the Associated Press.)

It probably will be several days before Charles R. Forbes can be admitted to Leavenworth penitentiary. His commitment papers, not mailed from Washington until yesterday, have to pass through the court of appeals and the district court at Chicago before instructions can be issued for his admission to prison.

WOMAN DIED OF POISON, IS MARSHALL DEFENSE

Deadley Potion Was Taken by Mistake, It Is Asserted at His Trial.

Philadelphia, March 18 (By A. P.).—Anna May Dietrich died from poison, taken by mistake, was the defense put forward this afternoon at the trial of David L. Marshall, chiropractor, charged with killing her and dismembering her body.

In outlining the defense, Abraham Wernick, counsel for Marshall, said there were two glasses in Marshall's chiropractic office when Miss Dietrich called. One contained poison and the other salts. She wanted to take the latter, but took the deadly drug by mistake.

Marshall, fearing that he would be blamed for her death, decided to dismember her body and distribute it to hide the woman's death.

The Commonwealth closed its case at noon after Dr. William H. Wadsworth, coroner's physician, had testified that Miss Dietrich's neck had been punctured before complete asphyxia had taken place from compression of the neck.

The Commonwealth alleged that Marshall confessed he choked her because he claimed she threatened to expose their relations.

Counsel for the defense repudiated the alleged confession in which Marshall said he had choked the girl. In a previous confession Marshall said the girl had died from poison. Counsel told the jury the prisoner was tricked into signing the second one after he had been ill treated by the detectives.

Marshall then took the stand as the first defense witness in his own behalf.

Hear "Always"

Love's pledge of loyalty . . . "not for just an hour, not for just a day, not for just a year, but ALWAYS!" . . . a love-song, inspired and inspiring.

Irving Berlin's newest, most appealing of love-songs, recorded in the New Victor Way

"ALWAYS" will strike a responsive chord the minute you hear its tender, crooning melody. For this great love-song, written from the heart by Irving Berlin, tells the story of the longing and desire of all the world.

This beautiful, haunting melody is available in three separate forms—as a waltz, played by George Olsen and His Music; as a fox trot, played by the International Novelty Orchestra; and as a tenor solo, sung by Henry Burr. Each is different, each is superlatively well done.

Hear these records, made and played in the incomparable Victor manner. You will be amazed by the playing quality of the new Victor Records. They have new beauty and power that will thrill you. Dance music on these new records puts the orchestra right into the room. The deep, guttural "bong" of the bass beats out a rich rhythm that is easily heard above the shuffle of happy feet.

Ask the nearest Victor dealer to play the "Always" records for you, and scores of others equally good, on the new Orthophonic Victrola. Today!

INDIVIDUAL DEEDS OF HEROISM MARK ADVANCE OF 314TH

Enlisted Men Clean Out Enemy Machine Gun Nests and Chaplain, Wounded, Stays With Troops and Ministers to Other Injured Men; Artillery and Engineers Give Splendid Support to the Infantry.

By BRIG. GEN. JOSEPH E. KUHN.

(Commander of Camp Meade, where drafted men from District, Maryland and Pennsylvania were formed into the famous Seventy-ninth division, and led by the general in France.)

MANY individual deeds of heroism occurred in fighting enemy machine guns during the advance of the 314th infantry, of which only a few may be recorded. Corpl. J. A. Larsen and Private N. L. Jordan, of "K" company, outflanked a machine gun nest in front of the line, killing three of the crew and capturing two others. Sergt. Charles J. Dewees led his section against two machine guns, killing the entire crews of both. Sergt. Carl P. Frank, of "E" company with two men captured a machine gun nest and seventeen prisoners and Corpl. Eric Rosenfeld with his squad of the same company cleaned out three nests and took 22 prisoners.

In the early afternoon the advance of the 314th infantry had passed the front of the 313th and was threatening the enemy's flank in the Bois de Cuisey. The light tanks having opportunely arrived, Col. Sweezey organized another attack, using the tanks and a supporting machine gun barrage. This attack was launched about 2 p. m. and eventually drove the Germans from the wood after severe fighting. Capt. Harry Ingersoll and Lieut. W. E. Fraley, both of "H" company were mortally wounded at the barbed wire entanglement, gallantly leading their men. Here also the intrepid and greatly beloved chaplain, John Carroll Moore, distinguished himself. Although himself wounded, he accompanied the attacking line, administering to the dying and aiding the wounded. While entering an enemy trench with a group of men a hand grenade was thrown into their midst. Without regard to his personal safety he picked it up and threw it out. Just after leaving his hand the grenade exploded, seriously wounding him.

All Majors Killed

In compliance with urgent orders from corps headquarters, Col. Sweezey was directed to attack Montfaucon although the hour was late and the regiment in need of organization. Supported by tanks, the attack was launched about 6 p. m. only to be smothered by a withering fire of machine guns. Some elements of the regiment succeeded in reaching the outskirts of the town, but could not be supported in the darkness and had to be withdrawn. Among those killed in the assault was Maj. Israel Putnam, first batalion, and Lieut. T. B. Vandiver, of "B" company. With the death of Maj. Putnam all the majors of the 313th had become casualties during the first day's fighting, leaving Col. Sweezey as the only field officer.

Although not engaged on the 26th, the 158th brigade suffered a number of casualties from the enemy artillery and from snipers and camouflaged machine guns which had been passed by the leading regiments. The Boche displayed a devilish ingenuity and cunning in concealing his machine guns and snipers in forest debris, tree tops and shell holes. Waiting until the assaulting waves have passed these pests would come into action, firing upon reserves, headquarter groups and runners. The 315th infantry had scarcely passed the first German trenches when it encountered fire from still hidden snipers and machine guns. Lieut. R. T. Turn, Company "I," was killed by a sniper bullet and Lieut. F. S. Strosnider, Company "L," by a machine gun bullet. Several machine gun nests were unearthed and disposed of. The experience of the 316th on the left was similar. Capt. Robert Feuardent, French Liaison officer of the regiment, single handed, captured three Germans in a dug out.

Artillery and Engineers

The artillery brigade, having finished its rolling barrage at 11 a. m. sought to cross No Man's land for the further support of the infantry. Finding it impossible to advance through Avocourt, due to the traffic jam at this point and the impassable road beyond, an attempt was made to cross by the route taken by the tanks. This also failed and the artillery, baffled at every turn, was forced to delay pending the reconstruction of the Avocourt-Malancourt road. One battalion of 75's only managed to worm into the Esnes-Malancourt road, reserved for the Fourth division exclusively, and was caught in the traffic jam, unable to advance or return.

Meanwhile the engineers of the Seventy-ninth were working desperately to make the Avocourt-Malancourt road passable. Following closely behind the infantry, the engineer regiment had commenced its monumental task at the earliest practicable moment, working even under fire of machine guns and snipers. Col. J. Frank Barber, recognizing the magnitude of the task and the need for haste, sent in an urgent call for help, and in the early afternoon received two companies of pioneer infantry and one company of the 310th engineers as reenforcements. With the additional troops, faster progress was made, and by nightfall the road had been restored as far as the western edge of the Malancourt woods so as to be passable for animal-drawn transportation.

Shortly after 3 p. m. I moved to Esnes and established an advanced command post nearer the front line. Telephone communications, which had been good up to that time, commenced to suffer interruption, due in part to breakages by the traffic and in part by the lengthening of the lines and the poor quality of insulated wire employed. Toward evening all communication with Gen. Nicholson was lost and for some hours I was in ignorance as to the location of my front lines. A field message, dispatched by Col. Oury at 11:30 p. m., giving positions of the 314th infantry, reached me through runner in the early hours of September 27. At 2 a. m., the same date, communication was established with the commanding general of the 158th brigade, who reported in person at Esnes. Meanwhile imperative orders had been received from corps shortly before midnight directing the Seventy-ninth division to advance that night to a position abreast of the Fourth division, reported as in the vicinity of Nantillois. To meet this situation, the commanding general of the 158th brigade was directed to move forward at once with the 315th infantry in support of the 314th, and to push an attack without regard to costs. At the same time orders were issued to Gen. Nicholson to take command of the 316th infantry in support of the 313th and to make an immediate advance. This order did not reach him until 5 a. m., September 27.

Officer Relieved

Accompanied by my chief of staff and two aides, I left Esnes at 4:30 a. m. for Haucourt in order to be nearer the front lines. It was only with the greatest difficulty that we were able to progress, it being frequently necessary to push our horses into the road ditches in order to pass the transportation which completely jammed the road. Although not more than 3½ kilometers distant, we did not reach Haucourt until 6 a. m.

To my surprise I here found that my orders for the immediate advance of the 315th infantry had not been obeyed. The responsible officer was relieved on the spot. Col. Alden C. Knowles, who was also present, was ordered to move forward his regiment immediately and to report to Col. Oury, the latter, as senior, to take command of the brigade. This done, I established my command post in the open road through Haucourt with telephone connection to the rear, but the line still out to the front. One of my aides was sent forward to locate Col. Oury, and the other to locate Gen. Nicholson. Maj. Alfred R. Allen, who had been sent to the rear by Col. Oury to look up the regimental trains, opportunely passed through Haucourt and was temporarily impressed to operate the telephone, which was working poorly, due to the wet weather.

At 11:30 a. m., the corps commander appeared in Haucourt to investigate the situation. I explained to him the conditions and the dispositions made for pushing the attack. Neither of us then knew that 313th infantry had swept through the town of Montfaucon and that the famous stronghold was in our hands.

Renewing its attack at 4 a. m., the 314th infantry started forward in the darkness, gaining ground steadily. It was a repetition of the previous day's fighting against dispersed machine gun nests and snipers. The advance of the 314th facilitated the attack of the 313th which started at 7:30 a. m., assisted by half a dozen light tanks. Both regiments pressed forward, keeping well abreast, until at 11 a. m. the 313th entered the town of Montfaucon where it spent the next 45 minutes mopping up snipers. At noon the 314th entered the Tuilerie wood, due east of Montfaucon, capturing four German 77's. Here Capt. C. P. Freeman, Company M, was mortally wounded by a sniper and Lieut. C. McKee Alexander instantly killed by a shell.

Pigeon Reports Victory

The capture of Montfaucon was promptly reported by Col. Sweezy, both by pigeon and courier. Pigeon No. 47 reached its loft at Jouey-en-Argonne with a torn and bleeding wing, signal corps records showing it had taken 1 hour and 40 minutes to cover 18 miles. Due to its having been wounded en route, the pigeon was beaten by the courier and it was from the latter that I first received the welcome news at Haucourt at 1:30 p. m. Leaving orders for the division command post to move without delay to the vicinity of Montfaucon, I rode at once to the front, accompanied by orderly, and reached the summit of the hill at 3 p. m. Here I found Col. Sweezey directing an attack of his regiment against the Bois de Beuge, two kilometers farther north.

Wave after wave of khaki-clad infantry was pouring over the hill and down its northern slope in full view of the enemy while over their heads German shells were bursting, fortunately too high to inflict serious casualties. On the right the 314th infantry was launching a flanking attack against Nantillois, 2 kilometers north of Tuilerie wood.

As everything appeared to be going well I returned to the newly established Command post, 800 meters southeast of Montfaucon town. The post was located in three old German dugouts, sunk some 5 feet underground with a light covering of timber and earth. One of them was well filled with hand grenades. These dugouts were foul, evil smelling and wet, but they were the only shelter available. For three days the nights division headquarters functioned in these dirty holes with water dripping from the ceilings and tallow candles for illumination.

My first concern was the reestablishment of communications which had been sadly disorganized during the previous 24 hours. By nightfall this had been satisfactorily accomplished and headquarters were once more in touch with corps and all elements of the division.

97 HITS IN 97 SHOTS BY AIRCRAFT GUNNERS

Men of VT-2 Squadron Set Remarkable Record; Other Perfect Scores Made.

San Diego, Calif., March 18 (By A. P.).—Seaplane gunners of the bombing and torpedo wing of the battle fleet aircraft squadron under Commander Warren Child are believed to have established a world's record in the competitive gunnery year now nearing a close.

Five gunners of VT-2 squadron have scored the remarkable record of 97 hits in 97 shots, while their seaplanes were flying at a speed of better than 80 miles an hour. Several gunners of the VJ-1 squadron, it was reported at North island today, also attained perfect scores in firing machine guns at sleeve targets from their seaplanes.

Not content with their amazing gunnery record, which Commander Child believes has never been equalled in the history of naval aviation, the personnel of the two squadrons has staged two gas attacks at sea against the destroyer Shirk with virtually perfect results.

MALVY'S FAINT GIVES BRIAND A MAJORITY

net at that time was doomed to defeat.

M. Malvy then insisted on taking the tribune in his own defense. Known to be affected with heart trouble, he showed signs of weakness and he repeatedly put his hand to his heart. He had just declared, "If I am a menace to the cabinet and the restoration of my country, I will resign," when he collapsed. He was carried to the cloakroom where he lay unconscious for 20 minutes.

"Relieve me of my post, Mr. President," M. Malvy cried from the rostrum. "If you find I embarrass your cabinet, but I cannot remain indifferent to the perfidious and odious attacks."

"I am no coward," M. Briand shouted, half rising. "If you leave, I leave, too."

After the suspension of the session caused by the collapse of M. Malvy the premier told the chamber how his minister of interior had pleaded with him to take some one else for the post.

"This, gentlemen," M. Briand added, "was because they not only attacked him, but his. You are, perhaps, ignorant of the long martyrdom suffered by that admirable woman, his wife.

"I told him the truth was known now; that everybody knew he did not betray; that he was the victim of odious calumny."

"'No,' M. Malvy replied. "'You don't know; never will they recognize the fact.'

"Well, gentlemen, he was right, and it is I who brought him to this bench, and if such is politics, I hold it in absolute horror."

This dramatic passage brought the majority of the deputies to their feet with lusty, prolonged cheers.

Thereafter it was the minister of interior who was under discussion, finances, Locarno, Morocco and Syria being lost to sight. The left consolidated again and the government's majority was certain.

Hidden in Postoffice, Thief Later Gets $700

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., March 18.—A lone thief today robbed the postoffice at Lantz, a mountain town on the Western Maryland railway, 20 miles from here, of $700. He had concealed himself upstairs in the building and when the postmaster, Charles Brown, went to lunch he took the box of cash from the money drawer and departed. Officers searched the surrounding country but found no trace of him.

It is believed the man intended to hold up the postmaster, but afterward changed his plan. Brown, missing the money, immediately after returning, notified the officers who began search for a stranger seen in town yesterday.

SNIPER DIDN'T ROB THE RIGHT PEOPLE

Failed as Workman and as Highwayman, Asserts Omaha Bandit.

Omaha, Neb., March 18 (By A. P.).—Testifying that he was a "failure both as a worker and a holdup man," Frank Carter, "sniper bandit," today told the story of his life to a jury at his trial for the murder of Dr. A. D. Searles last February.

"I guess I don't have a nose for money," Carter testified. "Like other things, I just didn't hold up the right people. I don't have any ability, as I was too slow in changing to some permanent work. Anyhow I just wanted enough to live on for a while. I do not like to be called a highwayman."

Carter continued to maintain that he was sane despite efforts of his counsel to prove that he is a victim of intermittent insanity.

CHARGE BOOTLEG KING ALSO RAN DISTILLERY

Kessler Indicted With Sweetwood as Redistiller of Alcohol.

New York, March 18 (By A. P.). Emanuel (Manny) Kessler, known as "King of the Bootleggers," is under indictment for violating the prohibition law by operating a distillery near New Brunswick, N. J., it became known today when Samuel Senate, of the Bronx, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Cotter.

Kessler, Senate, Morris Sweetwood and twenty others are charged in the indictment with conspiring to redistill and distribute denatured alcohol to bootleggers. They are alleged to have been doing business since June 1 under the name of the South River Chemical Works, Inc., South River, N. J., and to have produced 4,000 gallons of alcohol daily.

Kessler is also under another indictment which alleged he had defrauded the United States government of more than $1,560,000 due as income tax in 1922 on his alleged bootleg income. He was released recently from the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., where he and Sweetwood served twenty months for violating the prohibition law.

17 KILLED IN PEKING AS MOB PROTESTS POWERS' DEMANDS

Thousand Students Fired On in Front of Chinese Cabinet Offices.

ULTIMATUM TO BE MET; TAKU HARBOR REOPENED

River Traffic Again Moving Between Tientsin and Its Seaport.

Peking, March 18 (By A. P.).—Seventeen students were killed and sixteen wounded by guards who fired on 1,000 students who were demonstrating before the cabinet offices.

The demonstration was in protest against the government's acquiescence to the ultimatum of the powers regarding the restoration of free communication between Peking and Tientsin and the sea.

Troops today were guarding the residence of the chief of the military squad which fired on the students.

The powers' ultimatum demanded action by noon today.

The foreign office memorandum to the powers comments on the alleged lack of patience on the part of the diplomats, but assures the powers that the competent military authorities have been authorized to take proper measures regarding the clauses in the memorandum of the powers.

Will Observe Protocol of 1901.

The substance of the reply to the five demands of the powers is as follows:

The Kuominchun will undertake to observe the protocol of 1901, with the United States, Great Britain, Japan and Italy, which provides for the disarmament of forts at Taku at the mouth of the Pei river, and guarantees an open way to the sea.

Measures taken at Taku were purely defensive and intended to guarantee the safety of Tientsin. They will cease automatically when the danger has been averted.

Provided the powers guarantee that the Fengtien warships retire, thereby removing the danger to Tientsin, the Kuominchun will abandon measures being applied.

Would Examine Passengers.

Investigation is urged of Chinese passengers aboard all ships as necessary to safeguard Tientsin against infiltration of armed Fengleners likely to create disturbances in the city.

The demands contained in the ultimatum of the powers were:

Hostilities in the channel from the Taku bar to Tientsin must be discontinued.

Mines and other obstructions must be removed.

Navigation signals must be restored and not further molested.

Combatant vessels must remain outside the bar and refrain from interference with foreign ships.

Searches of foreign vessels, except by custom authorities, must be discontinued.

River Traffic Reopened.

Tientsin, March 18 (By A. P.). It is semiofficially announced that the Kuominchun (National People's army), and the Fengtien troops of Marshal Chang Tso-Lih, Manchurian dictator, have accepted the demands of the powers that they cease their warlike operations around Taku bar in the Pei river.

Apparently river traffic between Taku and Tientsin has been reopened in part, at least, as French and Italian gunboats went out over the Taku bar this morning from Tangku and the American gunboat Asheville went to Taku from Tientsin, which is 37 miles up the Pei river.

The customs boats are standing by at Taku in readiness to restore the leading lights in the channel.

Council Denies Greece World Court Appeal

Geneva, March 18 (By A. P.). The demand of Greece that the permanent court of international justice be asked to render an opinion in connection with the dispute between Turkey and Greece over the Thracian frontier was rejected today by the council of the League of Nations.

Afranio Mello Franco, the Brazilian member, presented a report to the council explaining that the league's jurists were agreed that the delimitation commission instituted by the treaty of Lausanne is fully qualified to fix the disputed Greco-Turkish frontier.

O. P. VAN SWERINGEN OUT OF NICKEL PLATE BOARD

Succeeded by Brother, Who Quits C. & O. and Hocking; Many Others Resign.

Cleveland, March 18 (By A. P.). The resignation of O. P. Van Sweringen as director and chairman of the Nickel Plate Railroad, and of J. J. Bernet, president of the Nickel Plate, from the directorates of the Chesapeake & Ohio and Hocking Valley railroads, was announced by the Van Sweringen offices here late today.

M. J. Van Sweringen resigned as a director of the Chesapeake & Ohio and Hocking Valley, and succeeds his brother as chairman of the Nickel Plate. O. P. Van Sweringen remains chairman of the Chesapeake & Ohio and Hocking Valley boards.

Other resignations include Col. W. A. Colston, general counsel of the Nickel Plate, from the Chesapeake & Ohio directorate.

The changes were made as a means of eliminating the interlocking aspects of the three roads, objected to by the Interstate Commerce Commission in refusing to approve the proposed Van Sweringen merger plan.

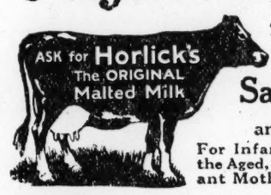

Other changes on the boards of the three roads announced follow:

Nickel Plate—L. B. Williams, Cleveland, elected in place of Otto Miller, Cleveland, resigned.

Chesapeake & Ohio—Resigned: J. J. Bernet, C. L. Bradley, J. R. Nutt, W. A. Colston and W. L. Ross. Elected: George T. Bishop, Northfield, Ohio; L. R. Steere, Chicago; J. A. Dart, Richmond, Va.; J. C. Myers, Ashland, Ohio; Frank H. Ginn and Alva Bradley, Cleveland.

Hocking Valley—Resigned: J. J. Bernet and J. R. Nutt, Cleveland. Elected: E. C. Bailley, New York; K. D. Steere and Edward G. Tillotson, Cleveland.

COL. COOLIDGE ONLY MAN TO SWEAR SON AS U. S. PRESIDENT

Kerosene-Lamp Ceremony Is Climax of Activities in Public Affairs.

ELECTED SEVEN TIMES TO STATE LEGISLATURE

Mode of Living Clung to, in Spite of Son's Elevation to White House.

(By the Associated Press.)

When Calvin Coolidge succeeded to the Presidency upon the death of President Harding in August, 1923, his father, John C. Coolidge, suddenly sprang from the obscurity of a quiet little Vermont town to national prominence. Up to that time the father of the new President, although he had been actively interested in public affairs for many years, scarcely was known or heard of outside his native State.

Not many of the 29 men who were fathers of Presidents lived to see their sons inducted into the highest public office, and among those who did, Col. Coolidge had the distinction of being the only one to administer the oath of the presidential office to his son. It was this more than the mere fact he had become father of the President that caused the attention of the nation to be directed to him.

It was only a few weeks previously that the son, then Vice President, with his family had returned to the paternal homestead for a vacation. In the midst of this family reunion and holiday came the death of President Harding. It was near midnight when the news reached the Coolidge home in the little mountain village of Plymouth, remote from the railroad, and immediately plans were made for swearing in the new President.

The ceremony was delayed only long enough to receive from Washington the official form of the presidential oath, and when it arrived in the early morning the stage was all set for one of the most solemn and dramatic inductions of a President in the history of the country.

Col. Coolidge was thrust into the picture much in the manner of an understudy suddenly called on to play the leading role. The Vice President had decided that his father, by virtue of his office of notary public of Plymouth, was qualified to administer the oath, which he did in the living room of the Coolidge home by the light of a small kerosene lamp of the type commonly used in farmhouse kitchens.

The ceremony thus performed amid surroundings that were more like the early years of the country, rather than of the twentieth century, was in conformity to the simple traditions that have marked the lives of the Coolidges of Vermont for many years.

The Coolidge Ancestry.

While probably no family which has furnished a President of the United States has been less inclined than that of the Coolidges to vaunt itself upon the "claims of long descent," there has probably been none whose recorded genealogy was more ancient. In the twelfth century, amid the renewed Saxon immigration into England which followed the accession of the first Plantagenet king, one William settled at Cowling, or Cooling, in Suffolk, became a man of mark in the community and was known as William of Cooling, or William de Coulinge. Some of his descendants moved to Cambridgeshire, and there near the end of the fifteenth century the head of the family was Thomas Collynge. His great-grandson changed the spelling of the name to Cooledge, and in turn his great-grandson, John, changed it again to Coolidg, and in 1639 brought his bride, Mary, over to America and established the family on these shores at Watertown, Mass.

In the little colonial burying ground at Watertown are still to be seen the graves of John and Mary Coolidg, who died, respectively, in May and August, 1691, both aged 88 years. John Coolidg was a selectman and deputy to the general court. In the fifth generation after him was another John Coolidge, as he then spelled the name, who fought at Lexington and Bunker Hill and all through the Revolution with the rank of captain. He settled at Saltash, New Connecticut, which a few years later became as at present, Plymouth, Vt., and had a son, Calvin Coolidge, who served in the legislature. Calvin had a son named Calvin G. Coolidge, and he in turn was the father of John C. Coolidge, father of the President of the United States.

Thousands Visited Home.

Col. Coolidge—he obtained his rank from service on the staff of Gov. Stickney of Vermont—always lived in Plymouth, where he was born March 31, 1845. The fact that his son became President did not change his mode of living, with the exception that he was obliged to spend considerable time greeting tourists who paused to get a glimpse of the place where Calvin Coolidge was born and spent his boyhood.

These tourists came by thousands during the months when snow did not hinder motor traffic to the village. The colonel took great pride in showing them the table where the President signed the oath of office, the pen, the kitchen lamp and the Bible used in the administration of the oath. He also prized highly his visitors' register, a series of notebooks containing the signatures of thousands of persons from all parts of the country.

After his son became the occupant of the White House Col. Coolidge traveled occasionally to Washington, but always appeared glad to get back to his farm and the life to which he had so long been accustomed.

Although naturally proud of the success of his son's career, the father never was heard to take any credit for it. "When Cal was in school," he once remarked, "I thought he would make a good doctor, but his main thought as a youth was to get a good education and I did all in my power to help him. As a boy he always went with me to the town meeting, town caucus and such things and always when we had a public examination for school teachers. He was always interested in such things. The point of it is, whatever he had to do he attended to if and did it the best he knew how, whether he liked it or not, and I think that's what he has always done."

A Man of Many Interests.

Col. Coolidge, although primarily a merchant during most of the years of his active life, was a man of many interests. After his schooling at Black River academy at Ludlow, which his son later attended, he worked for the village wheelwright cutting timber until he was 22 years old. Then he rented the general store at Plymouth and conducted it until 1918, when he sold his business to devote his time to insurance interests and his duties as an officer of the Ludlow Savings Bank & Trust Co. He was one of the organizers of the latter and a charter member of the board of directors.

At the age of 27 Col. Coolidge was elected to the Vermont legislature, and was the youngest representative in the session. He served six terms as representative and one as State senator. In his home town he was tax collector for 38 years, a deputy sheriff for more than 40 years, and school director for a long period. He also served as moderator for the town meeting and was assistant postmaster for 49 years.

In the last named position it was said in the village that he was the only person there who was sufficiently familiar with the forms of the Postoffice Department to make out correctly the detailed reports required. His services also were in demand in the settlement of estates.

A visitor to Plymouth once remarked that the colonel appeared "to have been everything in this town except the undertaker." To this he replied that as a youth, working in the wheelwright's shop, he assisted in making coffins. "And we thought," he added, "that it was a cheat to use anything but hardwood for coffins in those days."

Col. Coolidge in 1868 married Victoria Josephine Moor. They lived in a tenement in the rear of the store, where President Coolidge was born, until 1878, when, upon the death of his father, the colonel moved into the latter's home, the present Coolidge homestead. Mrs. Coolidge died when Calvin was 12 years old. The colonel's second wife was Carrie A. Brown, who died in 1920.

Speaking of the affection between his second wife and his son, Col. Coolidge once said:

"Calvin was never so busy but that he wrote to his stepmother every week and sometimes oftener. And she could see more in him than I could. She took more stock in his some day becoming President than I did."

Although thousands of automobiles visited his home after his son became President, Col. Coolidge never had a desire for this modern means of conveyance. Making the trips which his varied business interests demanded, he stuck to his buggy and old horse, which, he remarked in 1924, was "about played out." He took kindly, however, to the radio, and in his later years abandoned his lifetime practice of retiring early in order to listen in, especially when an address by his son was being broadcast. He was greatly touched when President Coolidge at the close of an address near the end of the 1924 campaign said a public good night to his father.

The death of Calvin Coolidge, jr., son of the President, greatly affected the colonel, and his friends said that he never fully recovered from the shock.

John Coolidge to Join His Parents on Train

Amherst, Mass., Mar. 18 (By A. P.).—John Coolidge, son of the President, planned to join his parents aboard their special train when it passed through Northampton on the way to Woodstock, Vt. He arranged to leave here at 1 o'clock tomorrow morning, traveling the 8-mile stretch to Northampton by motor.

The President's son, a student at Amherst college, was roused from sleep tonight by a newspaper man and informed of his grandfather's death. He expressed deep sorrow and immediately arranged to catch the Presidential train.

Col. Coolidge Arranged For His Own Interment

Plymouth, Vt., March 18.—(By A. P.).—Arrangements for the funeral of Col. John C. Coolidge, who died at his home here tonight will not be completed until the arrival of the President tomorrow. This was announced by Dr. Albert M. Cram, physician in charge.

The date of the funeral services was not decided upon, the doctor said. Neighbors, who professed to know something of the plans, expressed the belief they would take place on Sunday.

While the front yard of the Coolidge home was being cleared of snow today, the approach to the little union meeting house across the road also was plowed bare of drifts. Those who have had opportunity to know the wishes of Col. Coolidge said the services would be held in the old meeting house where he was a life-long worshipper.

When the Colonel arranged his affairs early last winter. He requested Selectman Azro Johnson, who is also sexton of the church, to prepare his grave in the village cemetery where many members of the family lie. There Calvin, the President's son, was interred in 1924, and there is a place reserved for Calvin's grandfather.

Two years ago when Col. Coolidge ordered a monument for the family plot he had his name cut in the stone.

COL. COOLIDGE CAME TO CAPITAL 3 TIMES; WOULD NOT REMAIN

His Longest Visit of Thirteen Days Was After Burial of Grandson.

PREFERRED OLD HOME AMONG VERMONT HILLS

President Failed to Induce Father to Pass Winter at White House.

(By the Associated Press.)

Although but an infrequent visitor to Washington, Col. John Coolidge was well known here and was a welcome figure in the National Capital.

Urged often to come here, he preferred the more simple, rugged life of his Vermont hills, and on the occasions he did visit Washington he never remained as long as two weeks.

In fact, his longest visit was for thirteen days, when, in the summer of 1924, he accompanied the President and Mrs. Coolidge to Washington after the burial of their younger son, Calvin, in Plymouth. Then, it was frequent comment that he devoted himself to comforting Mrs. Coolidge in her great loss.

His Refusal Final.

When the President and Mrs. Coolidge became concerned last November over the health of the colonel, and Maj. James F. Coupal, the White House physician, was dispatched to Plymouth with an urgent invitation for him to pass the winter at the White House, he preferred to remain in the old homestead and the village where he had spent so many years.

His views were expressed, apparently, with finality after the 1924 visit with its invitation to remain "indefinitely," in his asserting upon returning to Plymouth that he had had a "nice time, but home's a pretty good place after all."

On only two other occasions did Col. Coolidge come to Washington during the official residence here of his son, and both were for inaugurations first of his son as Vice President, and then as President.

In 1921 he was a silent but proud observer of the inauguration of Calvin Coolidge as Vice President, sitting in the Senate beside Mrs. Warren G. Harding, and in 1925 he stood, an immobile figure, close by his son when the latter took the oath of office on the plaza before the Capitol. The visit in 1921 was but for a few days, while that in 1924 was for just one week.

Stopped at Wakefield.

In that longest visit to the Capital, in the summer of 1924, Col Coolidge passed much of his time in the executive offices with the President and accompanied the President and Mrs. Coolidge down the Potomac on the Mayflower. On one such trip, a landing was made at Wakefield, Va., so that he and the President could visit the birthplace of George Washington.

The President, with an eye to his father's physical condition during that visit to Washington, had the colonel given a thorough physical examination at Walter Reed hospital, but, if any serious trouble was revealed, it was never announced. The colonel was a keen but taciturn man. Quite approachable by newspapermen, he usually confined his answers to their questions to a "yes," or "no."

COL. COOLIDGE DIES BEFORE SON ARRIVES

It said that Dr. A. M. Cram at Plymouth had advised him that Col. Coolidge had "passed away quietly at 10:41." The message was delivered immediately to the President, who retried to his drawing room but had not gone to sleep. He made no comment.

Mrs. Coolidge was then awakened and advised of the news.

Trip is a Severe One.

President Coolidge's Train En Route to Plymouth, Baltimore, March 18 (By A. P.).—President Coolidge, aboard a special train, passed through Baltimore early tonight on his way to the bedside of his father.

On perhaps the most severe trip a President has undertaken in recent years, he expects to reach his father's home in Plymouth shortly after dawn tomorrow.

Mrs. Coolidge is on the train. The only others in the presidential party aside from newspaper men and photographers are Attorney General Sargeant, friend of long standing of the Coolidge family; Maj. James F. Coupal, the President's physician, and Capt. Adolphus Andrews, White House naval aid.

Musicale Here Canceled.

The President decided to rush to his Vermont home after being advised that his father, nearing his eighty-first birthday, had suffered a severe relapse in his critical illness and might live only a few hours.

Decision to leave Washington forced abandonment of plans for an afternoon musicale at the White House, although the President passed most of the day at his desk disposing of routine business and receiving callers.

Just before leaving the executive mansion he talked by telephone to the nurse on duty at the nome of Col. John C. Coolidge and was advised there had been little change during the day in his father's condition. Arrangements were made to keep the President informed at way stops as to developments.

Guardsmen Awaiting Presidential Party

Woodstock, Vt., March 18 (By A. P.).—All was in readiness tonight to receive President and Mrs. Coolidge when they step from their train early tomorrow morning. The last leg of their trip to Plymouth will be by automobile and tonight more than fifty men were working to clear the roads of snow.

A detachment of national guardsmen will meet the Presidential special and six automobiles have been chartered to carry the party to Plymouth.

Heavily Armed Youth, With Jewelry, Held

A youth who told police he was Spero Super, 17 years old, of 730 Sixth street northwest, was arrested early this morning by Policemen Mansfield and Lohman, of the first precinct, who found him hiding in a pile of boxes in the rear of the Washington Gas Light Co. offices.

Police say the boy carried two loaded pistols, six watches, necklaces and other jewelry. He was held for further investigation.

Mexico Is to Admit No Foreign Ministers

FENNING ELIGIBILITY TO HIS POST DOUBTED

people the commissioner to whom the gentleman refers is guardian," Mr. Gibson asked. "I am informed he is guardian for a great many, in cases situated as the case to which the gentleman from Florida refers."

"And, approximately, what do his fees amount to per year for these cases?" asked Mr. Blanton.

"I do not know. I have no personal knowledge," said Mr. Gibson, but when Mr. Blanton persisted as to what was his information on the subject, Mr. Gibson said:

"Several thousand dollars."

Continuing, Mr. Blanton declared:

"And I want to say here that this commissioner has no right to have himself appointed guardian for poor soldier boys who happen to be in St. Elizabeth's, and hold them here, while their fathers are perhaps dying at home in Florida, and at the same time receive several thousand dollars a year as my colleague from Vermont says he is doing. If he is doing that, it ought to be stopped."

Should Be Put Out of Post.

"If the gentlemen will permit," interrupted Mr. Madden, "let me make this suggestion. If he is doing that, he ought to be put out of his office."

"That is what he has done and I hope the committee will find out something about it."

"We will," declared Mr. Madden.

Mr. Madden made the point, however, that he did not think Mr. Green should hold Mr. Fenning responsible for refusing to transfer he Florida boy's guardianship. The boy had to be committed to St. Elizabeths and by a court order, and his guardianship can not be transferred except by a court order.

"But," Mr. Madden subsequently explained, "he has no right to continue his practice of law after becoming District commissioner. He should have divested himself of the guardianship of all of his charges when he took office."

Mr. Madden said that he certainly planned to inquire into the charges, but declared that he would do so with an open mind.

"Assertions are not always true," he said, "but when they are made in such manner as these have been made they should be threshed out in justice to both parties."

COL. JOHN COOLIDGE.

America's heart goes out to President Coolidge today. It is a strange and pathetic picture—the aged and lonely farmer passing away in his little cottage amid the snows after a long life of toil; and the son, occupying the most powerful office in the world, with millions of sympathetic citizens anxious to aid him, standing mute and helpless in the presence of death.

Father and son, they epitomize America and make all Americans their kin. The honors heaped upon the son were earned for him long ago by his father in simple and right living; and no honor conferred by man or nation will comfort the son more than the memory of his father's honest life.

Death is robbed of its sting when a man lives long, deals justly and walks humbly with his God. He falls as the ripe fruit falls, in its season, and is gathered to his fathers. Col. Coolidge has taught millions of his countrymen without dreaming that he was a teacher. The dignity and simplicity of his life have reminded Americans of the early days of the republic, when the builders of this country laid its foundations upon solid rock. He will sleep well in the soil of America.

The best cure for a man's loss of memory is to have his deserted wife inherit something.

NAVAL AIR GUNNERY.

In spite of the pessimism which has flavored discussions of the air service, both of the army and the navy, navy fliers have demonstrated beyond a doubt that the American airman is at least equal to the aeronaut of any other land when it comes to effective gunnery. Reports coming from the base of the Pacific maneuvers tell almost unbelievable tales of the accuracy of naval gunners. According to these reports five gunners of one of the seaplane squadrons under Commander Warren Child scored 97 hits in 97 shots while their planes were flying at a speed of upward of 80 miles an hour. The same report says that several other gunners of another squadron also made perfect scores in firing machine guns at sleeve targets from their seaplanes.

Commander Child believes that no navy air force in the world can show such a record for accuracy in firing. His men must indeed be the very cream of the personnel so far as gunnery is concerned, for it is stated that these identical fliers staged two air gas attacks against one of the destroyers of the Pacific fleet with perfect results. The attack against the destroyer is described as having been made with bombs of 500 pounds each, which were so perfectly timed as to weave a faultless pattern of gas around the ship. So well was this done that but for the general use of gas masks by the entire crew the ship would have been put out of commission.

Evidently, if properly equipped, the officers and men of the navy will be able to cope with the air forces of any enemy. Gunners who can make perfect scores while flying faster than a mile a minute may be depended upon to give a good account of themselves in any emergency.

What's all this talk about the government coming to the aid of corn? Up and at 'em, Wayne Wheeler!

HARD-SHELLS, SOFT-SHELLS AND PEELERS.

"What fools we mortals be!" exclaimed Puck. He is supposed to have lived long before deviled crabs were peddled along Newspaper Row in Washington; even prior to the time when Schneider, down near the navy yard, treated his customers to a bushel of "hard-shells" with a glass of beer every Saturday night. But Puck "sized up" the crabbers of tidewater Virginia just as well as though he had been born since the Appomattox surrender, for those crabbers are hiring lawyers to appear before the legislature of Virginia in an attempt to head off the proposed legislation which is designed to protect the lively little crustacean from annihilation.

The crab crop grows smaller, year by year. No longer do the restaurants sell deviled crabs prepared after the recipe of John Chamberlin at the rate of two for a quarter, with bread and butter thrown in. Instead a "devil crab" costs a dollar and he's a mighty little fellow at that. "Soft shells" are not served in place of the fish course at a "fifty cent tabble dote" as in Casey's day, nor can you send a dollar bill down to Mayor "Al" Howard in Annapolis and be sure of a gallon of "flakes" in return. No; the crab is disappearing from the waters of the Potomac and the Chesapeake, and all because the "dredgers" will not give the poor little beggars a chance.

United States Fish Commissioner O'Malley, backed by Secretary Hoover, has undertaken to give Mrs. Crab an opportunity to raise a family before being forced into the cauldron. The conservationists are behind the commissioner, and the crab-grabbers with their lobbyists and lawyers are lined up against them. Senator Holt, of Newport News, fears that 3,000 crabbers will be "thrown out of business" unless permitted to catch every hard-shell, peeler and soft-shell that may be seen on the surface, apparently headed for Fort Monroe, but really pedaling backwards, for all they are worth, toward Colonial Beach. If Mr. O'Malley loses out the crab will follow the shad, the buffalo, and the bobwhite into oblivion.

But the crabbers can't see it. They would catch and cook the lady-crab before she can lay her golden eggs. The future means nothing to the crabber. What has "posterity," human or crab, ever done for him?

Neighbors are people who trade you sympathy for the details of your misfortune.

PENNSYLVANIA'S POLITICAL FIGHT.

The Republican political plot in Pennsylvania is becoming daily more complex. It has reached the stage where the candidates for the United States Senate are indulging in mud-slinging. The Peppers, the Pinchots and the Vares are referring to one another in anything but complimentary terms. Senator Pepper labels Representative Vare, who opposes him, as "the Republican Jonah," and calls Gov. Pinchot "a counterfeit supporter of the Coolidge administration," whereupon the governor comes back in an open letter which bristles with personal allusions and charges the senator with bidding for "gang" support, which Mr. Pinchot declares has been definitely lost because of the candidacy of Mr. Vare.

Every Republican of any consequence in the State is taking a hand in this factional fight, the like of which perhaps has never been known in Pennsylvania. The Mellons, the Grundys, the Bakers, the "Hampy" Moores, the Fishers and the Beidelmans are all head over heels in the fray. It is the most involved political entanglement that can be imagined. A new angle has been injected into the affair by the failure of the organization or the "gang" or any other faction to unite on a candidate for governor. The State chairman wants Beidelman, the organization wants Fisher, and the Grundys are looking kindly upon the aspirations of J. Hampton Moore.

Politicians who bear the reputation of being astute do not know just "where they are at," but most of them will insist that no matter what the outcome Pennsylvania will go Republican in the election. Nevertheless, it is difficult for an outsider to understand how a campaign featured by bitter personalities, charges and countercharges can fail to leave great rents in the party. If it were any other State than Pennsylvania with its overwhelming Republican vote the casual observer schooled in politics would put it down at once that the Republican party in that State was doomed. But the Democrats, though they profess an optimism never known before, are admittedly so much in the minority that it is hard to see how in any circumstances they can win.

Dr. Dentinger, of Connecticut, reports that Gen. Dawes' "Melody in A" is just the thing for hysteria. Why the Vice President has not played his composition in the Senate is more than this country can understand.

TARIFF COMMISSION MINUTES.

Printing of the tariff commission minutes from 1922 to 1926 is progressing. They were ordered by the Senate, and doubtless will be seized upon by some persons in an effort to bring a partisan indictment against President Coolidge.

If the excerpts printed are accurate and authentic, there does not appear to be anything of any substantial nature to indicate that the President did anything not contained in the implied relations between the executive and the commission. The very terms of the law make it necessary for the commission to be simply a fact-finding organization for the executive. There is nothing whatever in the law, either the original or the amended law with the flexible section added, to indicate that the commission is a judicial or semijudicial body, although some of the commissioners appear to have assumed that position.

The public will examine and measure the printed minutes with partisan eyes, and judge accordingly. The real solution of the matter will not be any nearer after that partisan estimate. Congress and the President will always deal with the tariff according to their political ideas, and it would be unfortunate if they did not. The tariff commission should be abolished.

TO ACQUIRE PARK LANDS.

The National Capital Park association has been incorporated for the purpose of rescuing from exploitation such remaining lands within the District and its environs as may, in the opinion of the National Capital Park commission, be thought necessary for the completion of the work of beautifying the city upon the plans which have been approved.

Under the act creating the park commission it was understood that Congress would provide an appropriation in the District bill each year equivalent to 1 cent for each inhabitant of the United States. Had this plan been carried out the commission would have been able to expend approximately $1,100,000 yearly. But the actual total thus far made available has been only $600,000, with a like sum carried in the District bill for the next fiscal year.

The association has an authorized capital of $1,000,000, of which more than one-tenth has already been subscribed. It is the plan of the organizers to consult the park commission for the purpose of aiding it in acquiring control of properties needed for park extensions. These will be purchased and held until such time as Congress may make the necessary appropriations, when title will pass to the United States at the price paid by the association with 5 per cent per annum added. Precautions have been taken against the possibility of manipulation for profit.

INSTALLMENT SELLING.

Investigation shows that installment selling is a fixed business policy in this as well as in other countries. It has reached a total of more than $5,000,000,000 annually in the United States. It is estimated that 17 per cent of the entire amount of consumed goods sold at retail are disposed of in this manner.

Manifestly the old admonition, "pay as you go," has been discarded, and payment in pieces or in small monthly sums is the prevailing rule. It is interesting to learn that so far as tried in the commercial world, the plan has worked out all right, and comparatively few losses have incurred.

Altogether this is an encouraging feature, because it demonstrates that, on the whole, more people are honest and reliable. When a person is granted credit there is, as a rule, a responding manifestation of honor and decency in avoiding the abuse of that credit. In fact, credit is the very soul of business; and the successful extension of the installment-selling plan is eloquent testimony to the high quality of the average person seeking credit or accommodation.

While it is true that selling on time, and long time at that, ties up capital on the one hand and discounts earning power on the other, nevertheless this plan, now well established, has given thousands of people of ordinary means an opportunity to own their own homes and possess comforts and even luxuries of which otherwise they would be deprived. All this tends to make the great middle class of citizens happy, even if they must "rustle" to meet their obligations. It is an insurance against discontent and perhaps serious national trouble.

Approval by Congress of the bill for the purchase of buildings used by the foreign service will save the government considerable money. The measure provides for an annual expenditure of $2,000,000, and a total of $10,000,000. The United States has 584 foreign agencies. It has diplomatic establishments in 51 capitals, and owns only 14 of the buildings occupied.

POSTAL SAVINGS BANKS.

Postmaster General New reports that deposits in postal savings banks on February 28 amounted to approximately $134,996,000 as compared with $134,000,000 on January 31. It is not strange that Miami, Fla., led all cities in the rate of increase; but New York city led in deposits, amounting to about $35,600,000.

Increases in many of the larger cities indicate profitable employment of wage earners and added confidence in the government on the part of that class of citizens utilizing the postal banks. Many persons, especially those of foreign birth and after sad experiences in foreign lands, have faith only in a government bank, and use it to safeguard their earnings and savings.

The government makes some profit out of its savings banks, since the amount of money deposited therein is loaned to national or savings banks or trust companies—always to the highest bidder, with full security.

A balloon tire's will is soft, also. It never knows which way it will skid next.

MUSCLE SHOALS.

The joint committee of the Senate and the House which has been designated to receive bids for the lease of Muscle Shoals has a most important duty to perform, and the result of its labors will be watched with intense interest by the country at large. There are two plants which have been used in the production of nitrogen, but the methods heretofore used in each of these plants are looked upon as obsolete; however, it is said that experiments carried on under authority of the War Department have resulted in decided improvements on the German Haber method, which was that used in the smaller of the two plants, which improvement may be available to the bidder whose proposal is regarded as of the greatest advantage to the government.

The committee anticipates that there will be at least three bidders, possibly five, and it is expected that offers will be made for the use of the nitrate plants as well as the power developed at the Wilson dam. The Wilson dam is expected to develop 125,000 horsepower, of which one-fifth will probably be required to produce nitrogen, the remainder being available for commercial purposes. Through the utilization of the potential power of the upper reaches of the Tennessee river, now under consideration by the Federal power commission, the Wilson dam power production may be greatly increased.

Bids must be in the hands of the committee by April 26, and it is safe to say that no business transaction of the government since the close of the war will be watched with such interest as that which attaches to the settlement of the Muscle Shoals problem.

The Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By Will Rogers

The Worst Joke I heard today was told to me by Frank Coleman, of Temple, Tex. Temple, Tex., is the home of all the present Governors of Texas. Ma and Jim are home folks in Temple. They are pretty near home folks anywhere. It is a mighty pretty little City. It cures everybody that is ill in Texas. It is the home of all the big Hospitals, and some of the greatest Surgeons are there. It's a Human Garage for the afflicted. It's the Rochester of Texas. But with all their uncanny Surgery, there was born in their midst Frank Coleman, and they couldn't do a thing for him, but he did what they couldn't. He changed himself from a hopeless, helpless individual into a self-supporting, independent man of education and usefulness. He was born with both arms off above the elbow. The strength of his lost arms went into his mind for determination, and he has buckled on his shoulders, hooks and clasps and various inventions, mostly worked out by himself. They don't have to do anything for him. He does everything that any normal man can do. He worked his way through college, supports his Mother, and is now a Candidate for County Judge, and if he is not elected I will never play Temple again. That's a promise, not a threat. But honestly, if anybody does deserve credit it's this young man. He is a keen, bright young man. I hope he prospers. Think of this boy with no hands, and some of us have nothing but hands and no head.

He had a little anecdote that he related to me. Down here in the Court one time, a fellow had been convicted of Stealing and the evidence showed that he had also stole before. The Judge was a sorter kind-hearted old fellow, and liked to let everybody off as easy as possible. The time come to pass judgment on the prisoner.

"You have been convicted of a serious crime. Now, just what have you got to say before I pass sentence on you?"

"Well, Your Honor," said the criminal, and his manner was quite jaunty, "you probably know how it is yourself. The more a fellow has in this world, the more he wants."

"Ah, ha!" said the Judge. "I see. Well, I am going to give you ten years at hard labor. How much more would you like to have?"

PRESS COMMENT.

Army and Navy Journal: And here's Gerald Chapman writing poetry in jail, and all they're going to do to him is to hang him!

Why Chicago?

Indianapolis News: Another thing that Chicago might investigate is why any one should want to live there.

Baltimore Sun: When you read that the market is "recovering," that means recovering from the fatigue of shearing.

Indianapolis News: If they take the postmasters out of politics, as they are again talking of doing, what is to be used to fill the enormous hole that will be left in politics?

Milwaukee Journal: There's nothing in the Volstead law prohibiting actorines from bathing in champagne, but that doesn't prove that the fool practice should not be forbidden.

Plenty to Cuss About.

Marion Star: The King of Italy is said to be conducting a campaign against profanity. If he can refrain from swearing, it seems to us about everybody else in Italy should be able to do so.

An Oversight.

New York Telegraph: The Travelers' Aid says 430,000 visitors enter or leave New York daily. If each of them gets away with one dollar in his jeans, that's a daily loss of nearly half a million that we let get away.

Japan's Chance.

Indianapolis News: Now that some Chinese rebels have fired on a Japanese boat, Japan is in position to talk about as she pleases when the powers get together again to decide how the Chinese shall spend their money.

The Impotent League.

New York Sun: The League of Nations has faced its first great crisis and has failed. There is no use blinking the fact or trying to explain it away. Confronted with a job of the first importance it found itself impotent and it has been forced to adopt the weak man's universal resort in such emergencies—procrastination.

The House of Commons.

Brooklyn Eagle: Impressive will be the celebration of the close of 500 years existence of the Swedish rigsdag, claimed to be the first real parliament of Europe. Of course, the claim will be disputed. Historically the house of commons in England began with 1295, under Edward I. But only knights were eligible and the really common people had no representatives.

The Whipping Post.

Baltimore Sun: It will hardly be denied that the public in this city views use of the whipping post with misgivings. Even in the case of a crime which is so brutal that no penalty seems too severe for it, when the court sentences the perpetrator to be lashed on his bare back there is question whether the ends of justice and the best interests of society are being served.

"Gen." Coxey Again.

Milwaukee Sentinel: "Gen." Coxey momentarily brings himself back into public notice with an address at the Chicago Hobo college in which he assures 400 "casual workers" that they are "the basis of our government."

This new dignity ought to add several inches to the hobo's chest measurement. The upper 400 may flatter themselves that they are the pillars of society, but the lower 400 are the basis of our government.

Eliminating Voteless Stocks.

New York World: Within two days two important industrial concerns, Southern Dairies, Inc., and the Servel Corporation, have announced plans for getting rid of their nonvoting stocks. Both companies have issued large blocks of Class A stock which do not confer voting power on the holders. These stocks are now to be exchanged for new issues according the full voting privilege. Prof. Ripley's work and the support which he has received from the New York Stock Exchange are showing their results.

Was Brazil a Stalking Horse?

Philadelphia Ledger: From a superficial viewpoint, it appears that Brazil alone was responsible for the final breakdown at Geneva. This conclusion, in the light of further revelations, will probably prove unfounded. Brazil's demand for a permanent place upon the League of Nations council may have been supported sub rosa by forces bent upon bringing a crash. Possibly Brazil was used as a convenient scapegoat for the sins of the great powers themselves. These points may be cleared up later.

On Pretending To Die

By GLENN FRANK

THOMAS DREIER, in his entertaining little four-page house-organ, The Vagabond, tells this engaging story of M. Mangin, a Parisian pencil maker.

Mangin was a contemporary of P. T. Barnum.

He was a master in the making of pencils, but a muddler in the marketing of pencils. His sales were insignificant, and the insignificance of his sales irritated him. Barnum caught his fancy and suggested a turn in his tactics.

Mangin turned himself into an eccentric figure, and Barnumized the business of selling pencils.

"He attracted attention," says Mr. Dreier, "by driving about the streets in an ornamented carriage drawn by two bay horses.

"With the help of a servant he changed his clothes in plain sight, substituting a medieval costume for his business suit.

"The servant played an organ that was part of the carriage and that attracted the crowd."

Mangin went philosohically about the business of making a mountebank of himself, saying frankly that he had grown tired of being unable to sell his pencils in the ordinary way after all the high quality and high craftsmanship he put into their making. He coined his mountebankery into money.

Meeting the great showman one day, Mangin told Barnum that he had conceived an attention-getting trick that would set more people thinking about his pencils than anything he had done before. Barnum's curiosity was piqued, but Mangin kept his secret.

A little later the press of France and England announced that Mangin, the Parisian pencil maker, had died and that his will set aside 200,000 francs for charity.

Six months later Mangin appeared on the streets of Paris and went about his business of selling pencils from his gaily decked wagon as if he had never been absent and as if his death had not been heralded by the press.

He quadrupled the sale of his pencils.

"You Yankees are clever," he said, "but none of you has discovered that you should live all the better if you would die for six months."

Mr. Dreier, pointing a moral to this engaging tale, suggests the value of getting away from our business for a while now and then, dying to our jobs, as it were.

The advantages of dying to our jobs now and then are obvious. Mr. Dreier points out one advantage—it enables us to keep our job in perspective. We never know our job for what it really is until we look at it impersonally from a distance.

Then, too, a periodic dying to our job is a handsome antidote for that egotism that blights efficiency. The man who has come to regard himself as irreplaceable in his enterprise is on the way out.

OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

(From the Cincinnati Enquirer.)

Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, patriarch of the United States Supreme Court bench, a few days ago celebrated his eighty-fifth birthday by walking to the scene of his daily duties, from which he had not been absent in 24 years.

Justice Holmes was a civil war soldier. He has been an associate justice of the Supreme Court since Roosevelt's day. He ranks with the abler members of the Supreme bench, past or present. He is an illustration of the fact that a man may, notwithstanding an imposing ancestral background, contribute conspicuously to the earned honor of a great name, of a splendid tradition. For Justice Holmes is the son of a great father, the beloved humorous, philosophical, human author of "The Autocrat."

The veteran justice is not disturbed by having arrived at "the summit of the years." He regards life as reality worth while. He is a thinker. Being a thinker, he knows that all things are relative in importance and effect. The present, to him, is good, because it is filled with opportunities for service—service of magnitude, service to society and to the world. In work he finds an all-compensating anodyne for the roughness of life and its inevitable disappointments and natural griefs; he finds it to be the sesame to serenity's imperial demesne. Recently he said at a Harvard class reunion:

"The root at once of joy and beauty is to put all one's powers to a great end—to hammer out as compact and solid a piece of work as one can, to try to make it first rate and to leave it unadvertised."

Has any one a better formula than this to propose as a pattern and guide by which a worthy life may be directed?

Keep the Libraries Open!

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I want, by The Post's courtesy, to speak a word for us homeless, decent citizens of Washington:

The public library and the Library of Congress should never be closed. They are the Lord God's "green pastures" to folk who can't even "play in yo' own back yard." The lonely room, the little room, the unbeautiful, shabby room called "home" by thousands of us, has no yard for its occupant. Yards, green grass, home, are not nominated in the bond when we rent a furnished room.

It is almost criminal to close the libraries. They are the prayer-book and the psalms and the doxology to many thousands. The dignity, the beauty, the glory of that Library of Congress are literally a God's blessing to us.

To close either library on Sunday would be a crime. To close them on holidays and Sundays at all, means many thousand hours of unnecessary loneliness and heartachings and wasted life.

Cruelty to Children.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A man gets 18 years for beating a 3-year-old child to death. Perhaps it may be brought home to many parents and guardians that beating a child is not necessary where parents are companions to their children, and use patience in developing their souls. Yet spare the rod and spoil the child apparently has a firm foothold in many homes. In most cases the writer has investigated for the last 40 years the so-called naughtiness of children is due to ill health, underfeeding, loss of sleep, nervous strains, and can be cured.

Times have changed since Solomon lived. Yet well-meaning Christians follow rules that would be discreditable to a subnormal dumbbell.

The writer knows of many cases where beatings have permanently impaired a child's mind and body.

If we can not be kind to anybody else, let us at least be kind to children.

Should a man knock a child down on a public street he would probably be lynched were there any he-men around. Yet we persist in treating children brutally. Why? Is it because of disrespect to the Bible or because we are cowards?

LOUIS HOGREFE.

Wets, Laugh This Off.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is my opinion that the vote columns of the wet and dry straw ballot now being taken in the large cities of the United States will be reversed when we hear from the great and good feminine vote of the country. You have only heard mainly from the men who want strong drink, at least stronger than the Volstead law allows.

In fact, what do men want with drink stronger than the Volstead law allows, except to get drunk? If they do not want to get drunk, why are they not satisfied with the law as it now stands; and why are they asking for the percentage of strength in the drink to be increased? Any one who wishes to have pure whisky may have it now under the present law if they actually need it under a physician's certificate. What else do men want with drink?

If men want the law changed they want it changed only to get drunk. And what good is a drunk anyhow? He is only good to make trouble in his family and molest the well-being of others. No one wants the drunkard. Then why change the law so as to allow him the stronger drink to make him drunk?

FLONZALEY QUARTET HEARD WITH SCHELLING

Pianist and Composer Ideal Combination, With Noted Quartet's Playing.

READS SOUL INTO WORK

The Flonzaley string quartet, which gave the first musicale at the White House last week, appeared in concert yesterday at the National theater, with Ernest Schelling, pianist and composer, as soloist.

This proved an ideal combination because the most striking feature of the program was the performance of Mr. Schelling's "Divertimento for Piano and String Quartet," with the composer at the piano. The composition was handled most felicitously by the quartet, while Mr. Schelling read the very soul of his work into his piano accompaniment.

As usual the Flonzaley quartet had a distinction of style and satiny tone in which the perfect synchronizing of the instruments was satisfying to the most critical ear. The divertimento has five movements. The fourth movement "Irlandaise," was greatly liked by the audience, while the unaccompanied third movement—"Kashmire Song" and "Berceuse"—also won applause.

In his solo numbers Mr. Schelling once more demonstrated his perfect mastery of the piano and his poetic conception of its music. The audience was kept on a high plane of interest and would not be content with an encore.

One of the effective numbers by the quartet was the "Andante Cantabile," Tschaikowsky, one of the immortals of chamber music, to which full value was given by yesterday's performers.

Bibles Issued in 1925 Totaled 9,069,120

Bibles issued in 1925 totaled 9,069,120, Dr. James H. Hyatt, of the American Bible society, announced yesterday. This is a gain of more than 2,000,000 over the number issued in 1924.

The majority of Bibles were sent to China and Japan, and were printed in more than 150 languages and dialects. In the District of Columbia 22,000 Bibles were distributed.

DEATH OF CONVICT BELIEVED HASTENED BY ROUGH HANDLING

Heart Failure Occurred When Man Was Being Dipped Into Vats of Water.

Birmingham, Ala., March 18 (By A. P.).—Evidence taken in the inquiry into the death of James W. Knox, West Virginian, indicates that he died of heart failure while undergoing corporal punishment at the Flat Top prison mines in this county in August, 1924, Attorney General Harwell G. Davis announced today in making public his findings.

In submitting the report to Governor Brandon, Mr. Davis said a "probable conclusion" was that Knox did not die from poison as was stated in the official death certificate and that Homer Anderson, hospital steward, who testified Knox died by his own hand, "had perverted his own testimony" and that Anderson admitted he made no effort to give an antidote, use a stomach pump, nor to send for a doctor.

In a letter to the state board of administration, Governor Brandon recommended that the Jefferson county grand jury "fully investigate the matter." The executive said the testimony was conflicting and that he "is uncertain as to whether Knox died from self-administered poison."

Cooperation Is Asked.

Governor Brandon asked the attorney general to cooperate with the grand jury in going to the bottom of the case. He said there was "no creditable testimony" to show that any responsible employe of the state had any part in Knox's death.

The death of Knox was attributed to self-administered poison in the death certificate on file at the camp, but evidence at the inquiry brought out that he had been ducked into vats of hot and cold water and beaten with a blackjack by Charles R. Davis, the warden. The testimony indicated Knox died while being dipped in the vats by negro trusties under supervision of the warden, and that expert testimony indicated that the fear and unusual physical exertion incident to the experience probably superinduced death.

Reports that Knox had been scalded to death were declared untrue, but it was stated in the report that after his death a metallic poison was forced into his stomach by a pump giving the impression that he had committed suicide.

Testimony that a negro prisoner had died two minutes after "Bill" Bates, a deputy warden, had beaten, kicked and stamped him was given by Grady Jenks, a former convict. Other convicts declared that at times the hills resounded with the wails of men under the lash, that threats to kill convicts were common, and named a number of instruments used in disciplining convicts. Among them were shovels and pieces of rubber hose with lead inserted in the handle end and coffin-like contrivances into which men were placed so that they could not recline.

PERSHING CENSORS FILM AT HOSPITAL

the archives of the War Department.

The men who crowded the Red Cross hut for the private showing of the picture agreed that it was a "hit." Some officers, however, said the West Pointer should be painted in somewhat less harsh colors. The picture, which is designed a "screen epic," will be released to the public in the fall.

The introduction shows Gen. Pershing leading American soldiers through the streets of Paris after the war and his triumphal return to this country.

Four False Alarms Rung by Auto Party

Police are searching for three men in an automobile who are alleged to have turned in four false fire alarms between 1 and 2 o'clock this morning.

The alarms came from Third and Indiana avenue northwest, Ninth and S streets northwest, Third and B streets northwest and South Dakota and Carlton avenues northeast.

MAN WHO KILLED 6, PURSUED, ENDS LIFE

the door Goins asked: "Did my wife tell George that my house was an old tin can and that she wouldn't live in it?"

"I don't know anything about my husband's affairs," she replied.

"Is it true?" rejoined Goins.

Mrs. McNoble repeated that she knew nothing, and wanted to know why the man came there to cross-question her.

"This is why," Goins exclaimed, and, drawing a pistol, shot her dead. One of the McNoble children was present but was unharmed.

Police had been notified of the shooting at the Podesta home, and when they learned of the second shooting organized to capture the killer. He drove away from the McNoble home and went north to the ranch of Alex Marengo, near Galt.

Slayer Is Leisurely.

His car became mired in a field and he worked over it for nearly an hour, witnesses said, before he went to the house. He walked leisurely to the Marengo house. Farm hands heard shots, and after Goins had left went to the house and found the Marengos, father, mother and daughter, lying dead. Two small children of Mrs. Dutro were not harmed.

The alarm was spread and sheriff's deputies between Stockton and Sacramento joined Stockton local authorities in the search for the slayer.

Goins' troubles hark back to years ago when he was accused of stealing horses near Galt. The affair is but a memory and the recollection of residents there is that he was acquitted. Marengo was interested in the prosecution, it was said.

Hide Podesta Sisters.

Goins was said to have brooded much lately. When Mr. McNoble, in San Francisco, was informed of the shooting, he expressed the belief that the man was insane.

Believing that Goins intended to kill the entire Podesta family, whose estate he had handled, police took two of the Podesta sisters to places of safety.

The slayer raised a minor disturbance yesterday in the law office of L. J. Smallpage over the action of his wife the previous day in destroying her will.

Goins has two daughters and a son by a former marriage living in Stockton. One of these, Miss Grace Goins, a local school teacher had been given a permit to carry a revolver as her life had been threatened by her father. He married again about a year ago.

RITES FOR F. A. WHELAN.

Funeral services for Franklin A. Whelan 73 years old, chief gardener at Mount Vernon for 45 years, will be conducted at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, in Holy Trinity church. Burial will be in Mount Olivet cemetery.

Mr. Whelan died at is residence, 3264 P street northwest, Wednesday afternoon, of paralysis. He was born in Georgetown, November 9, 1852, and made his home in that section of the city all his life. He was an authority on gardening, and belonged to the American Horticultural society. He was at one time vice president of the Virginia Horticultural society. In addition, Mr. Whelan was a member of the Knights of Columbus, the Holy Name society, and the Georgetown Citizens association.

Surviving him are his widow, Mrs. Alice Burdette Whelan; three daughters, Miss Lillian Whelan, Miss Lucy Whelan, and Miss Eva Whelan, all of this city; two sons, Franklin A. Arbuckle to Direct Marion Davies Film

Hollywood, Calif., March 18 (By A. P.).—Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle, one-time famous film comedian, has been signed by Metro-Goldwyn pictures to direct Marion Davies in her next picture, offices of the producing company said today. Since his banishment from the screen following his trial in 1921, in connection with the death of Virginia Rappe, in San Francisco, Arbuckle has been directing comedies, but always under a name other than his own.

MRS. COURSEY FINED $200 AND PAROLED

Baltimore, Md., March 18 (By A. P.).—Edna May Wright Coursey, convicted last week of manslaughter in connection with the death from flogging of her 5-year-old son, Eldridge, today was fined $200 and paroled in custody of her father for one year. Ralph T. Coursey, her husband, convicted of second degree murder Tuesday, has started an eighteen-year sentence in Maryland penitentiary. His wife testified at his trial that he beat Eldridge to death.

Judge Frank I. Duncan, in Baltimore county circuit court at Towson, said, in imposing sentence, that Coursey's trial had shown mitigating circumstances for Mrs. Coursey, but added he considered her guilty of wilful neglect. Her motion for a new trial was withdrawn.

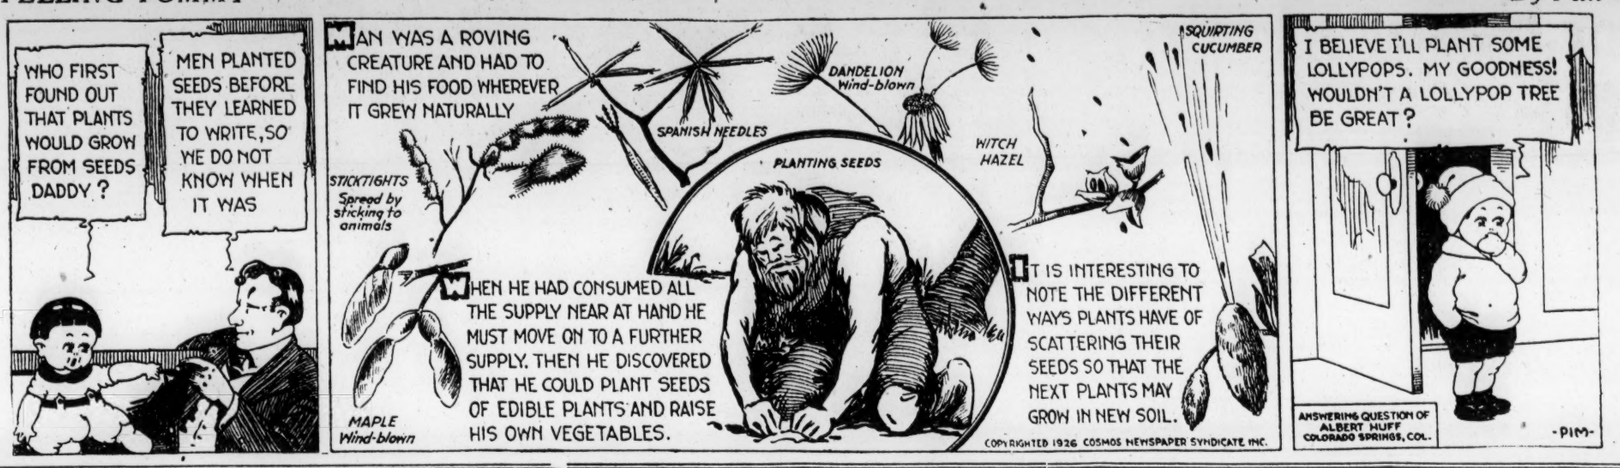

Her husband, in the penitentiary shoe shop, was enraged when he heard the sentence.

"It's a raw deal," he declared. "I consider it an outrage."

His one remark when he was sentenced was that "I would like to testify against my wife," should she be given a new trial.

For Head Colds

THERE are many ways to treat a cold in the head, but only one DIRECT way, and that is with vapors that can be inhaled.

The easiest and most satisfying way to get these vapors is to snuff a little Vicks VapoRub well up the nose, or melt a little in a spoon or tin cup and inhale.

The medicated vapors reach immediately into every corner of the air passages, soothing and healing with every breath.

For other forms of cold troubles just rub Vicks over the throat and chest at bedtime. It is then the body heat which releases these vapors.

SUSPICION AROUSED AGAINST LEAGUE'S LATEST ACTIVITIES

Official U. S. Circles Wary of Reported Plan to Discuss Reservations.

SENATOR REED ASSAILS BODY IN FIERY SPEECH

Avers Secret, "Treacherous" Understandings; Diplomats Cautious in Expressions.

By ALBERT W. FOA.

The loss of prestige which the League of Nations has suffered at Geneva has had the effect of arousing suspicion here against the league's reported plan of inviting America to send representatives to Geneva next September to discuss the American reservations to the World Court protocol.

Secretary of State Kellogg and officials declined to comment. But Senator Reed of Missouri brought the whole subject matter to the Senate in a characteristic speech. Acting on the theory that the time to strike is when the "other fellow is groggy," Mr. Reed assailed the league's latest activities, and turned his fire unreservedly on the league's present role in connection with America's bid for entry into the court.

The reported Geneva plan to invite discussion of the reservations caused some misgivings. Senator Butler, among others, could scarcely credit the report. But diplomats were not surprised.

Cautious In Expressions.

They were cautious in expressing themselves but indicated that the league had a two-fold object in desiring to have American representatives confer with the representatives of the league powers. The first object, it was said, was to ascertain whether the reservations could be changed in case of objections by any of the 48 signatory powers.

The second object, and from the league standpoint the most important, was to ascertain whether the United States government would make any secret or implied understandings as to how the reservations would be carried out, and whether or not the United States would bargain with the league powers provided the league took steps to overcome objections.

Brazil was one of nine nations composing the council, and her objection sufficed to defeat Germany's entrance into the league and the carrying out of the Locarno pacts. Few here believe that Brazil acted on her own initiative as the understanding in diplomatic circles is that she was made the secret spokesman for one or more of the European statesmen who did not want Germany in without Poland having a seat on the council at the same time. Any one of 48 nations may object to American entrance into the court with the proposed reservations. This, it is admitted, provides an ideal opportunity for the leaders of secret diplomacy and intrigues at Geneva to seek to bargain with America and force the payment of some price in order to assure unanimity.

Might Welcome Postponement.

In view of the information which President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg have been receiving relative to the Geneva situation, it is doubtful if either would be disappointed if America's entrance into the court were indefinitely postponed. Meanwhile it is becoming evident that the Senate will oppose the sending of any American representative to Geneva, and will likewise oppose paying the expenses of American delegations if they are appointed to mix in the European political brawl.

Senator Reed, of Missouri, announced to the Senate that the league was considering inviting American representatives to go to Geneva and discuss the reservations. There was a touch of sarcasm in the senator's voice as the mere announcement demonstrated that the court and the league are so closely related that the league council wants to censor American reservations to the court. In other words, it was pointed out by Senator Reed that America can only join the court if the league prescribes or indorses the reservations.

"In view of the fact that the American people in two great elections, and by majorities of seven or eight million, decided that the United States would have nothing to do with the league," said Senator Reed, "and as the people thought they had finally repudiated that organization, this telegram is interesting."

The senator was referring to a telegram from Geneva forecasting the league's intention to invite America to send a representative to confer on the reservations.

Invited to Outside.

"We are now to be asked to sit down outside of the league," Senator Reed continued, "and confer with the gentlemen inside of the league with reference to whether we will accept the jurisdiction of the court created, set up and controlled by the gentlemen inside the league.

"It simply illustrates the fact that you can not be half way in a thing and half way out of it; that you either have to join this league of nations and become an integral part of it, or you have to stay out of it completely and absolutely.

"Abe Lincoln once declared that a nation cannot remain half slave and half free, and I desire, with all respect to the immortal dead, to paraphrase that statement into this one: A nation cannot remain half sovereign and half subordinate."

Referring to Geneva, Senator Reed said: "What man is so dull that he does not know that the spirit is that of the gaming table, where each participant plays a selfish hand, thinking only of the emolument and profit to accrue to his own country."

The secret and "treacherous" understandings reached at Locarno between France and Poland and between Austen Chamberlain and Briand were discussed by Senator Reed.

"What American citizen regrets the fact that our country is not involved in this web of intrigue, the fruits of which are selfishness, avarice, hate, ambition and aggrandizement? Who is there who regrets the fact that as this miserable exhibition of trickery, fraud, sham and shame has been played out, the United States has occupied a dignified and clean position outside and beyond the artifices, the fraud, the cajoleries, the flatteries, the falsehoods and false pretenses of this once glorified body, proclaimed as the child of Christian civilization, and as presided over by the spirit of Jesus Christ?"

Senator Reed touched an acutely sensitive nerve in the present international situation by pointing out that the Latin-American countries, who are just as zealous of their sovereign rights as any nation on earth, must put themselves in the position of vassal states, and subservient to the United States, if they accept the American reservations.

Offensive to South America.

"These reservations," said Senator Reed, "are necessarily offensive to every South American country, and will provoke ill feeling against this country, because, sir, when the United States asserts that no question can be considered by the court without the consent of the United States, when we make that reservation in face of the fact that a number of South American countries have already signed treaties to submit all controversies to the court, in effect we assume the right to say that the court shall be closed in the face of those nations which have thus signed those treaties.

"We place them in a position of subservience to our will, which will be offensive to the proud Latin-American countries to our south."

Senator Reed analyzed the Locarno pacts and the secret agreements which wrecked the Geneva meeting before concluding his speech.

U. S. RESERVATIONS TO GO TO WORLD COURT NATIONS

erland concerning the assassination of the Soviet envoy, Vorowsky, at Lausanne, are not satisfactorily concluded and if Russia refuses to retreat from her position that she will not send delegates to Switzerland, the disarmament pourparlers will be inaugurated without the presence of Russia.

U. S. Agreement Seen.

The impression is general in Geneva that the council's action in calling the conference on American reservations toward the world court would not have been taken unless Washington, having been sounded, had tacitly agreed to some form of initiative by the council. Sir Austen Chamberlain brought the matter up by reading to the council a letter received by Sir Eric Drummond, secretary general of the league, from Secretary of State Kellogg, notifying the league of nations of the Senate's conditional approval of adherence to the court.

Mr. Kellogg included the text of the reservations and explained that the signature of the United States would not be affixed to the court protocol until the other signatories had signified in writing their acceptance of the American reservations and conditions as part of and conditions to the adhesion of the United States to the court protocol and statute.

Sir Austen told the council that the court's protocol of 1920 is a multilateral instrument, to which the signatories are parties. He emphasized that the special conditions on which the United States desires to accede to the protocol should be embodied also in a multilateral instrument. They could not, he said, be appropriately embodied in a series of separate exchanges of notes between the United States government and all the signatory powers.

Sees Rights Affected.

"The terms of some of the first five paragraphs of the Senate resolution," he added, "affect in certain respects the rights of States which have ratified the protocol and it is not usual that rights established by an instrument which has been ratified should be varied by a mere exchange of notes."

Referring to the Senate's reservation concerning advisory opinions of the court affecting the United States, Sir Austen said this necessitated further examination before it could be safely accepted by the other signatories.

"This paragraph," he said, "is capable of bearing an interpretation which would hamper the work of the council and prejudice the rights of members of the league, but it is not clear that it was intended to bear any such meaning. A correct interpretation of this paragraph of the Senate resolution should be the subject of discussion and agreement with the government of the United States."

The British foreign secretary continued that it should not be difficult to frame a new agreement giving satisfaction to the wishes of the United States if an opportunity could be obtaind to discuss with representatives of the American government the various questions raised by the terms of the Senate resolution.

Opposes Note Exchange.

Sir Austen then suggested as the most convenient course that all governments which received copies of the Senate resolution inform the United States of the difficulties involved in a separate exchange of notes and emphasize the need of a general amendment. He recommended that an invitation be addressed by the council to all members of the court and the United States for the meeting at Geneva September 1. This was unanimously adopted.

In connection with the disarmament meetings, the council took action intended to remove American apprehensions when it modified the program for the disarmament preparatory commission so that the league's permanent committee on military and naval matters will be enlarged for this meeting. It will have added to it on equal footing, military, naval and aviation experts of all countries represented in the commission.

The council also voted to enlarge another expert committee connected with the disarmament commission so as to include citizens of the United States, Germany, Japan and Russia, who are especially fitted. This is the committee on transit and other problems which the council agreed should be able to advise the disarmament commission on all technical question arising in the great industrial countries.

Finally suggesting the probability that the disarmament studies will be lengthy, the council remarked in its resolutions that the commissions' investigation would probably "extend over a certain time" and therefore it was unable now to fix definitely the dates for the convocation of its advisory bodies.

Revisers of League May Abolish Unanimity Rule

Geneva, March 18 (By A. P.).—A special commission has been appointed to see how the league covenant could be revised, in order to obviate a future deadlock such as has just been experienced and investigate the entire problem of the composition and methods of election of the council. This investigation may go far in revamping the league's constitution, for the commission is probably without restrictions.

The commission will meet at Geneva May 10, to study the covenant as it relates to the council and it was set forth in the report of Viscount Ishii, president of the assembly, that the "geographical principle," namely, that the different continents of the world should be represented, should not be disregarded.

Warned by the impossibility of the obtaining unanimity in the election of Germany to a permanent seat because of Brazil's attitude, the council apparently fears that the commission may be unable to make a unanimous finding, for it has instructed the investigators that they may file majority and minority reports if necessary.

Already there are many rumors current as to what the commission should do.

Workers Refuse Reported Plan of Secretary Davis to Resume Work.

Passaic, N. J., March 18 (By A. P.).—Twelve striking mill workers, including four women, were arrested today when 42 police dispersed a crowd of 1,000 men and women who attempted to pass the Gara mill. Eight of the marchers were allowed to pass the lines, and picket the mill and the others were forcibly driven back by mounted officers, aided by police on foot.

Five newspaper camermen and reporters and two news reel movie cameramen were attacked and clubbed by the police. Their cameras were destroyed.

At police headquarters Chief Zober, who has returned to duty after an illness, asserted that all of his men had been struck by stones, pieces of iron or blocks of wood during the melee. He said that five of the men required medical attention.

The demonstration followed addresses by Albert Weisbord, strike organizer, delivered here and at Garfield.

Plea Sent to Senators.

Tonight Weisbord dispatched telegrams to Senators Borah, Wheeler, La Follette, Edge and Edwards, again asking for an immediate investigation of the textile industry in New Jersey.

In his speech at Garfield, Weisbord said: "I want another picket line at Gara mills. You have the right to walk two by two in front of the gate. Chief Zoeber is out of bed. We'll put him back again."

When he asked the 1,500 assembled if they wished to follow the plan of Secretary of Labor Davis, to return to the mills and then arrange a settlement, they answered as one, "No."

(By the Associated Press.)

Three counter proposals for ending the New Jersey textile strike were submitted to the Labor Department yesterday by a committee representing the 16,000 workers now on strike.

The program suggested was a reply to the government's arbitration settlement plan and would provide establishment of a minimum living wage, to be based on previous determinations of the Department of Labor. Within three days after the establishment of this wage the mill management and the United Front committee, representing strikers would each select one representative to adjust demands.

In case of disagreement, these representatives would have authority to select an impartial referee to the end that any remaining disputed points might be equitably adjusted.

Harry Thaw's Former Employe Is Given Year

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., March 18.—While Philadelphia police were seeking for Harvey J. Price, formerly of that city, wanted here on a charge of forging the name of A. J. Price to checks, he was arrested today at Woodstock, Va., on a tip from Winchester police. Price until recently was employed by Harry K. Thaw at the Thaw farm. He is also accused by A. J. Connelly, manager of Kenilworth, Thaw's place, of obtaining money on duplicate checks.

Later in the day Price pleaded guilty and was given a year in the penitentiary. A charge of wife desertion was held in abeyance.

Sir Esme Praises Roosevelt Heroes

Chicago, Ill., March 18 (By A. P.). The two seamen of the steamship President Roosevelt who lost their lives in the rescue of the crew of the British ship Antinoe, were held up as exemplifying a spirit of cooperation which might make war impossible, in an address here tonight by the British Ambassador, Sir Esme Howard.

Talking to the English Speaking Union of Chicago, the Ambassador said one of the men was a German, and the other a Finn, and that they gave their lives "that the Englishmen on the Antinoe might live."

He expressed the wish that the action of the rescuing crew will have done much to bind together "all men of English speaking—no matter what their race or what their blood—into one common bond."

Four persons were injured yesterday, one seriously, as the result of traffic accidents.

Policeman James Bingham, 51 years old, of the Fourteenth precinct, was severely cut about the mouth and nose yesterday morning when the automobile in which he was riding collided with another machine at Connecticut avenue and Morrison street northwest. Bingham was treated by the police surgeon. The accident occurred when an automobile, driven by Miss Eleanore Greasely, 19 years old, of 3923 Morrison street northwest, collided with a police car operated by Policeman James W. Peters. Bingham was thrown against the windshield of the car and cut by flying glass.

Roy Washington, colored, 21 years old, of 447 O street northwest, a victim of an alleged "hit and run" driver, is in a serious condition in Freedmen's hospital, suffering from a possible fracture of the skull and internal injuries. He was found lying in the street in front of 3219 Eleventh street northwest.

Henry Johnson, colored, 24 years old, of 1238 Duncan street northeast, was possibly fatally injured yesterday morning when the tractor he was operating on a lot at Fifteenth and H streets northeast overturned, pinning him under the machine. He was taken to Casualty hospital.

Run down by an automobile driven by Clare B. Shillings, 22 years old, 4609 Ninth street northwest, as he was crossing Thirteenth street and Florida avenue northwest, last night, Joshua Douglas, colored, 38 years old, suffered cuts and bruises on the head. He was taken to Freedmen's hospital.

According to police, the coat was identified by Miss Catherine Fairfax, employed at 1317 H street northwest, as her own. The coat, police say, was stolen from a rest room in the building a few days ago. Murphy happened to be walking behind the woman on Ninth street and recognized the coat from the description given by Miss Fairfax.

MELLON SEEKS JOBS FOR 200 EMPLOYES

Orders Chiefs to Try to Find Places for Those About to Be Dismissed.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon yesterday directed his division chiefs to make every effort to find jobs for the 200 or more employes whose present positions must be abolished as a result of reduced appropriations.

Reductions in personnel will center chiefly in the office of the register of the Treasury and in the internal revenue bureau, because of a reduction in the work of these two offices. The 1927 appropriation bill makes a cut of about $1,000,000 for the internal revenue bureau and about $250,000 for the public debt service, which includes the office of the register.

In his order, Secretary Mellon directs that efforts be made to transfer to other offices in the department those employes who are threatened with dismissal.

Cosmopolitan Club Officers Are Installed

Officers, elected last week, were installed by the Cosmopolitan club in the Lee House yesterday. Those officers installed were: Ernest E. Herrell, president; James S. McKee, vice president; Michael Schaeffer, secretary, and Ferdinand Waldman, treasurer.

Walter Gawler, Michael Doyle, Paul Brandstedt and James E. Colliflower were installed as members of the executive committee. The first appointment by the new president was that of sergeant at arms, Lawrence Rubel was named for this position. Mr. Brandstedt, the retiring president, was presented with a gold watch, the gift of the club, for his efforts during his term as president. Boosters prizes were awarded Paul Davis and Ferdinand Waldman. Donors for the next meeting will be Eugene Paravane and Lewis A. Payne.

Fitziu Ill, Roessler Will Sing Monday

Marcella Roessler, soprano, of the Metropolitan opera company, will take the place of Anna Fitziu, soprano, who was to have sung the part of Elsa in "Lohengrin" with the Washington opera company Monday night at the Washington auditorium, but who is ill with influenza in New York, according to an announcement yesterday by Edouard Albion, general director.

The other members of the cast will include Paul Althouse, tenor, who will sing the role of Lohengrin; Ina Bourskaya, contralto, of the Metropolitan opera, who will sing Ortrude; Ivan Ivantzoff, baritone, of the Washington opera, who will sing Telramund, and Sigurd Nilsen, American basso, who will sing King Henry. Jacques Samassoud will conduct.

Antiblue Law Body To Voice Opposition

The executive committee of the Association Opposed to Blue Laws, headed by Dr. Joseph A. Themper, will appear before the subcommittee of the House District committee holding hearings on the Lankford Sunday observance bill, Monday, according to Linn A. E. Gale, secretary of the association.

This was decided upon last night at a meeting of the executive committee at 802 F street northwest. The committee appearing before the subcommittee Monday will consist of Dr. Themper, Linn Gale, Thomas B. Eckloff, A. B. Baden, Capt. F. L. Jones, David Eccles and Marx Lewis, counsel of the committee.

OPPORTUNITY

Are You Satisfied With the Amount of Your Pay Check?

The Washington (D. C.) Agency of The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York will inaugurate classes of Life Insurance Instruction and Salesmanship, covering a THOROUGH, PRACTICAL TRAINING, beginning Tuesday, March 30, 1926, at 8:00 P. M. at the Company's offices. Each class will meet two nights every week to complete the course of six weeks.

Ambitious, high-grade men, preferably those without life insurance selling experience, are invited to make applications to join the April classes.

Upon completion of each course, places will be offered to members who qualify. THIS AGENCY'S SYSTEM OF CO-OPERATION MAKES IT PRACTICABLE, THROUGH JOINT WORK WITH EXPERIENCED REPRESENTATIVES, FOR STUDENTS TO REALIZE AN INCOME EVEN DURING THE PERIOD OF INSTRUCTION. It is the object and purpose of this Department to develop successful life underwriters for this Company.

Life Insurance is today a part of the modern scheme of business and social life. Life Insurance practice, therefore, invites one to a more speedy financial success than most any field of endeavor, where HONESTY, ENERGY and BRAINS are ESSENTIAL PREREQUISITES.

Men who have come to a realization of the income limitations of their present occupation or employment will do well to seriously consider and investigate this oppertunity.

It is our work to SEE THAT YOU SUCCEED.

Conferences at our offices beginning Wednesday, March 17, 1926.

The Barbarian Lover

By Margaret Pedler

THE STORY THUS FAR:

Patricia Luttrell, daughter of a British resident commissioner, meets Kerry Lorimer, her father's "mystery man." A few days later he saves her from the maddened charge of a wounded tiger. Kerry reproaches Pat with being overcivilized. Her father is killed on the polo field and Kerry, acting at the wish of her father, escorts Pat to England, where she stays with her godfather, the Earl of Marchdale, at "Strangways." Here she learns that Kerry is nephew to the earl, but because of a suspected theft is banned from the household and his name never mentioned. Kit Wynsborough, another nephew and heir to the earldom, and Lady Mary, a sister, reside with the earl and Pat soon learns that the earl dominates the whole family. Kit is in love with the rector's daughter, but afraid to tell his uncle. Pat goes for a ride and meets Kerry "caravaning" in the neighborhood. He forces her to dismount and while he is putting up her horse a terrific storm arises. Shocked by a stroke of lightning which hits a tree near her, Pat is stunned and Kerry catches her in his arms. Pat finds she loves Kerry and he loves her, but because of the blight on his name he tells her that he can not marry any woman. She tells him she does not believe anything against him. On her way back from seeing Kerry, Pat is thrown from her horse, which shies at an automobile, and, landing on a pile of rocks, is badly hurt.

"YOU always think of everything, Mark," she said appreciatively. "I don't know what on earth I shall do if ever you take unto yourself a wife and I have to play second fiddle—and look after myself!"

Strown's confirmed bachelorhood was a standing joke between them, and she waited tranquilly for the usual smiling disclaimer of any intention to change his state. But this time it did not come. Instead he leaned against the chimney piece and regarded her somewhat absently.

He made a very complete contrast to his sister. Tall and slenderly built, with clean-cut features and a certain quiet air of distinction peculiarly characteristic of the well-bred Englishman, the only point of resemblance between them lay in the hazel coloring of the eyes. And here the difference betwixt brother and sister was determined by expression. Instead of the bright, humorous shrewdness of Peggy's glance, Strown's eyes held a mixture of grave kindliness and whimsicality that was oddly attractive.

Perhaps Peggy did not notice the absence of any reply to her remark. At any rate, she made no comment, but rattled on quickly:

"What a mercy it was that Dr. Beresford could tell us who Miss Luttrell was and where she came from, so that you could ring up the Strangways people. Who did you get on to, by the way?"

"Marchdale himself," replied Strown. "Apparently the horse Miss Luttrell was riding bolted straight home, riderless, and he was just preparing to send out a search party when I telephoned. I assured him the doctor had said she would be all right and only needed quiet, or I think he would have come rushing over here post-haste tonight. He sounded half wild with anxiety."

"She must have worked a miracle, then, and softened his stony old heart," commented Mrs. Bethune. "It's not like Lord Marchdale to concern himself much over anybody."

"That's because once, I believe, he concerned himself very much indeed over—somebody," returned Strown enigmatically.

Peggy opened wide eyes of astonishment.

"What do you mean? Give me a cigarette, Mark, and don't talk in riddles."

He complied, and having lit her cigarette for her, pursued composedly:

"It's a genuine romance—one of those romances which quite a lot of people you wouldn't suspect of such a thing keep tucked away at the back of their lives."

Mrs. Bethune puffed at her cigarette.

"I certainly shouldn't have accused that gouty old autocrat at Strangways of harboring illicit romance in his composition," she commented with vigor.

"There was nothing illicit about it," replied Strown, smiling at her. "It is quite a commonplace little story—one of those commonplaces which spoil dozens of lives. Waybrant told me one day soon after we had heard that Marchdale's goddaughter was coming home from India. He's acquainted with all the ancient history of the Wynsborough family, you know. Marchdale was in love with Miss Luttrell's mother, only, unfortunately for him, she was in love with some one else."

Peggy sat up abruptly.

"So that's why he has never married! Do you know, I shall like him ever so much better now I know that? I do like a man who knows his own mind and sticks to it. Most men nowadays, when they're turned down by one girl, simply miss a beat and go on to the next."

"Oh, he's not at all a bad old chap—once you get through the barbed-wire entanglements," said Strown. "Evidently Miss Luttrell's got through them."

"She's awfully pretty," observed Peggy dispassionately. "Didn't you think so, Mark?"

"When you imagine you've half killed a young woman because your fool chauffeur's omitted to sound his horn you're not precisely in the frame of mind to notice her appearance particularly," he replied quietly.

She laughed.

"No, I suppose not. I guess you felt pretty bad for a minute."

"I felt very bad"—shortly. "Now, don't you think you ought to go to bed? You looked fagged out."

"I am, rather. Yes, I'll go." She extinguished her cigarette and stood up.

"Good night, dear old boy. And don't let that blessed conscience of yours worry you any! Miss Luttrell is only very slightly damaged, thank goodness! She'll be quite all right in a day or two."

With that, Peggy departed upstairs to bed, but Strown did not immediately follow her example. Instead, he strolled out on to the terrace, palely washed by the light of the waning moon, and paced slowly up and down, with bent head.

The day's happenings took shape again in his mind. He could feel the rock of the car as it swung round the corner, see once more, outlined against the evening sky, the slim, boyish figure on horseback. Then came the sound of scrambling hoofs as the frightened mare whipped round, and the soft, deadly thud as that same slim figure was whirled through the air and tossed on to a mound of stones piled at the roadside in readiness for repairs, to lie there limp and supine.

Afterwards, during the brief journey back to Anton Roy, she had lain in his arms, now and again talking incoherently in the rambling inconsequence of delirium, but for the most part lying still and unconscious, her face like a white flower against his shoulder, fringed lids hiding the gentian blue of her eyes.

A faint, whimsical smile curved his lips at the remembrance of his sister's reassuring remarks. With that strange prescience which sometimes warns a man when the fingers of fate are about to weave a new thread into the loom, he knew that it wasn't his conscience that would be troubling him!

He stood still, staring absently out over the moon-bathed garden. It was not yet too late to seek safety in flight * * * to turn his back upon the great adventure.

The faint smile still on his lips, he re-entered the house.

"Che sara, sara," he murmured.

CHAPTER XIX.

The Dream Choice.

FOR the next day or two Patricia remained more or less oblivious of everything except the intense pain and stiffness of her limbs. Her whole body felt like one big bruise, and movement of any kind was almost impossible. Added to that, she had fallen with her foot twisted underneath her and a rather badly sprained ankle was the consequence. Even Lady Mary, who had hurried over to Anton Roy first thing on the morning following the accident, bringing with her a varied assortment of necessaries from Patricia's wardrobe, was only allowed to remain with her for a few minutes, as Dr. Beresford insisted firmly on the necessity of keeping the patient quiet, and anxiety at Strangway had perforce to be allayed by constant telephoning.

At length, however, the time came when Patricia was allowed to sit up in bed. Peggy Bethune's breezy presence acted on her like a tonic, and during the time passed together in the sick room a warm friendship sprang up between the two, notwithstanding the disparity betwixt their ages. Finally, the doctor graciously gave permission for the invalid to be carried on to a couch in the adjoining room. There was no question of her reaching it by any other mode of progression, since her ankle was still too painful and swollen for her to put her foot to the ground.

"Will you trust yourself to Mark?" demanded Peggy, coming in triumphantly with the good news she had wrung permission from Dr. Beresford for the move to be made. "I hope you will, because he doesn't want to trust you to the butler and footman!"

"Do you think Mr. Strown can manage me?" asked Patricia rather doubtfully. "I'm 5 foot 4, you know."

Peggy laughed.

"I don't think the length of you matters," she returned. "And your weight doesn't look as if it would be at all overpowering. I'll call him in." And she darted out of the room.

Apparently Strown had been waiting no very great distance away, for she reappeared with him almost immediately.

"I shall have to introduce you," she said gaily to Patricia. "I don't think you'll recollect much about your first meeting!"

Patricia shook her head.

"I remember nothing at all about it," she acknowledged.

"While I shall always remember it as about the worst five minutes I've ever been through," observed Mark quietly, as he took the slender hand she extended to him and held it a moment in his.

Patricia liked him at once, deciding with characteristic promptitude that both his inner and outer man were distinctly attractive. He looked about 35, and his clean build, the pleasant modulations of his voice, his clothes and the way he wore them all pleased that fastidious taste in her which, during the early days of their acquaintance, had been the first thing that Lorimer had outraged.

"We began badly, didn't we?" she said, smiling up into the hazel eyes bent on her.

"Indeed we did," he agreed. "So I hope you don't make a practice of judging by first impressions. You must at least give me a chance to wipe them out, in this case."

"I think you have wiped them out," said Patricia with impulsive generosity. "Or, rather, your sister has, for you. She's been so good to me since I've been here. I'm afraid I've given you any amount of trouble," she added, looking across at Peggy affectionately.

"Trouble! My dear child, nothing we could either of us do for you would be a trouble!" declared the latter warmly. "Most people in your place would be simply anathematizing us and our car and our idiot chauffeur for having been the original cause of your accident. We're horribly ashamed of ourselves."

Patricia's smile included both brother and sister. She loved the way in which they made common cause of everything—sharing each other's responsibility as naturally as though it were an accepted axiom that whatever applied to the one applied equally to the other, whether of praise or blame.

"I don't feel in the least like anathematizing you," she answered, addressing Peggy. "You and I would never have got to know each other half so well in such a short time if we'd been introduced in the ordinary conventional way."

"That's so," agreed Peggy heartily. "The conventions are the biggest barriers possible against making friends. Now, Mark"—turning to her brother—"do you think you can carry Patricia — or not? She herself seems to have grave doubts of your ability in that direction!"

Strown regarded the slight figure in its gay, embroidered blue kimono with amused eyes.

"I think it can be done," he asserted. "Will you trust me?" he added, stooping over the bed.

Patricia nodded, and the next moment felt herself lifted firmly and easily and borne into the adjoining room, where Mark deposited her on a big couch, banked up with cushions, which had been drawn near the window in readiness. With a few dexterous movements he tucked a leopard-skin rug across her knees and arranged the cushions so that they yielded the acme of support.

"There, is that quite comfortable?" he asked, standing back and surveying his handiwork.

She regarded him with smiling eyes.

"Perfect!" she assured him. "You seem to know just exactly how one wants things."

Her glance roamed over the room. In its quiet tonings of rose and gray it was a delightful room for an invalid, not overcrowded with furniture, and with only two or three exquisite pastel sketches breaking the expanse of neutral-colored wall—infinitely restful. Here and there a great bowl of glowing roses added a splash of vivid color. Patricia nestled into her cushions with a sigh of satisfaction.

"I think it will be a long time before I'm really well enough to be moved from Anton Roy," she observed humorously.

Strown's eyes met hers.

"I hope it will," he answered quietly. And then Peggy came in and the conversation slid away on to more general lines.

There is a certain type of person who appears to derive a mysterious and inexhaustible satisfaction from those virtuous platitudes which emphasize the fact that riches bring neither health nor happiness. Nevertheless, it can not be denied that wealth acts as a strong contributory factor toward the achievement of both these desirable states. And if ill health and a sorrowful mind are fated to be our lot in life, a plenitude of this world's goods goes far to alleviate the one and to distract the other.

Certainly the period of Patricia'c convalescence at Anton Roy passed very pleasantly, thanks to the fact that its owners were so rich that, as Nancy phrased it, it almost made her gasp to think of it. Everything that could beguile the dullness of that tedious process of "getting well" or that might contribute toward hastening it was immediately forthcoming, and Patricia, whose nerves were frayed by something more than the mere accident of her fall, was inwardly thankful for this period of forced inactivity, amidst surroundings that held no single jarring note, in which to take a fresh grip on herself.

Coat of All Coats

© VOGUE 8455

Dear Vogue:

Which type of coat will be the most popular this spring—and can I make it myself? ELEANOR.

The cape-coat will undoubtedly be the most popular, Eleanor. And you can certainly make it yourself, because the cape part of it hides that shoulder-fitting of yours which may not be quite up to the mark, since you're an amateur.

Choose a diagonal woolen, in beige, brown or navy blue, whichever you love best. Make it with or without sleeves. And be sure not to wear a too-trimmed hat with it, or a too-fancy shoe. After it's all done, get a tailor to press it; this disposes of any lingering suspicion of that dreaded "home-made look."

WIVES OF TOMORROW

By FRANCES M'DONALD

A Fifteen-Year Courtship.

DEAR MISS McDONALD: I am a woman in my thirties. Ever since I was fifteen years old I have known a man whom I have grown to love and who says he loves me. We had many interests in common, we both loved nature, fine books and music. For many years he has been most kind and considerate to me and my people. For example when I was studying shorthand he would sit with me and dictate until nearly midnight and then walk to his home two miles away. On many snowy and rainy nights he would be at the depot to break a path for me or bring an umbrella to shelter me on my way home, a mile away. When we had known each other for about 10 years, one night before we knew it we were in each other's arms. Love blossomed in my heart, which has grown for many years. The man asked me to marry him but I refused, as I knew I would be obliged to live with his mother, whom he supports, and who is a very disagreeable woman. So I refused, and told him I could not marry him then. He said he would ask me to become engaged to him, but it might be many years before we could be married and in the meantime I might see somebody whom I would love more. He asked, however, if we might still be friends and I acquiesced. I am of a very affectionate nature. I have never received any affection at home. I cannot remember when a member of my family has ever shown any affection toward me, although they are all fine people. So sometimes when the day had been one of trial, he would put his arms around me and comfort me. I felt I was doing right in this, as I knew there would never be any one else. One night much to my surprise he insulted me. I was very angry and struck him. He said that I had just done right, and told me to do it again. I looked down at the ground and saw a stick and hit him with it. It happened to be a briar and left a deep mark which began to bleed. I was filled with remorse, then—and we both cried. He seemed deeply repentant and asked my forgiveness.

I refused to be friends with him for about a year after that, but we later became friends, and about two years afterward found if we were to continue friends it would be necessary to forgive him again. I was heartbroken and left home and found employment in a distant city. He asked a member of my family for my address and has written to me time after time, pleading for forgiveness, that he realizes how fine I am, how much he misses me, and how he loves me. I am very hesitant about replying to his letters, yet I feel I should answer them. Do you really think he loves me? It seems to me that he can not. Yet it seems that his many acts of kindness and consideration in the past should be considered, but I can not stand the idea of being insulted ever again.

I would appreciate your help ever so much. I want to act the true woman in the case. I might add that I have been friends with many men, but that none will ever take this man's place. I have many interests in life, extensive reading, designing and many women friends, yet there comes the deep longing for my "friend" once again—and the comfort of his love.

MARTY.

P. S.—I might add that this man has a splendid reputation and never has been friends with any woman but me. What should I do?

Such utter lack of understanding of the facts of life seems almost beyond belief in any woman of 30 years. Marry this man and begin to live normally and safeguard your future against regrets. Life is a very practical matter and love is a part of life. You are already living in the past, which is the beginning of decay. Stop that fatal process now, marry your lover, and end a situation that is as morbid as it is unfair. That is my advice, and if you are wise you will speedily act upon it. His mother can board, as she would have to do if her son were dead, or just a bit more assertive of his rights. Sons really have a few rights, you know. And one of them is the right to live normally and love normally. This happens to be your right, too. Claim it. And claim the man who has loved you for fifteen years. Salvage your future. Live your life. Be normal.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

Questions and Answers.

TODAY I am going to print questions and answers right in the main part of our Corner story, and at the end I shall give a few "rules" in regard to letters.

Have all the Presidents of the United States been married? Our teacher asked us in civics class, and no one could answer. Your unknown friend.

MARGARET STRIPLING (age 13).

That was a pretty hard question for your teacher to ask, Margaret. I think there are many university graduates who could not say for certain. The answer is "No." There was one President, James Buchanan, who was not married. He was elected in 1856. All the rest have been married.

Who was Aesop, and who was the "Father of History?"

MARY L. HOWARD (age 10).

Aesop was a slave who lived 2,500 years ago. Part of his life he spent at Athens. It is not certain that he made up all the fables for which he is given credit, but he was certainly famed as a story-teller in ancient Greece. After having served two masters, Aesop was freed and went to the court of Croesus, the rich king.

The ancient Greek writer, Herodotus, is known as the "Father of History." He lived a century later than Aesop. He gave much of his time to traveling, and visited Egypt as well as other countries. The later years of his life were spent in southern Italy, and there he wrote the history books which have given him fame. We now know that there are many errors in the works of Herodotus, but they are interesting and worth reading.

I am always glad to receive letters from readers of the Corner, and I want to give these points for you to remember:

(1) Always tell your full name and address, as well as your age.

(2) Address your letter to me in care of The Washington Post.

(3) You may ask any question you wish about history, geography or nature, but your letter need not contain a question. A simple, friendly letter about yourself and your family, the books you like best, and the help the Corner gives you in your school work, will be very welcome to me.

(4) Remember that the Corner program is made out a good while ahead, and I can not answer a question in the Corner right away. I do my best to answer each letter by mail, but I have so many to take care of that replies can not be very prompt.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

"A GLORIOUS APOLLO."

ACCORDING to the fairly true story of Byron's life as given in "The Glorious Apollo," the part is a good example of the various possibilities growing out of weight reduction.

At 19 years of age his cousin, Dallas, said of Byron: "He has certainly thought him as unprepossessing as a young man could be. He was enormously corpulent for his height of 5 feet 8 inches, his features all but obliterated in a tide of fleshy tissues, giving him an expression of moony good nature." Dallas told him that his road to fame as "the Fat Boy" was assured. His tendency to obesity was inherited. His mother was described as being "impossibly corpulent."

Of this period in his life Byron is made to say: "My brain was as thick as my body. I was sluggish from head to foot" — meaning sluggish mentally as well as physically. He determined to reduce. He entered on a life the austerities of which far exceeded that of the monks. He lived on biscuits and soda water. A meal de luxe consisted of rice soaked in vinegar. He took Epsom salts. He took violent exercise and indulged in hot baths. "The path of the aspirant to leanness lies in hot water. He lived in it except when he was tearing about the country on his horse."

After he had returned to London Rogers, the literary lion of the hour, invited the aspiring poet to dinner to meet a group of arrived poets. Byron refused to eat soup, fish, mutton, meat, and to drink wine. His host asked what he would eat and was told: "Nothing but biscuits and soda water." Since there were no biscuits and soda water, they compromised on potatoes and vinegar.

The result of the abstemious life and hard physical labor was "The Glorious Apollo," Scott said: "The beauty of Byron is something which makes me dream." Coleridge said: "So beautiful a countenance I scarcely ever saw." Dallas said: "There confronted me the most beautiful man I had ever seen in my life. The blockish, moon faced lout was gone. He was haughty, clear eyed, divine. No higher type than that of the Byron beauty has ever been presented to the eye of man. His broad shoulders looked broader and his height greater."

Byron is made to say of himself: "I have been my own sculptor. It nature makes a man fat headed and thick witted, what is there to do but to thwart the lady? I expect to live like a monk all my life." But this he did not do exactly. We read of a later period: "His travels had brought back a faint trace of that corpulence he dreaded more than any earthly affliction. Therefore, he went back on a diet of rice and vinegar, and he took three Turkish baths a week."

When his villainies had dragged him to the gutter "he relaxed his Spartan rule and he ate and drank to excess. He became gross in form and visage. He had an unwieldy corpulence and facial obesity." At this period Leigh Hunt wrote of him: "His face is absolutely blistering with ill temper, and all the beauty of it is corrugated and made sore." Not long after that he died. "A heavy, piggish youth so modifies his diet and his living that he converts himself into an Apollo. He maintains his self-control and his perfect physical condition for about fourteen years."

JUST FOLKS

REASON AND LOVE

Love promised countless pretty things
While Reason shook his head.
Love promised coaches, diamond rings,
Silk covers for the bed.
Love promised kisses, night and day
Thus Love by love's deceived.
The maiden gave her heart away,
Believing and believed.

Now she had promised ne'er to sigh
And ne'er to wear a frown,
No tear should ever dim her eye,
No dreams come tumbling down.
Though Reason often whispered low
The souls of all are grieved.
Their love should never meet a blow
Both he and she believed.

Were love alone to rule the world
Disaster would ensue,
When pretty lips in rage are curled
Love knows not what to do.
When broken promises are cast
In ruins roundabout
Reason must hold the fortress fast
Or love is put to rout.

Love is the angel of the hearth,
Reason the warrior bold;
Love dreams of endless peace and mirth
And withers 'neath the cold.
But Reason stands to every blast
Of sorrow and dismay,
And when the bitter storm has passed
It laughs the tears away.

Keeping Your Schoolgirl Complexion

By IRENE CASTLE

Copyrighted 1926 by P. O. Beauty Features

The Folly

Of using just "any good soap" on your face

The kind beauty experts use themselves and how used

A SOAP may be good for any number of things, yet not be at all suited to the skin. The only kind of soap to use on your face is a soap made basically for that purpose. A good complexion is too priceless for experiment.

Before Palmolive came, women were told, "use no soap on your faces." All soaps then were judged too harsh.

Then came this famous beauty creation. A soap made by experts in beauty of rare cosmetic oils—and made solely for one purpose: to safeguard the complexion. A soap that changed the beauty methods of the world.

Leading skin authorities urge it. It has brought natural skin loveliness to more women than any other method known. In your own interest, use it according to the following rule for one week. Note the improvement your complexion shows:

Nature's rule to "Keep That Schoolgirl Complexion"

Wash your face gently with Palmolive Soap, massaging it softly into the skin. Rinse thoroughly, first with warm water, then with cold. If your skin is inclined to be dry, apply a touch of good cold cream—that is all.

Do this regularly, and particularly in the evening. Use powder and rouge, if you wish. But never leave them on over night. They clog the pores, often enlarge them. Blackheads and disfigurements often follow. They must be washed away. Just do this and keep your skin soft and lovely—wrinkles will be less a problem as the years advance.

Get Real Palmolive

Do not use ordinary soaps in the treatment given above. Do not think any green soap, or represented as of palm and olive oils, is the same as Palmolive.

It costs but 10c the cake!—so little that millions let it do for their bodies what it does for their faces. Obtain Palmolive today. Then note what an amazing difference one week makes. The Palmolive Company (Del. Corp.), Chicago, Illinois.

MODISH MITZI

New? Of Course, If It's Mitzi's

By Jay V. Jay

The lady holding the shoe is Cousin Mary, who is visiting Mitzi. Dear Cousin Mary has just commented on the fact that Mitzi's slippers with spike heels and two leathers combined are new. Just as though Mitzi didn't know it. Just as if Mitzi hadn't bought them because they were.

"Something else new, Mitzi?" asks dear Cousin Mary, waiting for Mitzi's confirmation. It's a clock, with the face in one corner and the rest of it a Chinois design. Any one could see that it is new, about the newest things in clocks.

"My dear," squeals dear Cousin Mary, "I know this must be new." And Mitzi has resigned herself to "yessing." There's no use explaining that it is one of the round zipper bags of patent leather and that the handles are of pigskin.

Cousin Mary is leaving. Mitzi is not urging her to stay. Mary cannot resist saying as she goes: "Is that a new dress?" And Mitzi gives her a final yes. New—as though everything that Mitzi has isn't new. As though any one should think Mitzi's belongings weren't. Mary had better go before she is murdered.

WASHINGTON EXCHANGE BACKS FRAUD STOCK BILL

Need of Measure to Protect Investors From Sharp Practices Is Expressed.

MARKET REMAINS DULL

By F. W. PATTERSON.

Strongly in favor of protecting the prey of wildcat promotions and financial highbinders, the Washington Stock Exchange yesterday voted to indorse and stand behind the Senate bill introduced by Senator Capper, chairman of the Senate committee on the District of Columbia, which has for its purpose the prevention of fraud respecting securities offered for sale within the District.

The action of the local Exchange was taken at a meeting which followed the regular trading session. With John L. Edwards presiding, the report and recommendations of the governing committee were presented, in which were embodied the findings of a special committee whose duty it was to investigate the measure. This committee had for its membership Eugene E. Thompson, of Crane, Parris & Co., chairman; C. J. Gockeler, vice president District National Bank, and Charles J. Bell, president of American Security & Trust Co.

This legislation will undoubtedly receive the whole-hearted support of every civic organization in the District as well as the citizenry, for despite the splendid efforts of the fraudulent securities committee of the District Bankers association, under the leadership of Eugene E. Thompson, chairman; the Washington Clearing House association and the Better Business Bureau, the absence of a fraud law respecting securities has sorely handicapped endeavors regarding wildcat promotions and activities of certain investment sharks in the city.

"The introduction of Senator Capper's bill should quicken a relentless determination throughout the financial district to render every assistance possible in providing this much-needed law," said a prominent local investment banker yesterday. "This law," he continued, "will do much to protect the vast number of thrifty savers who are now more or less at the mercy of sharp glib-tongued promoters."

Gas Light Gains.

Dullness continues the outstanding feature of the local market, with trading on the Washington Stock Exchange smaller in volume than for many weeks.

The attitude of traders seems to be a waiting one; for what reason no one has been found who could offer a satisfactory explanation, but despite the light dealing quotations continue strong with the price tendency upward.

Yesterday's transactions were limited to sales of Washington Gas Light, which was up ⅛ with shares selling at 72½; Potomac Electric Power preferred, advancing to 107½ on a turnover of ten shares; Mergenthaler Linotype moving up to 208½ on an odd lot sale, and District National Bank climbing 5 points to 210.

The only sale recorded in the bond division was that of Washington Gas Light 6s, in the smaller denomination or so-called "baby," which changed hands at 102½.

Group Insurance Written.

The group plan of insurance continues to gain in favor in Washington and group insurance protection has been established by four prominent provision houses. The group plan adopted provide more than 490 workers with approximately $435,000 life insurance, while each of them also is covered by health and accident policies.

The companies adopting the group plan are the Auth Provision Co., A Loffler Provision Co., Inc., T. T. Keane Co., Inc., and the Washington Abattoir Co., and the insurance was underwritten by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

W. T. Galliher Returns.

W. T. Galliher, chairman of the board of the Federal-American National Bank, who has been in Florida for the past ten days, returned to the city yesterday.

Following a meeting of the board of directors in the afternoon, the full membership visited the new home of the institution and concluding a tour of inspection many of them remained to assist in the reception of the visitors who continue to flock to the imposing building to avail themselves of an opportunity to see many of the facilities which will be closed to them with the opening of the bank for business on Monday. Open-house will continue today and tomorrow until 10 p. m.

Railroads Report Expenses.

Class 1 railroads during the year 1925 expended $754,000,000 in the form of capital expenditures for new equipment, improvements to facilities and extensions, according to the report which the bureau of railway economics will make to directors of the American Railway association at a meeting in New York today.

Of this amount about 45 per cent, or $339,000,000, went into new equipment, while the remaining 55 per cent, or $414,600,000, was expended for additions and betterments to roadway and structures. The 45 per cent expended for equipment in 1925 compared with 56 per cent in 1924 and 64 per cent in 1923.

Bankers Meet Wednesday.

A special meeting of the District Bankers association has been called for Wednesday at 4:30 p. m., according to announcement yesterday by Francis G. Addison, jr., president of the association. A number of important matters pending will come up for discussion and action and a discussion of the McFadden banking bill will follow.

Dennison Sales Highest.

Sales of the Dennison Manufacturing Co., in 1925, amounted to $16,100,000, the largest in the company's history, according to the annual report mailed to stockholders yesterday. Earnings after depreciation were $1,294,548.63, or more than three times the amount necessary to pay dividends of 8 per cent on first preferred and 7 per cent on second preferred stock.

The net worth of the company at the close of 1925 is shown as $10,653,967.01, of which all but $4,213,700 has been built up out of earnings since the present "partnership" plan was started, in 1911.

Power Issue Offered.

The new issue of $1,500,000 Southern Gas & Power Co. 15-year 6½ per cent gold debentures, offered yesterday by Hambleton & Co. at 99 and interest to yield about 6.60 per cent, attracted no little attention among local investors.

Proceeds of the issue will partly be used for payment of indebtedness, incurred in acquisition of substantially all of the voting stocks of the Lexington (Ky.) Water Co. and other subsidiaries recently acquired.

Tobacco Earnings at Peak.

The annual report of the American Tobacco Co. for the year 1925, just issued, represents the most profitable year in its history, the net earnings being shown at $22,288,596.85. This is an increase in net earnings of $1,448,902 over 1924, which previously was the banner year of the company.

The addition to surplus, after the establishment of a dividend rate of $8 per share in December, 1925, and a payment then of a special dividend of $1 per share, was $2,967,014.86.

Street's Professionals Are Bearish These Days

By S. S. FONTAINE.

New York, March 18.—It is the habit of the speculative public to be bullish at the top and bearish at the bottom; otherwise Wall street's system of barter would degenerate into a dull and unprofitable pastime. And if the public got in at the bottom and out at the top, it would be sitting in the private office back of the screen instead of in the customers' so-called easy chair.

* * * *

And as it happens, Wall street professionals are bearish nowadays. There's not even an exception to prove the rule, which may or may not mean that the market is close to the bottom of the present move, even if the bull market has seen its peak, which some people believe and some people doubt.

* * * *

But there is one feature of Wall street psychology that will bear scrutiny at this time. You can't get a word out of the so-called strong interests and their confidents about what the market is going to do. To a naturally suspicious nature that looks as if they are not distributing stocks. To a man of an optimistic disposition it looks as if they may be accumulating them. The nervous say, however, that something is hanging over the market, and the nervy say:

"Yes—stocks!"

And it will all come out in the wash later on.

Consolidated Laundries makes the announcement that it has acquired the National Family Laundry Service Corporation, Sea Beach Steam Laundry Co., Inc., and the Community Laundries, Inc.

This acquisition makes Consolidated Laundries, aside from the stock market, definitely the largest washing organization of its kind in the world. It will add to earnings and increase the scope of operations by giving the corporation control of twenty of the largest laundry units in Greater New York and New Jersey.

* * * *

Charles B. Kilby, president of the corporation, in an interview stated:

"In making arrangements to acquire the National Family Laundry Service Corporation, Sea Beach Laundry, Inc., and Community Laundries, Inc., the Consolidated Laundries Corporation has taken the first step in the policy indicated at the time of its inception, of gradually acquiring attractive properties for the purpose of enlarging its business and more definitely establishing its already dominant position in the industry. Few people realize that the laundry industry renders a public service and lends itself with great facility to expansion along the lines developed by our great chain store, restaurant, baking and public utility systems. The acquisition of carefully chosen laundry properties, in strategic locations, offers exceptional opportunities for profitable expansion through the introduction of operating economies, which always attend efficient mass production and distribution of a low priced and widely used commodity of service.

"We expect to announce from time to time the acquisition of additional laundry properties of established earning power, as it is found profitable to include them in our system."

United States Cast Iron Pipe & Foundry Co. starts 1926 with a working capital of $14,046,242, an increase of $2,493,763 during 1925. The company since the close of 1922 has increased its working capital by $9,811,552, due to the three years of steady and profitable business. Last year's balance sheet shows cash and Liberty bonds of $8,019,304, an increase for the year of $1,803,015. The accounts and notes receivable amounted to $5,042,920, a gain of $869,984 over the previous year. There was a slight increase in inventories to $3,355,243, against $3,175,310 in 1924. The company during the past year reduced its funded debt by $154,000, the total being $423,000 at the end of last December. Its net profits for 1925 were equal to $3.84 a share on the 120,000 outstanding shares of common stock after all charges and preferred dividends. This compared with $4.17 a share in 1924.

* * * *

A better showing was made by the Consolidation Coal Co. in the twelve months ending December 31 last. During that time the net profits were $225,600, after interest, depreciation, depletion, etc., equivalent to $2.25 a share on the $10,000,000 7 per cent preferred stock, and compares with a net loss of $2,125,650 in 1924. Surplus for the year was $50,606, against a deficit of $4,969,405 in the previous year. Total earning for 1925 increased to $19,839,109, compared with $19,263,184 in 1924.

* * * *

The Simms Petroleum Co. and its subsidiaries showed up well in earnings in 1925. The net in that period, after all charges, was $2,636,735, or the equivalent of $3.85 a share on the 684,492 shares of stock outstanding at the year's close. It compared with $2.81 a share for the previous year. The operating revenues, after deducting cost of raw material refined, were $8,643,836. Operating expenses amounted to $2,939,550, leaving a gross profit from operations of $5,704,286, or a gain of about 34 per cent over the like item in 1924. During the year dividends of 50 cents a share were paid on January 2, 1925, which was an initial payment, and on July 1 and November 1, last, the directors declared dividends of 50 cents a share, payable January 2, 1926. The net production of crude oil averaged 11,652 barrels daily, a gain from 11,077 barrels in 1924, and the number of producing oil wells increased from 288 at the beginning of the year to 413 at its close. The additions to property cost the company during 1925 $3,132,725, which included the cost of new wells and leases acquired or developed.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, March 18 (By the Associated Press).—Foreign demand on a big scale gave a notable hoist to wheat prices today. Export sales on North American wheat were said to have reached the largest total in months, some estimates putting today's amount at as much as 4,000,000 bushels. The wheat market closed strong at 2¼ to 3⅝ cents net gain, May (new), 1.66¼ to 1.66⅝ and July 1.43⅝ to 1.43¾. Corn finished ⅜ to ⅝ cent lower, oats showing ⅛ to ⅜ cent advance, and provisions varying from 17 cents decline to a rise of 5 cents.

Broad general buying of future deliveries of wheat began here as soon as the market opened. Sharp upturns in price quickly ensued, and with continued purchasing, especially on the part of houses with Eastern connections, the upward swing of the market persisted throughout the day. Accompanying the advance was comment from trade leaders that Argentine wheat this season is proving to be of miserable quality, and that this circumstance is the main reason for the enlarged demand for wheat from north of the equator.

At today's top figures, the wheat market here showed 4 cents jump since yesterday's finish, and had more than recovered from recent losses. Offerings were light all day, consisting chiefly of sales to realize profits. Higher quotations at Liverpool helped to stimulate buying here, and so too did evidence of more active domestic milling demand both in Chicago and St. Louis. On the other hand Omaha reported that demand there for cash wheat was slow, with the trading basis 1 to 2 cents lower. Some notice was taken, too, of the fact that primary domestic arrivals of wheat today were larger than was the case either a week or a year ago. Crop reports about United States winter wheat continued favorable.

Although at first, corn sympathized a little with wheat strength, the corn market later became weak as a result of selling out on the part of the holders who had expected corn prices to be more responsive. Oats were steady but inactive.

In line with hog values and with corn, the provision market averaged lower.

MANY PRICES REBOUND AFTER EARLY REACTION

RAILS, SPECIALTIES HIT

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, March 18.—Further pool liquidation and bear attacks on certain stocks and groups of stocks drove prices downward again today on the New York Stock Exchange. In numerous instances declines were sharp, as, for example, a 16-point drop in American Can and one of 9⅝ in American Hide & Leather preferred; and over a broad list recessions ranged from a point to 6 points or so. In many cases prices reached new low ground for the year.

In the last hour, however, a spirited rally occurred as a result of short covering and buying by investors who have been flocking to Wall street in large numbers in search of bargains. Then it was revealed that prices of a number of shares could rebound as easily as they had previously declined. But the recovery was by no means general. The floating supply of many issues has been depleted by the cash purchases made in the largest volume in the history of the street. The public evidently has plenty of money for investment in stocks and is not afraid to buy them. One interpretation which can be put on the eagerness of investors to take up shares is that they feel confidence in the business outlook.

Many men in the financial district had hoped the market would be stimulated this morning by the overnight news that three of the so-called Van Sweringen roads had declared extra dividends late yesterday—the Chesapeake & Ohio, the Hocking Valley and the New York, Chicago & St. Louis. In addition the first two companies raised their regular dividend rates. The last named road's stock rose 5 points early, but lost all its gain before the close. Chesapeake & Ohio finished nearly 4 points under the day's best, but 1¾ net higher. Quite generally other rails were easier, Atlantic Coast Line losing 5 points further, Pittsburgh & West Virginia, 6⅛; Canadian Pacific, Lackawanna and others, 2 points; Seaboard Air Line, 2⅞, and so on.

From the outset, instead of starting a rally, the Van Sweringen road's dividend announcements were used as a selling basis for industrial shares which should have been liquidated on the first big break, but were held over until the market was in a better condition to take them. Neither good news nor easy money—the rate for call loans continued unchanged at 4¼ per cent—availed to save those distressed holdings. They had to be sold.

The high-priced rails and specialties were the hardest hit. Can, old stock, collapsed to a new low price for the year and failed to come back at all. Losses from 3 to 5 points were scored by General Motors, General Electric, Texas Gulf Sulphur, Chicago Pneumatic Tool, International Match preferred, both Commercial Solvents issues, Nash Motors, Mack Trucks, Jordan Motor, Hudson, Sloss-Sheffield Steel, United States Cast Iron Pipe, Ward Baking "A" and "B," Woolworth, Stromberg Carburetor, Savage Arms, Allied Chemical, Advance-Rumely preferred, American Smelting, General Asphalt, American Can, new stock, and many others.

United States Steel common recovered fractionally, but finished 1¼ off. Oils came back better than most groups. United Fruit was a strong feature at the close, finishing 3½ points net higher after having been 1½ net lower in the forenoon. Central Leather and Barnet Leather, General Railway Signal, Sherwin Williams preferred and New York Dock were others to finish at moderate advances. National Cloak & Suit common recovered 2 points and the preferred 8 points.

The money market's feature was the large offerings of time money at 4½ per cent for all maturities up to 6 months. Until last week the rate was 4¾ to 5 per cent.

WALL STREET GOSSIP

New York, March 18 (By A. P.). Empire Power Corporation declared an initial quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share on the $6 cumulative preferred stock, payable April 1 to stockholders of record March 20.

Filkin Utilities, Inc., public utility managers, today announced the purchase of the Royal Insurance Co. building at 84 William street on the northeast corner of Maiden lane. It is a sixteen-story structure, valued at $3,000,000.

The White Sewing Machine Corporation reports earnings for 1925 after depreciation, but before interest and taxes of $1,348,796.82, as against $905,737.52 in 1924. After deducting interest on the debentures outstanding and taxes at the 13 per cent rate the balance is equal to $9.65 per share on the 100,000 shares of preference stock outstanding.

Three seats on the New York Stock Exchange were sold today for a total of $445,000, two at $150,000 each, the previous high record price, and the other at $145,000. Gustav Epstein, of San Francisco, and Sidney M. Sternbach, of New York, paid the high figure. J. Carson Moore obtained membership for $5,000 less. Sternbach sold his seat a few months ago for $150,000 and bought it back today at the same figure.

Compared with an average of less than 50 per cent at the beginning of the year, operations at the mills of the American Steel Foundries are steadily increasing and will reach an average of 75 per cent this month, R. L. Lamont, president, informed stockholders at the annual meeting today. He said the company was comfortably booked for several months. Retiring directors were reelected.

Net income of the Midvale Co. for 1925 rose to $394,156 from $190,861 in 1924. This is equal to $1.97 a share on the no par value stock against 95 cents a share the year before. The year's sales were $6,163,752, compared with $5,411,185 in 1924.

New common shares of MacAndrews & Forbes Co., a former subsidiary of the American Tobacco Co., today were placed on a $2.60 annual dividend basis. Payments were made at the annual rate of $10 a share before the stock recently was split up on a four-for-one basis. The new quarterly dividend of 65 cents a share is payable April 15 to stock of record March 31.

The consolidated statement of American Brown Boverie Electric Corporation and associated companies for 1925 shows net profit of $1,567,000, after charges, but before Federal taxes. Current assets totaled $12,899,872, including $4,958,784 cash, and government securities and current liabilities, $1,036,529.

Net income of All-America Cables for 1925 was $3,808,884, equal to $14.11 a share on the capital stock against $3,589,038, or $13.34 a share in 1924.

Public offering will be made tomorrow of $3,000,000 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock of Bloomingdale Brothers, Inc., priced at $103 a share and accrued dividends, and 48,000 shares of common stock, at $32.50 a share. The present owners of the department store will own a large majority of the common and a substantial block of the preferred shares.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, March 18 (By A. P.).—Prospects for cold rains in the South had a sustaining influence in the cotton market today and prices held within a few points either way of yesterday's closing quotations. After selling off to 18.15 at the start, July contracts rallied to 18.26 and closed at 18.18, the general market closing steady net unchanged to 2 points lower.

The market opened steady at a decline of 1 point to an advance of 3 points. Selling on the relatively easy showing of Liverpool worked prices off to 18.62 for May and 17.51 for October during the first few minutes, or 1 to 4 points net lower. The unfavorable weather outlook checked further selling, however, and the market turned upward at midday, May advancing to 18.74 and October to 17.58 or 5 to 8 points net higher. The demand, which was attributed chiefly to covering by shorts, tapered off at these figures and reactions occurred later under Southern, local and Wall Street selling. The latter was considered a reflection of the unsettled ruling of the stock market, while part of the Southern selling was attributed to hedging. Last prices were within a point or two of the lowest on most positions.

It was reported that a private authority estimated the ginning from the growth of 1925 at 16,163,000 bales. The government's December crop estimate, it was recalled, was 15,603,000, but in bales of 500 pounds gross weight, while the ginning figures are in running bales, counting round as half.

The report of the Census Bureau on ginning for the season is scheduled for publication Saturday. Today's private figures had no apparent effect on the market, which according to local brokers, has fairly well adjusted its calculations to a crop of around 16,000,000 bales.

Exports for the day were 14,978 bales, making 6,343,550 so far this season. Port receipts today, 15,703. U. S. port stocks, 1,229,986.

NATS PITIFUL AGAINST PHILS, TAKE 13-2 BEATING

Veterans Bid For Places In Majors

Witt, Tobin, Uhle and Wamby Staging Comebacks.

Dodgers Follow Plan of Reconstruction Used by Nats.

NEW YORK, March 18 (By A. P.).—Come-back hopes among the veterans as well as the ambitions of rookies are flaring up under southern skies as the major league clubs swing into the home stretch of their training.

Brooklyn has taken a leaf from Washington's successful experiences of the past two years by attempting to accomplish much of the Robins' reconstruction program with seasoned material.

Whitey Witt, erstwhile Yankee outfielder, is making a strong bid for the centerfield post against Elmer Cox, a comparative youngster, while Rabbit Maranville, who has traveled pretty well around the National League circuit, is seeking an infield job. Jess Barnes, former New York and Boston twirler, also is showing signs of a come-back, while Douglas McWeeny, of whom much is expected by Brooklyn, pitched his way back to the majors after being shunted to the Pacific coast league by the White Sox.

AMONG Washington's veterans, Johnny Tobin, released by the Browns, shows signs of regaining old-time form and a regular job. Roger Peckinpaugh has a strong rival for the shotstop job in Buddy Myer, but Peck will be at his regular station when the season opens.

Bill Wambsganss, who has seen service with Cleveland and Boston, may land the second base job with the Athletics, while Everett Scott, tagged as "through" by the Yankees and Washington, is giving younger rivals a battle for the shortstop berth with the White Sox.

Manager Tris Speaker, of Cleveland, has high hopes of a pitching come-back by George Uhle. The veteran right-hander dropped off in 1924 and 1925 after a great season in 1923 when he won 26 games, but has been showing much improved form in the south.

Dorothy Doyle Wins Tampa Golf Tourney

Tampa, Fla., March 18 (By A. P.).—Miss Dorothy Doyle, of Philadelphia, will play Mrs. C. M. Cogan, of Tampa, in the finals of the Tampa board of trade annual woman's golf tournament to be held here tomorrow.

Miss Doyle defeated Mrs. H. C. Nobels, of Tampa, 4 and 3, and Mrs. Cogan won from Mrs. E. C. Berryman, Tampa, 5 and 4, in the semi-finals today.

in the Press Box with Baxter

THERE are persons in this city who are of the opinion that this column is sadly deficient in knowledge and interest when it comes to certain sport activities. Among these is George Cox, who will acknowledge, if you press the question, that he is the "noted billiard referee." Mr. Cox took considerable pains at one time in convincing this column that the game of "pool" no longer exists and that it has been supplanted by "pocket billiards." For purposes of publication this column yielded to the persistency and insistence of Mr. Cox, an act which has no bearing whatever on this column's private opinion that the two games are one and the same.

In the pursuit of the missionary work in which Mr. Cox is engaged, and which he regards as a sacred duty, he escorted to this column's lair Charles C. Peterson, who is a more "noted referee" even than Mr. Cox himself in matters that pertain, to quote Mr. Cox again, to the "green cloth game."

A few moments' conversation with Mr. Peterson developed the fact that as a pastime billiards is the hot house flower of all sports. This was revealed while Mr. Peterson was explaining that conditions were not ideal during the recent match between Hageniacher and Schaefer. There were drafts, it seems, and billiards in its highest form can not be played except under atmospheric conditions that are not variable.

In particularizing on this phenomenon Mr. Petersen said that the principal necessity for an even temperature arose due to the sensitiveness of the ivory balls. He said that in the amateur billiard tournament in Philadelphia no less than five of the red balls split during play because of variations in the heat maintained in the room where play was staged.

MR. PETERSEN blamed Schaefer's showing in his match with Hagenlacher to some extent on imperfect condition, and expressed the belief that despite the German's victory the American player is still the best in the game under ideal conditions.

The billiard ideal is, however, hard to reach. Mr. Petersen said that it is approximated in the regulation billiard room, where exhaust fans provide a change of air, but that it can never be approached in hotel parlors where many championship matches are staged, due to the fact that artificial ventilation brings in many vagrant air currents. The ideal would be a glass cage

Nats Release 3 Recruits to Barons

Joyce, McGee and Jones Are Sent to Birmingham.

2 Options Retained; Another Pair Will Be Freed.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

TAMPA, March 18.—Boy Scout and Social Secretary Joe Engel this morning arrived here and he and Manager Harris watched the workout from a box in the stands while discussing "futures" for the Nationals. In addition to getting a report as to any promising material the scout has his eye upon, Engel's advice was sought as to the best place to send some of the surplus ivory for polishing.

The question of wisely placing good prospects is seriously considered these days by the big-league bosses. Some minor-league pilots teach the youngsters something and do not work them to death, this especially applying to the cases of pitchers. Others know nothing at all and ruin, rather than help, the youngsters sent them. This being the case, Harris naturally wants to make sure that the talent he is figuring on as likely to be about ready next spring is placed in proper hands.

A trio of youngsters was given their walking papers this morning, First Baseman Frank McGee, Pitcher Ray Joyce and Outfielder Buck Jones being ordered to report to Birmingham in payment for "Stuffy" Stewart and Tex Jeanes. As this was Joyce's third big-league trial, baseball rules force the Nats to relinquish all claims on him, but options have been retained on the other two.

JOYCE has shown up exceptionally well in the exhibition games he has pitched, but Manager Harris is convinced that his repertoire is not large enough. He is strictly a curve ball flinger and it seems to be the accepted major league rule that a fast one also is needed and Ray lacks this.

With the two first-sacking Joes, Judge and Harris, going great guns, McGee did not have a chance to hang on as a doorway guardian this year, but conditions may be changed in 1927. Although a natural hitter, Jones is believed to be too green this year and he, too, will have a better chance with another year's experience behind him.

One or two others are expected to "get the gate" before long, but definite decisions have not yet been made regarding them.

On his showing last year, and when he first reported here a few weeks ago, it looked very much as though Harry Kelly's case would be similar to that of Joyce's, and his lack of speed would cost him his job with the Harrismen. "The Kid," however, is beginning to let out, and stands an excellent chance of being retained. He has a fine curve, including a finger-nail ball, which is almost unhittable, while his control is fairly good.

Lefty Thomas, who bears the reputation of being most generous with passes, seems to be tightening up considerably. In the eight frames he has pitched this spring he has walked but one. As "Hookie" has everything, including dazzling speed, continued good control will make him a mighty valuable man.

ON the Nats' return visit to the Phils at Bradenton tomorrow, Marberry, Ogden and Morrell will do the flinging, while three veterans—Coveleskie, Ruether and Bush—will get the call against the Giants in Sarasota on the following day.

Jack Bentley played first base for the Fletcher-led team this afternoon in fine style. He makes quite a target for the infielders to shoot at. He probably will alternate between the box and doorway during the coming season. While doing this stunt for Baltimore in 1921, he led both flingers and first sackers.

Golf Tract Rejected By Washington Club

The board of governors of the Washington Golf and Country club last night rejected a proposition for the purchase of a 44-acre tract of land adjacent to the club.

It had been suggested that the club buy the land which would be available for use as a nine-hole practice course.

RISKO FIGHTS CHAMPION TONIGHT

Berlenbach to Meet Heavy Cleveland Boxer at Garden.

NEW YORK, March 18 (By A. P.).—Paul Berlenbach, world's light heavyweight champion, will make a bid for heavyweight honors tomorrow night at Madison Square Garden with Johnny Risko, rugged Cleveland heavyweight, as his opponent over the 10-round route.

The 175-pound champion, fast outgrowing his own division, was given permission by the state athletic commission to take on heavier opponents on promising to meet the winner of the Jack Delaney-Mike McTigue bout, in which Delaney scored a technical knockout over his Irish opponent.

Risko's first appearance in New York early this year resulted in losing a judge's verdict to Delaney. His record includes a knockdown of Gene Tunney and a victory on points over young Bob Fitzsimmons.

Berlenbach under the rules of the commission must fight at 175 pounds or under, which will give the Clevelander an advantage of more than 15 pounds.

Two 10-rounders will precede the feature match. Tony Vaccarelli and Joey Silvers, both of New York, meet in the first one and "Chick" Suggs of New Bedford, Mass., faces Dominick Petrone, former amateur flyweight champion, in the other.

East Potomac Links To Be Opened Today

East Potomac park will be the first public links golf course ready for the unattached player this year. Early tomorrow morning courses B and D will be thrown open for the new season. The nine-hole course, which was inaugurated last summer, is not in readiness. It will be another week before play can be permitted on that layout.

Monthly tickets purchased at East Potomac Park during the month of March will be good until May 3. All season tickets will be interchangeable with the Rock Creek course this year. Players holding season tickets at East Potomac park will have the privilege of playing the Rock Creek park course without additional charge.

The bus service will be in use again. Buses of the Capital Traction Co. will leave the southeast corner of Fifteenth and Pennsylvania avenue northwest every half hour during the spring season. Later on, as the season gets under way, a fifteen-minute schedule will be maintined.

GODDARD KNOCKED OUT.

London, March 18 (By A. P.).—Phil Scott retained his title as heavyweight champion of Great Britain by knocking out Frank Goddard, a former Britain heavyweight champion, in the third round tonight. The match was at Albert hall.

3 Changes in Gridiron Rules Contemplated

New York, March 18 (By A. P.). Although no radical changes are forecast, college football rule makers, representing all sections of the country, will consider at least three important sections in their two-day conference, Friday and Saturday.

The proposals slated for discussion involve the forward pass, the point after touchdown and the addition of another field official to aid in detecting interference with forward pass receivers, the opinion prevails among officials that none will get beyond the stage of discussion.

Tomorrow night's session will be confined to the annual election of officers, the opponent of committees and the informal discussions of the problems which confront the committee. The actual work of revising the code will take place Saturday.

Court Orders Bass' Ring Purse Returned

Cleveland, Ohio, March 18 (By A. P.).—The Cleveland boxing commission today was ordered by common pleas court to deliver to Benny Bass, Philadelphia, featherweight boxer, $5,004, his share of a purse in his recent bout here with Pete Sarmiento. The commission had forfeited Bass' ruling that the boxer had committed an intentional foul.

Matt Brock, the referee, the only witness, testified the low blow was unintentional.

First-Game Tickets Draw Fans to Park

Hundreds of fans were on hand early yesterday morning when tickets for the opening ball game to be played here April 13 between Washington and Philadelphia were placed on sale at the Georgia avenue grounds.

Though the fans were eager to get the tickets that were requested even as early as last October, they arrived throughout the day in a steady stream that did not create any jams and made the work easy for Capt. Doyle and his men from No. 8 precinct.

The club's office will be open daily until all tickets have been disposed of, while many will be sent through the mails to persons who prefer to mail their checks to the ball park instead of calling in person.

Quakers Find Ferguson Easy

Hadley and Lyle Also Powerless; Errors Numerous.

Harris Leads Weak Attack; Ruel Almost Pulls "Merkle."

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

TAMPA, Fla., March 18.—The only ray of sunshine in today's nightmare performance against the Philadelphia Nationals, which Washington lost, 13 to 2, is that the Harrismen will never look any worse. Not only were their flingers ineffective, but their batters could not bat and their fielders could not field.

It was simply one of those days which found everything going the wrong way for the American league champs and breaking nicely for the Quakers. Alexander Ferguson, Jim Lyle and Irving Hadley each took the mound for three-frame shifts and none had anything which worried Fletcher's men, who slammed out eighteen hits, which included four doubles and a triple.

Add to all of this errors by Myer, Harris, Rice and Judge and the fact that Pitchers Jack Knight and Roy Crumpler had the Nat sluggers eating out of their hands and you have the answer. After this pair had granted but three hits, all off Manager Harris' bat in the first half dozen frames, Ray Pierce took up the box burden and he was less effective, but still sufficiently so to keep his mates from losing any hair, worrying.

IT was in the seventh that the Nats prevented the Phils from dousing them with whitewash. A real single by Joe Judge, scratch ones by Myer and Ruel, two passes and Sand's error formed the ingredients of their two runs and the sacks were fully peopled when Rice rolled to first for the third out.

Joe Harris, up for Hadley, and Stan Harris each singled in the ninth, but an out came between the two and the game ended when Rice lined to Nixon and the latter's peg from deep center beat Bucky back to the plate.

The batting sprees of the Phils were too numerous and hard to enumerate. Suffice to say, they scored five runs each while both Ferguson and Lyle were toiling and three more off Hadley. The pitchers were not entirely to blame, however.

Tommy Leach was the hero of the game, getting five hits which drove home as many runners, while in the eighth he raced far over toward center to drag down a liner from Judge's bat with his bare hand.

Muddy Ruel, in the game for the first time, came mighty near also jumping into the limelight in the seventh when he started to steal third with Myer already there. He discovered his mistake just in time to get back, being helped by the Quaker catcher, who was so surprised that he held the ball while trying to figure out what it was all about.

The Nats journey to Bradenton for a return battle tomorrow and hope to show a form reversal.

Baseball on Sunday Approved in Kentucky

Frankfort, Ky., March 18 (By A. P.). — Sunday baseball, both semi-professional and professional, now has approval in Kentucky.

The State legislature, on its last day before adjournment yesterday, passed over Gov. Field's veto the Strange-Hamilton law repealing a portion of Kentucky's blue law statute which prohibited playing of baseball and participation in other sports on Sunday.

Gov. Fields returned the measure to the legislature with his veto message yesterday morning and it was passed over his veto in the senate and sent to the house, where after lacking by two the necessary constitutional majority in the afternoon, it was called up again last night and passed with two more votes than the constitution requires to override the veto of the chief executive.

OCCIDENTAL IN RELAYS.

Los Angeles, Calif., March 18 (By A. P.).—Occidental college is to send a team this year to the Kansas relays at Lawrence, Kans., and to the Penn relay carnival at Philadelphia.

KING TUT CALLED NEW ORLEANS BEST

Myrtle Belle In Soft Spot At Tampa

Stars and Stripes Has Taudlane to Beat At Jeff Park.

Molinero Is Slated to Show Improvement In Third Race

By BERT E. COLLYER.

FISH day, ye gods and little minnows. Its raining whales and sharks down at Jeff park, while over at Tampa a fast track prevails. As for the class of racers performing one could not get Harry Fink to make a limb wager, showing that bow wows have the card from soup to nuts.

KING TUT was always a bear in the mud. He is also in excellent form at present and overnight commissions indicate that he is going to step high, wide and handsome. When the boys get busy on the wire then it is time for the wise heads to string along. Also remember it is one of those small field events, and they don't have to let too many people in on the good thing.

String with the Maje is the word from the lads at the course. They refer to STARS AND STRIPES in the opening heat.

TAUDLANE will show improved form in the second and is likely to get the verdict.

For the third, MOLINERO will show improvement over last effort when carried all over the track by Pichon.

ALI BABA is as good as anything else in the fourth, while SCOOP doubtless will forget to stop in the sixth.

For the closing race FOOLSCAP is the cats meow.

MYRTLE BELLE has been dropped into a soft spot over at Tampa. She has all the speed of the party in the fifth, and the others will never know which way she went.

The remainder of the card finds evenly balanced fields, but so little class prevailing as to make it a waste of time to discuss the chances of the various eligibles. Nuf sed.

Phils Are Working Into Good

DRILLING IN EARNEST

Losing Condition, Pegler Says

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

BRADENTOWN, Fla., March 18.—There are usually a couple of ball teams in each major league whose job it is to take a liberal number of lickings with all possible stubbornness from the two or three teams that are fighting for the pennant, the dividends and the diamond watch fobs that dangle from so many vestpockets in the winter reunions in New York.

The Phillies, of Philadelphia, are one of those ball teams, and in their training here in Bradentown they give the customary promise of doing some things to the Giants and Pirates, or other leaders, as usual. They will lose with rousing reluctance. The customers will see earnest, if not polished, baseball. There will be a world series in which the Phils will have no interest, and next spring the Phils, of Philadelphia, will come all the way to Florida to work themselves into good losing condition again.

Good ball teams are either evolved or bought and, in view of the present condition of the Cubs and the amount of money spent on them, it seems impossible to buy good ball teams any more. Once a team falls on its face, as the Phils did some years ago, it is doomed to fall on its face several times more.

WHILE a team is falling on its anatomy the customers turn away, the owner becomes poor and cautious with his money and nothing can be done about it until nature takes her course, as she did in the case of the present Athletics and Washingtons, who used to be pretty bad themselves.

Mr. Baker, who owns the Phillies, hasn't bought any Babe Ruths for his team. There are no Babe Ruths for sale and Mr. Baker doesn't buy store players, anyway, preferring to grow them on the premises, if possible.

Several of the players of the Philadelphia team are very good ball players. It is something like a second-hand car, with a few gears in first-class condition, which have to do business with other gears that grumble like toast.

Jack Bentley cost John J. McGraw sixty-some thousand dollars of baseball money a few seasons ago. McGraw bought him from Baltimore, as a left-handed pitcher. Bentley pitched fair ball for McGraw, but a few weeks ago McGraw sent him to the Phils, who are going to use him as a first-baseman in order to take advantage of his hitting, which is noble. Bentley has a tendency to bulge and it is a question whether a fat man will make a good first-baseman.

Arthur Fletcher, the manager of the Phils, sent Jimmy Ring, his best pitcher, to the Giants in the transaction. Fletcher certainly couldn't afford to let go any pitcher good enough to tempt McGraw. However, he got two pretty good players for the one star, Bentley, and an apprentice pitcher named Wayland Deane. Barney Friberg will play second-base.

THERE is not much to report about Barney Friberg, except that he is a pretty good second baseman. You feel no desire to run around screaming "Rah for Barney Friberg, the greatest second baseman in the world," but there is no reason to run around yelling "Barney Friberg is a rotten second baseman," either.

Heinie Sand is the shortstop. Sometimes Heinie Sand plays shortstop better than any one else. Other times he plays worse than any one else. On the days when Sand is playing worse than any one else Fletcher may send in a fellow named Joe Buskey, who is suspected of playing shortstop quite neatly. The literature on him said he had been known to hit the ball considerable. His batting has been rather bashful thus far.

Bill Huber will play third. He played third last year. If the name sounds unfamiliar, it is only because a fellow drops out of sight when he plays with a team that is falling on its face. He is not a star ball player, but he's better than Russell Wrightstone, his relief man. Wrightstone is a good hitter; as utility man he has played every position in the field. Versatility is his specialty. Then there's a fellow named Kimmeck, who was around with the Phils last year, too, for infield work. See, you forget fellows who play with the Phillies.

It's not important to call the roll of all the fellows who are trying to be Phillies in this sunny little city on the bus line down from Tampa. For the regular pitching work there are Hal Carlson, Steve Decatur, Jack Knight, Ernie Maun, Clarence Mitchell, Ray Pierce, Frank Ulrich and Claude Willoughby.

SOME of the names may recall big games of the past before the boys were condemned to the Phils. Mitchell used to be a swell thrower. The Phils get them on the way up or on the way down, when they have thrown their best or are not yet ready to throw their best.

Eddie Baecht, a boy from Grafton, Ill., has been trying to land a job pitching, but he will have to go away. He is only 18 years old and needs experience, among numerous other things.

He used to work in a dynamite factory at Grafton. There has been much wise cracking and merrymaking about the kid who would willingly leave a nice job in a dynamite factory for the uncertain life with the Phils.

Butch Henline is a good catcher and he is also captain of the team, but he is holding out for more money. If he is traded away every one will be pleased. He doesn't get along with the team. Jim Wilson will do most of the catching.

Harper, Leach and Cy Williams will play the outfield. They always do a lot of hitting, but Williams is rather slow on the dogs now and may have to give way to Johnny Mokan for a few turns in center.

Dillea Brings Home 5 Winners at Tampa

Tampa, Fla., March 18.—Apprentice Jockey Dillea turned in the most sensational riding achievement of the winter racing season here today when he piloted five winners and a third during the seven-race program. In another start, Dillea was out of the money.

Second choices in the betting with Dillea up triumphed in three of the first four races on the card. In the first Dillea piloted Royal Rally home first over Sol, a 1-to-2 shot. Hun Conaway was Dillea's winning mount in the second. He won on Galatia in the fourth, on Pegasus in the fifth and on Seagrave in the sixth.

Yankee Five Beats Terminal Team, 30-26

Terminal Y. M. C. A. and Yankee basketballers hooked up in a hard-fought clash last night, the latter winning out by a 30 to 26 count. A most peculiar feature was that each of the five Yanks in the game cut the railroaders' hall cords for three baskets.

The winners got out in front and at half time led by a 20-14 score. During the nightcap period the clubs fought nip and tuck, the "Y" outfit outscoring the Yanks by a single basket.

TECH BASEBALL SQUAD REPORTS FOR FIRST DRILL

Six Twirlers Seek Places On Team

Fiddesop Is in Charge During Absence of Coach Prentiss.

Dozen Outfielders Are Makin' Bid for Regular Jobs.

By WALTER HAIGHT.

IF FUTURE Tech baseball drills are to be repetitions of the first outdoor practice staged yesterday at the Washington barracks, Harry Fiddesop, Tech trainer, will have to requisition a horse.

Taking up a position in the center of Maj. Gen. Hanson E. Ely's spacious front lawn, Fiddesop soon had five infield combinations and as many groups of outfielders shagging flies. From a distance the outlay resembled a huge wheel.

Coach Melvin Prentiss was unable to take charge and Fiddesop, who is not as slim as in the days when he played with the Mercury football team, had it all figured out whereby he would occupy a soap box in the center and issue any necessary orders.

THE plan worked for just two minutes. The sun poked its head from behind a cloud and the diamond aspirants immediately cut loose. Outfielders started pegging the ball in on a line; infielders began burning up the first basemen, and pitchers were trying hard to break in the new catchers' mits.

Here the necessity for a horse arose. Fiddesop was already hoarse from yelling "take it easy" and the situation required heart-to-heart talks in most cases. The Tech trainer made three tours around the circuit and we suggested he phone Joe Fitzgerald and get the horse the boys kidded the referee so much about during the high school basketball season.

At that the colony of diamond talent of various grades assembled would have brought joy to the heart of any Tech well-wisher. Six young men, said to be pitchers, lobbed them in to another six young men, ambitious to be catchers.

Enough infielders were on hand to make one diamond look like the mob scene from Julius Caesar while the outfield might have been mistaken for a calesthenics class.

THE complete list of Tech candidates and the positions they hope to make follow: Pitchers—Capt. Nelson Jett, Ensor, Dulin, Forrest, Sigel, Postelwaite; catchers—Hebbard, Hile, Milbourne, Levi, Dudley, Heflin, Ash and Sheiry.

First sackers, Fales, Gorman, Fey; second sackers, Snyder, Ryan, Eadie, Bright, Bennett, White, Winston, McClury; shortstops, Snowden, Ciangi; third sackers, Lucchesi, Berger, Mattling, Reichhardt, Miller; outfielders, Schofield, Scagnelli, Spillman, Mills, Putnam, Lawless, Hemelt, Wollow, Wissman, Hall, Hessler, Van Geuder.

Stuyvesant School Boxers Show Class

Juvenile boxers of the Stuyvesant school of Warrenton, Va., gave a clever exhibition last night under the direction of Coach Joe Bateman before more than 150 guests at the Washington auditorium.

In addition to the eight bouts in which the youngsters took part, two matches between members of Bateman's local amateur stable were staged, and both were declared draws by the judges. Bill Stanley and Jack Jeter and Mickey Harris and Billy Deke were the contestants.

The results of the Stuyvesant bouts follow:

Mac Lansdowne drew with Jack Finnety, 3 rounds; Ed Baker defeated Bob Davis, 4 rounds; Francis Winslow defeated Sandy Baldwin, 3 rounds; George Bartol drew with Griswold Green, 4 rounds; Charlie Brady defeated Jim Keith, 3 rounds; Billy Huxthall defeated Merit Arnold, 4 rounds; Howard Fletcher defeated Highland Lyon, 4 rounds; Albert Shepherd defeated Dorsey Cullen, 3 rounds.

within which the players, table and referee could be sheltered.

If Washington's "boo" is all that is needed, as Westbrook Pegler states, to frighten the Athletics, the Nationals will have plenty of help in the job from the stands.

The umpires are taking spring training, but the average baseball enthusiast will insist, along about April 14, that they neglected their work.

BATTING .400 has for years been the professional baseball player's greatest ambition, a desire intensified by the fact that only one or two out of the 400 players on major league payrolls have been able to soar that high in any given year. The .300 class is reserved for good hitters, but the .400 division is for the truly great.

Beginning this year the new sacrifice-fly rule will help pep up the batting averages of the free-hitting clubbers in big time. Heretofore a batter had to score a man with a fly ball in order to get the credit which a sacrifice fly brings. This season advancing any base runner will bring the same reward.

The new scoring rule is not going to make a vast difference in the batting averages, for the sacrifice fly is not a predominating factor in hitting. A hit ball has to be high, wide and handsome for the runner to advance, and despite the example set by Babe Ruth, the free swingers are not yet in the majority.

The difference probably will be noted among the players who are already more than good batters, who have year in and year out, reached almost to the .400 class but missed by a few points entering that select coterie. Cobb, Speaker and Ruth are three of the swatters who may find the new ruling just what they need to bring them to the .400 mark or beyond.

ON the Washington club there are two men who should benefit through the new interpretation of the rule—Goslin and Joe Harris. Both of these hirelings of Clark Griffith hit a long hard ball for the most part. They keep the ball up in the air, and if it does not fall safe, it is more than likely to send the opposing players on a hearty chase.

It will not take many sacrifice flies to make a material change in a batting average. Every hit ball so credited will mean a time less at bat and the value of the safe hits that are made will rise accordingly. The new system may even mean that there will be some new standard set and that the best bludgeoning in the future will soar toward .450 or above.

One advantage Hoff will enjoy on his transcontinental tour will be that, due to his skill in pole vaulting, he can enter or leave an upper berth without using the lower as a take-off.

No matter how old a man gets, he never escapes the feeling on the first spring day that if he had stuck to baseball he would have been another Cobb.

COL. PHIL CHINN, noted Kentucky breeder, has been in the forefront of turf news this week. On Wednesday he paid $50,000 to Admiral Cary Grayson for the half interest which the Washington sportsman had in High Time, sire of Sarazen. On Sunday he was in receipt of the welcome news that two colts, selected by him as yearlings as promising stock, had run one, two in the Tia Juana derby, richest stake fixture of the year up to the present time.

The second happening may have been contingent upon the first, for until Roycrofter, son of High Time, finished in the place at Tia Juana it was the general belief that the offspring of Sarazen's sire could not go the distance. Col. Chinn knows his horseflesh, however, so that his purchase of High Time was certainly based on the belief that this sire is due for a valuable career in stud.

Carlaris, winner of the Tia Juana derby, may yet prove to be the greatest compliment to Col. Chinn's discernment. The Kentucky sportsman bought him in England, as a yearling, for inclusion in a sale at Saratoga. He was well bred, being by Phalaris, the ranking English sire in 1925, who gave the English turf Manna, last year's derby winner, and Pharos, which ran second to Papyrus two years ago.

Carlaris brought the record price of any of the yearlings. He was knocked down at $6,500 and went to the Chula Vista Stable, which now owns him. Out on the coast Carlaris trained well and has an impressive record. He has won five out of six starts this year, and in winning the Tia Juana derby ran so impressively that he stands out as one of the best distance horses in the 3-year-old division.

THE Western horse is entered for the Kentucky derby and all the other important fixtures of the year in this part of the country. Many of the winter favorites for the Churchill Downs feature have trained off or in other ways lessened their chances. Carlaris may come East with the same support that Black Gold brought out of the West in 1924 and score a similar triumph.

The time has come for the managers to confound the experts by releasing only those "rookies" the writers have selected as the most promising.

Bucky Harris must be of the opinion, after some of the exhibition games, that a bad habit is about to become a vice with the Washington club.

Jewish Teams Play Three Games Sunday

The Jewish Community Center Basketball league which furnished three spirited contests in its successful opening last week will resume action Sunday with a trio of battles on the program.

Sunday's schedule follows: Aurora vs. Mardell, Temple Alumni vs. Les Amis and Kanawha vs. Rialto. The first game will start at 1:30 o'clock.

CORTEZ TO DRILL.

The Cortez A. C. nine will stage its second workout Sunday on their field starting at 11 o'clock. The following players are requested to be present: Epstein, Bolti, Zimmerman, Garfinkle, Lombard, Ormsby and Wood.

How Fournier Broke Up His Marquard Jinx

By AL DEMAREE,
Former Pitcher New York Giants.

JACQUES FOURNIER, the Dodger first sacker, whose 190 pounds of beef thrown behind the swing of his bat has made many a pitcher moan, has a pitching jinx.

Jacques says that "Rube" Marquard has fooled him more than any other box artist in the "big time."

"I have only made five hits off 'Rube' in five seasons," declares Fournier. "That's a fact—one hit a season."

But the worm will turn. It was the last of these five hits that gave the Dodger the hunch he was going to get even with "Rube."

Last summer Boston went to Brooklyn for a series and Manager Bancroft started "Rube."

"So you're working today," said Fournier.

"Yep," replied the "Rube," "and don't forget I've got the old 'hipper dipper' on you."

"Marquard went into the box," relates Fournier, "and I came up with the bases loaded.

"Ordinarily this would have been 'duck soup' for 'Rube,' but something went wrong with the jinx. I slammed a triple against the fence in right center and cleaned the bases, and incidentally sent 'Rube' to the showers."

The Sportswoman

By DOROTHY E. GREENE

THE Recreation League match carded for tonight will feature the Department of the Interior team and the Good Shepherd sextet which is the only combination in the circuit which has been undefeated this season. The game will be played at the Fifth Street armory at 7 p. m.

CENTRAL SENIORS SCORE.

The Senior Blue team of Central High school is leading the field for the interclass basketball title and has completed its play in the opening series by winning all three of its contests. Its second team also came through the opening group without losing a game.

Wearers of the blue in the opening series were:

First team—Elizabeth Ward, and Ivy Stevens, forwards; Elizabeth Hatch, and Virginia Story, centers; Flora Alpert and Jean Sime, guards.

Second team—Alice Franklin and Myrtle Standish, forwards; Barbara Burroughs, and Judith Edes, centers; Freda Rosenblatt and Freda Frankel, guards.

YOUTHFUL FENCER WINS.

Miss Marion Lloyd, a fencer of only six months' experience, won the women's junior tournament of the Amateur Fencers league, held recently in New York. Miss Lloyd is a member of the Brooklyn Edison Fencing club.

Twenty-one other women entered the competition, many of whom were veteran fencers, but in the junior class many novices, including members of the University of Pennsylvania's fencing team, participated.

Miss Lloyd won the gold medal, defeating Miss Mollie Burnside, of the Washington Square Fencing club, in the finals, 5—4. Miss Burnside qualified for the silver medal and Miss Ottilie Foy, of the New York Turnverein, won the bronze medal for third place, though in the final bout she lost, 5—0, to Miss Lloyd.

ARCHERY IN WASHINGTON.

A great deal has been heard lately of the revival of archery as a sport, but it was not until a recent warm day when we observed five different groups of archers in Rock Creek park that we realized the sport had reached Washington.

It is said that for more than 25,000 years the bow and arrow have been used by man and have been a potent factor in raising him above the brutes. Those who champion the sport also say that their constant use for these untold ages has bred within us an instinctive love for their beauty, grace and power, and an appeal to the best qualities of the mind and heart.

At any rate archery is recruiting many followers. The body which governs the sport in this country is the National Archery Association of the United States, which every archer should join, whether she shoots well or poorly. It holds the annual championship tournaments and sanctions lesser matches, passes on records, preserves communication between its members and does all that similar organizations do in other major sports. There is nothing in its constitution, however, which fixes the degree of skill possessed by an archer who does not compete in the annual tournament.

The Archers' Guild was created to fill this role. Patterned closely after the Misteries or Guilds, which existed when archery in England was in flower, it is divided, as were its prototypes, into three classes called masters, yeomen and apprentices. The officers are called by the old names of warden, underwarden and clerk. The qualifications for membership are passed on by a committee on sufferings, a phrase still persisting in the Society of Friends. Further information on the activities and membership in the organization may be secured from Dr. Robert P. Elmer, Wayne, Pa.

Knickerbockers Play Independent Games

Knickerbocker club baseball team of Georgetown, last year's winner in the District independent title, will play independent baseball again this season. The champs will make their schedule booking leading teams of the city and nearby towns.

Manager Warren Hilleary said that his team will not enter the newly organized Tricity league, although he hopes to arrange games with several of the circuit's leading clubs. The Knicks will play all home games in the Georgetown Hollow field.

The initial baseball meeting of last year's players and newcomers will be held tonight in the manager's home, 3249 N street northwest, starting at 8 o'clock.

Eastern Preps Win; Play Guyonites Today

The Eastern Preps, led by Jules Radice, former Eastern star, gained a 60 to 29 verdict over the Elliot Seniors in a fast game last night. Radice played a bangup game for the winners accounting for 17 points. The same team (with Radice included) will play Eastern High today at 3 o'clock.

PALACE PROS WIN FROM BUFFALO

Saunders Is Star As Washington Turns In 27-24 Victory.

BUFFALO, March 18.—Scoring sprees by Saunders, left forward, proved the medium of a victory gained by the Washington Palace club over the Buffalo Germans here tonight in an American Professional Basketball league game, 27 to 24.

Saunders scored five times from the floor and dropped in two goals from the foul line. He was not partial as to the sector of the floor from which he tossed his goals, but counted on both distances and "snowbird" shots.

A FINAL-HALF rally by the locals all but overcome the lead which Washington amassed during the first half. Outplaying the Germans in all departments of play, Palace was in front by a 15-8 score at the intermission.

Eighteen of Washington's points were scored from scrimmage. Buffalo accounted for 8 field goals. Hyde and Berry were prominent in the Buffalo rally during the final minutes of play.

Helen Wills Betters Mlle. Lenglen's Mark

Cannes, France, March 18 (By A. P.).—Miss Helen Wills, the American champion, is meeting little opposition in her advance through the singles of the Cannes club lawn tennis tournament. In the quarter finals today she defeated Miss J. M. Padwick, of England, without the loss of a game.

Miss Wills has bettered Suzanne Lenglen's tournament record by winning 48 out of 50 games in the first four rounds, 17 of them at love.

She now enters the semifinals, where she meets Eileen Bennett, of England, who had a hard struggle today to defeat Miss Petchell. Miss Wills and Henri Cochet will play their third-round match in the mixed doubles tomorrow morning.

District White Sox In Practice Sunday

The White Sox baseball team will take the field for the first time this year when they hold their initial practice Sunday at 2 p. m. on the Fairlawn field, Anacostia. The Sox will be remembered as being one of the "Younger Set" in unlimited ranks last year.

Tommy David, Burt McGann, Otts de Marco and Ellie Taylor are expected to join the team after the scholastic season is over. They are requested to see Ralph Smith at Sunday's practice session. Other players requested to report Sunday are: Billie Ball, Lindsey Stott, Elliott, Clark, Hickey, Klein, R. de Marco, Usilton, Twomey, Deuterman and Collie. Any other players wishing to join the team are invited to attend at that time.

Stantons and Wonders Top Court Bill Tonight

Two of the best versed local basketball teams in the professional style of play will clash tonight, when the Holman's Wonders, composed of the pick of the high school stars, meets the Stanton quintet, of Northeast, in the Congress Heights gymnasium.

In a preliminary, starting at 7:30 o'clock, the Epiphany Juniors, District senior champs, will give the Independent A. C. five a crack at the title.

Both the Wonders and the Stantons have victories to their credit over the District Yankees. In its first game of the season, the Holman crew defeated the R. E. Knight's five, of Alexandria, composed mostly of Stanton players. The Northeast boys will be out to avenge that defeat tonight.

S. A. SELECTS RING TEAM FOR TRIP

McFeely, of G. U., to Fight in U. S. Meet At Philadelphia.

BALTIMORE, March 18.—The cream of the amateur boxing talent selected to represent the South Atlantic association of the Amateur Athletic union in the national junior boxing championships at Philadelphia March 26 and 27 was announced tonight. The S. A. A. team will be composed of thirteen boxers and five substitute mitmen.

The national event awarded to the Penn Athletic club will be held at the arena and will be recognized as the official opening of the athletic activities in connection with the sesquicentennial.

All of the winners in the South Atlantic ring championships held here this week will of course fight in the eight weight classes. Two men have been selected to fight in the first five weights and one in each of the next three.

ADDISON E. WARREN, who won the title in both the 175-pound and unlimited class, will be called upon to show his wares in the former class, while Garland Bennett, whom he knocked out in the unlimited class bout, has been selected to carry the sectional colors in the latter class.

Clarence Spagnolia, the swarthy army boxer, who carried Warren into an extra round in the semifinals before the latter was able to gain the judges' decision has been selected as one of the alternates and will substitute for Warren should it be considered advisable. Spagnolia is the possessor of a terrific wallop, but very little science.

The men who will fight in the different weights are as follows:

112-pound class—Abe Sobel, Alert club; Al Martin, Y. M. C. A.

118-pound class—Frank Stevenson, Fifth regiment; A. Friedman, Y. M. H. A.

126-pound class—Johnny Fredericks, Y. M. H. A.; Manny Fox, Y. M. H. A.

135-pound class—Frank Massonis, Third corps area; Tom Kelly, Y. M. H. A.; substitute, Murray Bressler, Y. M. H. A.

147-pound class—John Deters, Third corps area; Joe Glazer, Alert club; substitute, Donald Lyford, Y. M. C. A.

160-pound class—Walter McFeeley, Georgetown university; substitute, Alexander Hanko, Y. M. C. A.

175-pound class—Addison E. Warren, University of North Carolina; substitute, Clarence Spagnolia, Third corps area.

Unlimited class—Garland Bennett, Third corps area.

Wonders Show Stuff In Alexandria Victory

Alexandria, March 18.—One of the cleverest exhibitions ever given on an Alexandria basketball court was flashed tonight when the Holman Wonder five, minus the services of two of its leading lights, defeated an all-star Alexandria team by a 43 to 19 score.

The fast and accurate passing and timely sharpshooting of the winners predominated throughout the game with Dean and Nee, who played in place of Moser and Banta, giving a splendid account of themselves during the absence of the stars. The entire Wonder team shared in the scoring while Dreifus tallied most for the losers.

Holman Wonders.	Position.	Alexandria A.-S.
MacDonald	R. F.	Dreifus
Councillor	L. F.	Warfield
Werber	Center	Clark
Dean	R. G.	Dreifus
Nee	L. G.	Watt

Substitutions — McNemain for Warfield. Field goals—MacDonald (5), Councillor (4), Dean (4), Werber (3), Dreifus (4), Clarke, C. Dreifus. Foul goals—MacDonald (2 in 3), Councillor (4 in 4), Nee (3 in 4), Werber (1 in 3), Dean (1 in 1), McNemain (2 in 4), West (1 in 1), Warfield (1 in 2), Dreifus (3 in 6). Referee—Entwisle. Timekeeper—Holman.

Zbyszko Wins Bout; Paxos Badly Hurt

Atlanta, Ga., March 18 (By A. P.).—Stanislaus Zbyszko, former world's champion heavyweight wrestler, defeated John Paxos, Greek matman, in one fall here tonight. Paxos was so badly hurt from one of Zbyszko's "flying mares" that the referee stopped the match in the second tilt.

Tilden and Richards Meet Again at Nets

Jacksonville, Fla., March 18 (By A. P.).—William T. Tilden, national champion, and Vincent Richards, America's third ranking player, will meet Saturday afternoon in the finals of the Southeastern tennis tournament at the Florida Country club. Both Tilden and Richards met stiff opposition in the semifinals this afternoon and were forced through to four set matches.

Tilden defeated Howard Voshell, of New York, 4—6, 6—0, 6—2, 8—6, and Richard downed the Japanese champion, Takeichi Harada, 6—3, 10—8, 2—6, 6—1.

Harada suffered from a cramp in his playing wrist during the last set, but forced Richards to top speed during the first three.

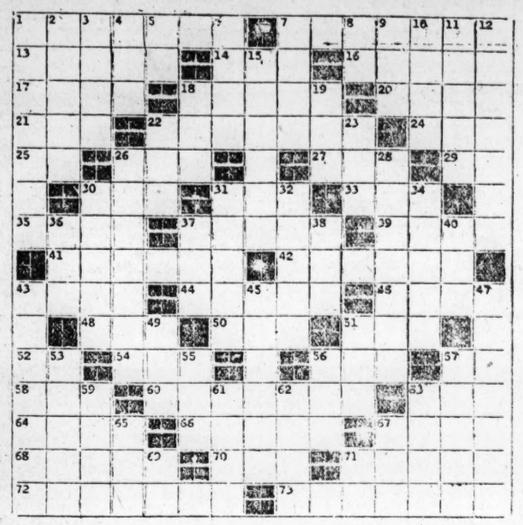

Kid Kaplan Signed For Baltimore Bout

Louis ("Kid") Kaplan, featherweight champion, has been matched to meet Tommy Herman, of Baltimore, in a twelve-round bout at the 104th medical regiment armory at Baltimore on Friday, March 26. Bennie Franklin is promoting the match and has guaranteed Kaplan $5,000 and a percentage of the gate receipts.

EASING OF MONEY FAILS TO HALT DROP IN BONDS

Rail Liens, Except C. & O. Convertible 5s, Follow Downward Course.

FOREIGN GROUP SLUGGISH

New York, March 18 (By the Associated Press.).—Reactionary tendencies predominated in today's uneventful bond trading session. Easier money conditions failed to stimulate sufficient buying to overcome the adverse influences of another break in stock prices and the beclouded European political situation.

Railroad liens followed a downward course with the exception of Chesapeake and Ohio convertible 5s, which were lifted more than 5 points above 148 before falling back to around 145. Heavy buying for conversion purposes followed the brisk rise in the stock based on the declaration of larger dividends.

With a general selling movement under way in the stock market, other carriers bonds failed to attract buyers and moderate price recessions took place throughout the list. Baltimore & Ohio, St. Paul, Louisville & Nashville, Pennsylvania, Long Island, Nickel Plate, Erie, Delaware & Hudson, Seaboard, "Katy," Chicago & Alton and Frisco issues tended lower.

Foreign obligations remained sluggish with persistent selling of the Belgian issues inspired by the internal financial controversy and reports that the forthcoming loan might be limited to a three-year period. French bonds also were heavy.

Virginia-Carolina Chemical 7½ per cent certificates dropped 5 points to a new low and losses of a point or so were recorded by Punta Alegre Sugar 7's, Third Avenue Railway adjustment 5's and reefunding 4's, Kings County Electric 4's and Brooklyn Union Gas 5½'s.

CURB MARKET REVIEW.

New York, March 18 (By the Associated Press).—Selling pressure increased in today's curb market as a result of heavy liquidation on the "big board," and closing quotations disclosed a long list of net losses ranging from 1 to 5 points in the active issues. Trading, which was on an increased scale, originated largely with professionals, but belated liquidation of long stock held through the recent break was apparent in many issues.

In view of the lack of public interest, pool operations in the oil shares were suspended temporarily and prices drifted lower. Vacuum Oil dropped 4 points, to 97, and then rallied to 98, while Humble, Reiter-Foster and Carib Syndicate yielded a point or so. Mexican Panuco held firm on the announcement that it has acquired control of the Guatemala syndicate, holding concessions on more than 4,500,000 acres in Central America through the purchase of a four-fifth interest in that company. Electric Refrigeration issues continued heavy, presumably on selling inspired by the increasing competition in that industry. Electric Refrigeration common dropped 2 points, to 63¼, and then recovered half of its loss. Serv-El dropped 2⅜ points, to 20⅜, and then rallied about a point. Nizer B and Kelvinator were stricken from the list because a large percentage of the shares outstanding had been exchanged for Electrical Refrigeration, which absorbed those companies and the Grand Rapids Refrigerator Co.

Glen Alden Coal broke 5½ points, to 151, and then rallied feebly. Land Co. of Florida touched another new low at 22. The active baking shares yielded fractionally.

Public utilities offered less resistance to pressure. American Light & Traction broke 6½ points, to 211, and rebounded to 213; American Gas & Electric slid down 3¼ points, to 75, and American Power & Light, Southeastern Power & Light (new), United Light & Power and United Gas Improvement yielded a point or two.

Why We Think That This Is a Good Time to Buy a USED CAR

1. With spring only a few days away and the automobile season just around the corner, there will be the usual demand for both used cars and new.
2. Prices on cars, either new or old, never drop lower with the coming of spring. If anything, they generally go up.
3. Our prices on used cars were never better, and we have ample time in which to demonstrate our machines for you.

You'll find these well worth looking over—

AUTOISTS CROWDING MAIL WITH ADDRESS CHANGES FOR CARDS

Traffic Bureau Receives 250 Letters Daily Since Plea for Data Was Made.

CONNECTICUT AVENUE HAS FLASHING STATIONS

Commissioners Approve of 7 Alterations in One-Way-Street Regulations.

Two hundred and fifty letters a day have been sent to the police traffic bureau containing data about changed names and addresses of holders of automobile drivers' permits since The Post published the plea of the director of traffic that such changes be mailed in for the records.

"This publication has been of great aid to us in revising our records and will simplify our work of renewing operators' permits," said Assistant Director I. C. Moller. "There must be many more who have moved, or women who have married, since taking out their permits, and we hope all of them will write to the police traffic bureau, 1412 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, so the changes may be made of record."

The flashing beacons installed on the safety car stop platforms in Connecticut avenue northwest south of Dupont circle were placed in operation yesterday.

Changes on One-Way Streets.

Seven changes in the traffic regulations with reference to one-way streets and turns in the northwest section of the city were approved by the commissioners yesterday, on recommendation of Traffic Director M. O. Eldridge, as follows:

Newton street and Park road were extended as west-bound one-way streets from Seventeenth to Eighteenth; Seventeenth and Mount Pleasant streets were made one-way thoroughfares for northbound traffic from Park road to Newton street; Mount Pleasant street between Irving and Harvard streets, was designated for southbound traffic only; left turns were prohibited in Sixteenth street at the north end of the planted reservation at Sixteenth, Mount Pleasant and Harvard streets; intersection of Mount Pleasant and Sixteenth streets was designated as the point for right turns by eastbound vehicles in Harvard street.

Traffic Inadequacies Held To Cost Every One $20

(By the Associated Press.)

Inadequate traffic facilities are costing each individual in the United States $20 a year, a total of $2,000,000,000 for the nation, the committee on metropolitan traffic facilities said in a report prepared yesterday for submission to the second national conference on street and highway safety.

Every community or metropolitan area, it said, should have a traffic survey to provide data needed to plan correction of conditions which result in economic and personal losses. Chief sources of losses were listed as congested thoroughfares, inferior road surfaces, heavy grades, railroad and main traveled highway grade crossings, drawbridges, insufficient traffic police, inadequacy or absence of signal systems, poor signs, badly marked detours and toleration of vehicles unsuited to local conditions.

The committee proposed creation of a permanent official traffic commission for each city.

VERA ASKS CARROLL TO CLOSE HER PLAY

Loathes Stage, She Says, and Does Not Want "Ashes" Risked on Broadway.

Vera, Countess of Cathcart, it was learned yesterday, has asked Earl Carroll, the producer, to close her play, "Ashes of Love," when it ends its first week's run at the Belasco theater tomorrow night. She is not willing that it be given a trial on Broadway.

"I loathe the stage," the countess told members of her company at the Mayflower hotel yesterday. "It is all hard work and no glory. Bad publicity has killed my play and ruined me socially. I have asked Mr. Carroll to close my play this Saturday, instead of taking it to Broadway. He said he would think it over."

Charging that Carroll had misbranded her play, the Countess of Cathcart declared she almost fainted when she heard the precurtain speech warning the audience that the play would be a portrayal of her own life. Denying that "Ashes" is autobiographical, the countess said it is a psychological study of a woman going through unusual experiences.

PETWORTH RESIDENTS REQUEST MORE BUSES

At Same Time Company Asks Permission to Operate Additional Cars.

Petworth residents yesterday asked the public utilities commission to order the Washington Rapid Transit Co. to operate more buses. The same mail brought the commission a letter from the company asking permission to increase its number of vehicles.

The Petworth Citizens association forwarded resolutions asking that old buses be declared obsolete and ordered replaced and that additional service be provided in rush hours on the Iowa avenue and Thirteenth street and Potomac Park motorbus lines.

The bus company said the Maryland public service commission had approved purchase of five new 21-passenger, single-deck buses for the Silver Spring line and asked for similar approval by the local commission, adding that installation of the new buses would release four 29-passenger buses now in service on the suburban line, for use on the Petworth route.

MONUMENT ELEVATOR PASSES FIRST TEST

With Cables Cut, Cab Drops Only 16 Inches Before Stopping.

Unofficial reports on the drop test given the new elevator in the Washington monument yesterday stated that it was satisfactory. Official reports on the test will be made by the bureau of standards.

The car was suspended 16 feet above the base of the shaft, the suspending cables were then cut and it was allowed to drop and the safety mechanism regulating its speed and emergency stoppage to operate. The safety mechanism, consisting of automatic clutches on the guide rails of the shaft, brought the descending car to a dead stop 16 inches below the point where it had been released.

Maj. J. C. Mehaffey, chief of the designing and construction division, office of public buildings and parks; J. L. Nagel, designing engineer; E. G. Marsh, in charge of elevator construction; J. L. Dickinson, bureau of standards, and several officials of the Otis Elevator Co., which installed the elevator, witnessed the test. Tests of switches and for speed will be made next week.

LECTURER ASSERTS CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CURES WORST ILLS

H. C. Hering Denies Healing Accomplished by Mental Suggestion.

DECLARES FAITH HAS DIVINE FOUNDATION

Holds That Beliefs Are Having Great Part in Redemption of the World.

"Christian Science and the World's Redemption" was the subject of a lecture delivered last night at First Church of Christ Scientist, by Professor Hermann S. Hering, member of the Board of Lectureship of the mother church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. Professor Hering was introduced by Elmer I. Baldwin, first reader of First Church. The lecturer said, in part:

"Since the healing of sin, disease, and all other earthly misery is an essential part of the world's redemption, and since Christian Science brings about this healing through the scientific application of the 'Christ-principle,' let us consider this question for a moment, for it involves a point that is much misunderstood.

Says Proof Available.

"While it is true that in Christian Science the healing is done mentally through a form of prayer, it is not true that the healing is accomplished through mental suggestion or will-power. It is also believed by some that Christian Science heals only cases of nervousness, hysteria, or slight indispositions which nature would take care of, or cases of which it might be said they 'would get well anyway.' While it is quite true that cases involving hysteria, fear, and imagination have been healed, it is not true that these constitute the larger portion of the work done. It is a matter of record, supported by indisputable proof, that Christian Science has healed innumerable cases of organic, structural, and malignant disease which had been so diagnosed by reputable physicians It is the healing of serious and critical cases which proves most strikingly the efficacy of Christian Science as a remedial agency.

"Christian Science healing may be demonstrated and will be differentiated from all other forms of mental healing when the following points are understood: first, that it has a divine foundation and results from the operation of divine Mind and not human will; second, that it is based upon absolute reality, the infinity of Mind, Spirit, Truth, and the perfect nature of the ideas which constitute real Being; third, that it is predicated upon the unreality of all which is unlike perfect spiritual Being, namely, the unreality of matter, evil mind, mortal law and power, which constitute so-called material existence, or the "Adam-dream;" fourth, that it is fundamentally a corrective process, as Jesus intimated when he said, 'Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free.'

"The achievements of Christian Science, during its comparatively brief history, have been so widespread in their effects, so wholesome in their influences, so elevating in their teachings, that these results and their part in the world's redemption can not be adequately estimated.

"Of course, the most conspicuous result has been the healing of mortals from sin, disease, and untold misery. Many have been healed of diseases of a character which puzzled the diagnosticians, and many from ailments associated with unethical or immoral conditions. Diseases resulting from so-called hereditary laws, from laws of occult influences and evil purposes, which it is obvious that drugs and surgery can not possibly heal, have in numerous instances yielded to the Christ-power of true Christian Science work.

"Mrs. Eddy writes, 'Christ's Christianity is the chain of scientific being reappearing in all ages, maintaining its obvious correspondence with the Scriptures and uniting all periods in the design of God' (Science and Health, p. 271)."
